FRENCH SWEEP NEAR TO CHAULNES, REACH RAILWAY

Line to Roye in Their Hands After New Drive South of the Somme.

BRITISH WIN LEUZE WOOD

Germans Make Heavy Assaults on the Allied Trenches, but Fail to Make Gains.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE AGAIN

Capture 4,500 Men in Drive Toward Halicz—Rumanians Halt Bulgars at Danube.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Allied troops dealt more blows on the Somme front last night and today, gaining additional ground both north and south of the river.

The largest success was won by the French forces to the southward. Attacks on Berny resulted in the occupation of most of the village. Operations between Vermandovillers and Chilly enabled Foch's men to seize the northern part of the former village. Further to the south the attacking forces were able to push to the outskirts of Chaulnes and to the Chaulnes-Roye railway.

The British for their part won the whole of Leuze Wood in their operations of last night.

The night bulletin of the French War Office says:

> North of the Somme there was a violent artillery duel, but no infantry action.
> South of the Somme, in the afternoon, we successfully renewed our offensive and carried several German trenches southwest of Belloy-en-Santerre.
> In the course of a vigorous infantry attack against the village of Berny-en-Santerre we carried the greater part of the village and advanced as far as the southern projection of the park.
> Between Vermandovillers and Chilly there was especially stubborn fighting. We carried the northern portion of Vermandovillers as far as the road running from the village of Estrées.
> Further to the south, in the region between Chaulnes and Chilly, we captured more trenches and pushed our first line as far as the outskirts of Chaulnes and along the railway between Chaulnes and Roye.
> The number of prisoners captured during the day seems large, but there is no definite information yet.
> On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun sector) the cannonade was intense at the end of the day in the Vaux-Chapitre Wood sector. On the rest of the front the day was comparatively quiet.

The day bulletin of the French War Office reads:

> North of the Somme the enemy attempted no counterattacks during the night. Artillery activity continued to a pronounced degree on different parts of the front.
> South of the Somme the Germans made several attacks on our new positions south of Deniécourt and in the neighborhood of Berny. All these attacks were broken by our curtain of fire, which inflicted losses on the enemy.
> On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) at about 8 o'clock last evening the enemy attempted an attack against the village of Fleury after a heavy bombardment. Caught by the hot fire of our machine guns, the Germans were unable to debouch. The number of prisoners taken yesterday in the sector east of Fleury has been increased by about forty.
> In Lorraine a strong enemy detachment was surprised by our fire and dispersed at a moment when it was endeavoring to carry one of our advanced positions.
> Everywhere else the night was calm.

British Tell of Gain.

The British official statement this afternoon says:

> The artillery of both sides has been active north of Pozières and in the neighborhood of Mouquet Farm. Last night we discharged gas successfully opposite Gommecourt.
> During the night our troops gained possession of the whole of Leuze Wood. Fighting continues between the wood and Combles village and round Ginchy.
> Yesterday afternoon our heavy artillery effectively shelled the enemy's hutments in Polygon wood, east of Ypres.

The night report of the British War Office says:

> Severe fighting continues at Ginchy. Fifty more prisoners were brought in today. Nineteen machine guns were captured or destroyed since Sunday by the corps on our right flank.
> A large party of the enemy, emerging on Courcellette, was caught by our artillery today and scattered. Numerous hostile working parties came under our shell fire and were dispersed.
> The enemy's artillery was active against portions of our front near Thiepval.
> North of Arras and between La Bassée Canal and Richebourg we carried out a successful bombardment.
> Yesterday our aeroplanes continued their usual successful co-operation. One of our patrols, consisting of four machines, encountered and drove off a hostile patrol of thirteen machines. One of our machines is missing.

Berlin Tells of Big Allied Forces.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—Announcement was made in the headquarters' report today that the town of Clery had been captured by troops of the Entente Allies. The bulletin reads:

> The battle on both sides of the Somme continues with undiminished intensity. Twenty-eight British and French divisions (560,000) men are engaged in the attack.
> North of the Somme their attacks have been sanguinarily repulsed. The enemy gained ground at small places (?) in limited areas. Clery is in his hands.
> South of the river, in a ding-dong infantry battle, our first position has been maintained against a fresh attack of the French on a front from Barleux to south of Chilly. Only there, where the most advanced trenches had been entirely, (? destroyed,) have they been evacuated. All later attacks have been repulsed with the most severe losses. The Mecklenburg, Holstein and Saxon regiments especially distinguished themselves.
> Up to last night, as the result of the two days' battle south of the Somme, 31 officers and 1,437 men, from ten French divisions, and twenty-three machine guns have been brought in.
> In aerial fights and by anti-aircraft fire three enemy aeroplanes were shot down.

New Proposal Is Offered on Sale of Danish Isles

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6, (via London.)—Representatives of the four political parties in the Rigsdag met today and the Conservatives proposed that, simultaneously with the formation of a coalition Cabinet a committee of thirty members, fifteen from each house, should be appointed to reconsider the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States.

They proposed further that the committee should make a report, and that the convention with the United States should then be submitted to a plebiscite under the new Constitution. The proposals also provided that if the plebiscite showed that less than half the electors are against the sale treaty, it shall be resubmitted to the Rigsdag, and if more than half the electors are against the convention, the United States shall be informed that the convention cannot be ratified.

The proposal will be discussed tomorrow.

DROP STAMP TAXES FROM REVENUE BILL

Conferees Give Way to House Opposition, but May Increase Munitions Tax.

ADJOURNMENT IS DELAYED

Fitzgerald Assails Permanent Tariff Board and Appropriation Is Stricken Out.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Sept. 7.—Elimination of all stamp taxes in the Emergency Revenue bill objected to by the House was agreed upon just after midnight by the Conference Committee. The House conferees yielded in exchange for this concession their demand for restoration of a tax on refiners of copper.

To make up for the loss of about $5,000,000 revenue in sacrificing the stamp taxes the conferees, it is expected, will agree to a suggestion of House members that the net profit tax of manufacturers of munitions of war be increased from 10 to 12½ per cent.

The sacrifice of the proposed stamp taxes puts the Revenue bill back in accord with the original determination of the Administration leaders and the House Ways and Means Committee to repeal all of those provisions in the existing War Revenue law which the public generally regarded as annoyances. The proposed stamp taxes, now eliminated, covered bonds, debentures, and certificates of stock, agreements of sale, conveyances, warehouse and Custom House receipts, foreign steamship tickets and Pullman car tickets.

The conferees adjourned soon after midnight when, it is reported, they were in practical agreement on all the vital provisions of the bill.

The proposed license tax on corporate stock; increases in the duty on dyestuffs; increases in the income and inheritance taxes, and the provisions creating a Tariff Commission—all were approved.

A continuing appropriation of $300,000 a year for the Tariff Commission, it was said, had been stricken out. The conference also was reported to have under consideration changes in the proposed taxes on wines.

Because of the lengthy discussions of the bill in the Conference Committee the final adjournment of Congress will be delayed perhaps until Saturday.

After an all-day discussion of the bill the conferees had not completed their consideration of amendments to the income tax section when they took a recess early last evening. The administrative features of the income tax sections were the stumbling blocks. They had settled the rate of taxation, however, and agreed finally that the normal tax on incomes should be 2 per cent., and that the Senate amendments increasing the sur-taxes on large incomes should be retained in the bill. After the recess the conferees resumed their work, determined to speed up with a view to reaching a complete agreement some time tomorrow morning if possible.

The Senate amendments empowering the President to retaliate against British interference with American trade and American mails were discussed informally in the conference. There was no disposition to eliminate any of the provisions which have aroused diplomatic representatives of the Allied Powers in Washington, but it was said that one of the amendments might be revised. None of the conferees would indicate what change was contemplated.

There were many reports that some Representatives opposed to the retaliation features would demand a quorum of the House to approve them. This was denied, however, and Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, leader of the opposition, said that he would not demand a quorum unless he was assured that he could defeat the amendments by such a step. Of this he had no hope.

Representative Fitzgerald of New York, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, before the bill went into conference, delivered an ultimatum that the conference report could not be approved without a quorum, provided the bill retained, when it came back to the House, a permanent appropriation for the Tariff Commission.

The Senate amended the House Tariff Commission section by providing a permanent annual appropriation of $300,000 for the commission. Mr. Fitzgerald insists that the Tariff Commission shall come to Congress year after year and present estimates for its expenses.

"I serve notice," said Mr. Fitzgerald addressing Representative Kitchin, the Democratic floor leader, "that if the amendment is retained in the bill in conference, you will need a quorum to approve the conference report in the House."

SANTA FE STARTS FIGHT TO NULLIFY EIGHT-HOUR LAW

President Ripley Announces the Road Will Not Obey the Adamson Measure.

GOING TO SUPREME COURT

SURPRISE TO WASHINGTON

Question of Enforcement of the Law Not Considered When Congress Passed It.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 6.—E. P. Ripley, President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad, declared in a formal statement tonight that the Santa Fé did not intend to comply with the Adamson eight-hour law, recently enacted by Congress to avert a threatened railroad strike, until ordered so to do by the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Ripley's statement says:

"Congress, hastily acting under a threat of four leaders of labor organizations, enacted a so-called eight-hour law, which is nothing more nor less than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent. in the wages of the best-paid men in railway service. It is only fair to the public and to our employes to say that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway Company does not intend to comply with the law until ordered to do so by the court of last resort."

New Phase of Strike Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The announcement of President Ripley of the Santa Fé that his company will not comply with the new Federal eight-hour law for railroad employes struck members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee tonight as presenting an entirely new phase of the strike problem. In all the many hours spent in the discussion of the eight-hour law, it was said, no consideration was given to the actual enforcement of the law. It was accepted that the railroads would abide by the action by Congress as conclusive of the controversy and rely on the ultimate increase of freight rates to reimburse them for the increased expenditure for operation.

Senator Newlands, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, said, when he was told of President Ripley's statement:

"I am not at all prepared to express an opinion as to what course will be taken by either the railroad employes or the Government. I can only state facts. The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee did not take up the matter of procedure after the passage of the bill. We did not undertake to decide how the law should be enforced. The law speaks for itself in its penalty clause, but of course there are legal ways of meeting that end of it.

"I should not say it would be likely that the railroads would allow themselves to get into the position where they would be compelled to comply with the law and pay the men the increased wages while the appeal to the courts was in progress, as there would seem to be no practical way for the railroads to collect the money they would have paid out to the men during the proceedings in the courts.

Means of Enforcing Law.

"Of course it is to be expected that the United States will proceed to enforce the law on the petition of an employe to whom the increased wage is refused, and that the penalty provided in the act would be operative to compel compliance on the part of the railroads."

The theory was advanced tonight that the Santa Fé would undertake to make a test of the constitutionality of the eight-hour law in behalf of all railroads. How this test would be conducted could only be surmised, it was said, but the view was advanced that if the Santa Fé officials refused to operate their road on the eight-hour basis they would be indicted, and in the event of conviction would appeal until the case was taken to the Supreme Court.

Meantime some arrangement might be reached by which the operating employes would work on the present ten-hour basis in the understanding that they would receive the difference between ten-hour and eight-hour pay for the period of the judicial proceedings if the Supreme Court should uphold the law.

All this was merely surmise, but it was pointed out that unless some such practical way of getting the question at issue before the Supreme Court was presented, the court would not take cognizance of it.

One view here was that the railroads would observe the eight-hour day and then appeal to the courts that they were being subjected to an infringement of their constitutional rights. This would not insure the roads against loss should the courts hold that the law was unconstitutional and that the trainmen were not entitled to the extra pay which they had received on the basis of eight hours.

The eight-hour law will not become effective until Jan. 1, 1917.

LABOR LEADER NOT SURPRISED

Thinks Ripley's Attitude Characteristic of Railroad Heads.

Special to The New York Times.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 6.—A. F. Hawley, Secretary-Treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said tonight the new situation resulting from the Santa Fé's defiance would have to be met by new proceedings by the brotherhoods.

"While I cannot say what the attitude of the men would be in case of a refusal to obey the law," said Mr. Hawley, "I think they would let Mr. Ripley know they were still sticking for an eight hour day.

"The attitude, expressed by President Ripley's statement, is simply that expressed all through the proceedings. The railroad heads have rarely made any concessions until forced to do so. And it is not surprising that some would refuse to obey this law until compelled to do so by the courts. President Ripley took this stand during the recent proceedings, and it was not expected he would yield."

38,992 British Officers Lost Since the Conflict Began

LONDON, Aug. 25, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Casualty lists for the first two weeks of August show that the British Army lost 600 officers killed, 1,702 wounded, and 204 missing, a total of 2,500.

This brings up the losses since the beginning of the war to 38,922 officers, of whom 11,442 have been killed or died of wounds, 24,680 wounded, and 2,800 missing.

In the fortnight six Lieutenant Colonels were killed.

NEAR FISTICUFFS ON SENATE FLOOR

Ashurst Rushes at Curtis with Threatening Gesture—Had Called Penrose a Liar.

ROW OVER CORRUPTION BILL

Senate Takes Up the Owen Measure While Marking Time and Airs Party Linen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—In the course of one of the bitterest partisan debates in the Senate in recent years, Senator Ashurst of Arizona passed the lie to Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania today and rushed across the chamber and shook his finger in the face of Senator Curtis of Kansas.

It all grew out of a charge, made during the debate on the Corrupt Practices bill, that Senator Ashurst, a Democrat, had made an illegal use of the mails through franking to his constituents a letter telling of what he had accomplished in the Senate.

Senator Curtis, who is a Republican, made the charge. In answering it Senator Ashurst said that before franking the letter he had been assured by Postmaster General Burleson and A. M. Dockery, Third Assistant Postmaster General, that it was entirely proper to do so. To back up his statement, Mr. Ashurst produced a communication from Mr. Dockery, saying that the letter was permissible under Senator Ashurst's frank. About 50,000 letters were sent out, according to statements made in the Senate.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma had succeeded, after several failures, in having the Senate take up the Corrupt Practices bill. A roll call was necessary to do this. Thirty-two Senators—23 Democrats and 9 Republicans—had voted for Mr. Owen's motion, and 14 Senators—7 Democrats and 7 Republicans—had voted against it. The Republicans who voted to consider the bill were Brady, Clapp, Cummins, Gronna, Jones, Kenyon, La Follette, Norris, and Sterling. The Democrats who voted against the majority of their party—that is, against taking up the bill—were Bankhead, Bryan, Fletcher, Hughes, Martin, Simmons, and Thomas.

Calls Curtis a Pharisee.

Not long after the discussion began Senator Curtis said that Senator Ashurst had used his mailing frank in an improper manner. Thereupon Mr. Ashurst rushed to where the Kansas Senator sat and shaking his finger in Senator Curtis's face, called him the "Pharisee from Kansas." The Senate, seeing that there was to be no bloodshed, laughed at the incident. A few minutes later the lie passed between the Arizona Senator and Senator Penrose, who insinuated that the copper lobby had influenced Senator Ashurst in the action taken to relieve copper from all taxation in the Revenue bill which was passed last night by the Senate.

The Corrupt Practices bill was taken up as a stop-gap until the conferees on the Revenue bill could bring in their report and the session of Congress adjourned. There is opposition to the bill on both sides of the chamber, and a filibuster against it is expected if a serious effort is made to pass it at this session. Senator Simmons told his colleagues that if the bill could not be voted on without a long fight an effort would be made to set it aside for some other measure to fill up the time until the conference report on the Revenue bill was ready for the action of the Senate.

The Corrupt Practices bill has passed the House and was reported favorably to the Senate. For nearly two months, Senator Owen, believing the Democratic leaders and the majority members of the committee would let the bill go over to next session, has been trying to force consideration of the measure so that it might be applied to the approaching election. The Senate today, however, forestalled such an outcome by adopting an amendment proposed by Senator Brady of Idaho making it go into effect on Jan. 1, 1917. Under the terms of the bill expenditures for the election of a President of the United States shall not exceed $400,000 and the expenses of the campaigns for the nomination of a President must be kept down to $50,000 and of a Vice President to $25,000. A candidate for nomination or election for the United States Senate is not allowed to spend over $5,000, and a candidate for the House of Representatives must keep within the sum of $2,500. Candidates who violate the law are disqualified and become guilty of a felony, as do all classes of persons who violate any part of the act. A fine not exceeding $10,000 or imprisonment for not less than one year or more than two years is imposed.

A phonographic rehearsal of the remarks that followed Senator Curtis's charge that Senator Ashurst had used the mails improperly would give a violent shock to the old-fashioned idea of Senatorial courtesy. The first observation by Mr. Ashurst when the Kansas Senator delivered his accusation notified the Senate that trouble was coming.

"The Senator has sweetbreads for brains," shouted the Arizona Senator, "when he makes such a charge as that this letter should not be franked out."

Mr. Ashurst went on to say that he had consulted the Postmaster General and Assistant Postmaster General Dockery and had shown them the text of the Special Train from West for Boss Strikebreaker

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—In response to a telegram from Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, James T. Waddell, member of the firm of Berghoff Bros. & Waddell, who won a reputation as a strikebreaker, left for New York on a special train tonight to take charge of the strike on the Interborough and New York Railways. Mr. Waddell has nearly 5,000 strikebreakers ready to man cars, he said.

The special train bearing Waddell eastward was made up in an hour, and consisted of five baggage cars and a sleeping car. The train left the La Salle Street station of the New York Central Railroad at midnight, and was to run on a twenty-hour schedule to New York.

Though conditions on the elevated and subway and on the surface lines of the New York Railways Company appeared normal at midnight, nearly three hours after a strike of service employes had been declared against those lines, developments came rapidly after that, and as the night wore on, indications multiplied that there would be only partial service today.

The Sixth and Seventh Avenue surface cars had stopped running at 12:30 o'clock this morning. Before that time the motormen ran their cars to the barns without disorder and abandoned them there. There was some congestion because conductors on the way to the barns hung out the signs, "No Passengers," and directed the motormen not to stop on signals from persons in the street.

Strike pickets appeared at the Bronx Park terminal of the subway shortly after midnight and intercepted motormen and guards on their way to trains about to leave the station. Most of the guards readily joined the strike, but the motormen went to their posts and ran the trains out. Strikebreakers took the places of many of the guards, but none of the trains which went out was fully manned. Although the strikers and the strikebreakers mingled freely on the platforms, there was no disorder.

Screens Protect Motormen.

The motormen on the trains leaving the station were protected against possible missiles by iron screens attached over the glass in the front and sides of their booths.

Trains were leaving the station so infrequently in the early hours of the morning that it was impossible to tell to what extent the strike order would be heeded.

The first subway trains manned by strikebreakers left the West Farms Terminal shortly before 1 A. M. The motormen were regulars who didn't strike. The guards were all strikebreakers. Aboard each train the Interborough had placed a group of husky private, uniformed guards.

Strikers hissed and booed as the four trains rolled out of the terminal inside eleven minutes. There were no policemen on the trains and only a few were stationed at the terminal.

Traffic Manager Delaney of the New York Railways Company announced at midnight that cars of that company would return to their barns at 1 A. M., not to run again until 6 o'clock this morning.

A few minutes before midnight the motormen of surface cars of the "green line" or New York Railways line began taking their cars into the barns at Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street, Ninth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, and Eighth Avenue and Fiftieth Street and abandoning them. Only one car was seen to pass the Ninth Avenue barn after midnight. It was a Sixth Avenue car, and, while the crowd of strikers and sympathizers who had gathered on the corners and about the barn shouted at its motorman, there was no attempt to stop him by force.

Crowds of the men who were leaving the cars gathered in the vicinity of the barns and shouted to motormen and conductors of all the cars that came along, telling them to "ditch" their cars in the barns. Other crowds paraded from one barn to another, calling to the

Chairman Straus, Hoping to Check Strike Quickly, Subpoenas Interboro' and Union Leaders to Conference

Chairman Oscar S. Straus of the Public Service Commission initiated just before midnight an eleventh hour attempt to avert a general traction tie-up. Mr. Straus subpoenaed President Shonts and General Manager Hedley of the Interborough, General Organizer William B. Fitzgerald of the carmen's union, and William Conway, Chairman of the New York Railways Employes' Committee. All were directed to appear before the commission at 11 o'clock this morning for a general investigation.

Mr. Straus told THE TIMES, after the subpoenas were issued, that his last effort to stop a general strike would be carried out regardless of happenings during the night. He declared he had been in close touch with all the parties to the controversy throughout the evening and had not abandoned hope of a peaceful settlement.

The commission early this morning issued this statement:

> The Public Service Commission, under the powers conferred upon it by the Public Service Commissions law, will begin an investigation of the strike upon the Interborough lines at the offices of the commission, 120 Broadway, at 11 o'clock today. The commission possesses the right to investigate conditions of service rendered upon the railroads and street railroads under its jurisdiction. Chairman Oscar S. Straus, who played a prominent part in settling the strike of the employes of the New York Railways and Third Avenue Companies early in August, remained in close touch with the situation all afternoon and evening, doing his utmost to prevent a strike. When the news came that a strike had been ordered, Chairman Straus directed the issuance of subpoenas.

When Mr. Straus was informed later that the New York Railways men had voted to strike, he expressed great disappointment, but said he would not cease his attempt to restore amicable relations.

SHONTS DEFIANT; EXPECTS VICTORY

Believes Majority of Men Will "Stick," but Says He Will Win if All Go Out.

ASSERTS TRAINS WILL RUN

If Police Back Him, He Is Sure Service Will Be Kept Up as in Normal Times.

"We are 100 per cent. ready," said President Theodore P. Shonts of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company when he was informed at one minute past 10 o'clock last night in the headquarters of the Interborough officers at the Hotel Belmont that the strike had been called.

"Men who are responsible for the rapid transit system of a city like New York must naturally prepare when war is declared on them, and we are prepared. Not only have the great majority of our employes signed the individual contracts with the company but the percentage is highest among the most skilled workmen.

"H. G. Stott, superintendent of the motor power department, reports that 100 per cent. of the men in his department have signed the contracts. The power houses and the other branches of the department employ about 1,100 men, and these are the most skilled of all our workmen.

"James S. Doyle, Superintendent of the car equipment department, reports that between 98 and 99 per cent. of his men have signed. Of the 370 motormen employed on the subway and elevated lines all but thirteen—five on the subway and eight on the elevated—have signed. And more than enough of the guards, the least skilled of the operating employes, have signed up to keep the normal train service going.

Believes Majority Will Stick.

"Of course we are not expecting that all of these men will stick to their contracts, but we hope and believe that the great majority of them will. We are waiting for the other side to make the first move. We expect to maintain the normal service with the regular employes. Only in case a considerable number of these men who have signed the contracts—a sufficient number to make it impossible to keep up the normal service—go back on them will we use strikebreakers.

"At present we have about 2,750 strikebreakers on hand. We have sleeping accommodations in the car barns for 8,000 men, but we expect to use most of these, if at all, for our own men. We need police protection for our property and our men; we have asked for it, and it has been promised."

To this James L. Quackenbush, general counsel for the Interborough, added: "If there are enough blue coats and brass buttons, and a few night sticks—not revolvers—where they are needed, the strike won't last long."

President Shonts, Vice President Hedley, and their staff were preparing to remain indefinitely in their headquarters at the Belmont to handle the problems as they arose, but their mood was one of entire confidence.

Shonts Issues Statement.

Mr. Shonts issued the following statement on the Interborough situation:

> The request to arbitrate the conditions under which the 9,000 agreements were signed came from a small minority of the men—none of whom presumably had signed. We have replied that the right of making a contract is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, and that the courts have established well-defined procedure for determining when contracts have been entered into as a result of duress or fraud.
> In other words, if these contracts are not the result of the full exercise of a privilege of citizenship, it is not necessary for us to agree to arbitrate. The courts themselves will take cognizance of any such cases presented to them, and we abide by their decisions. The court will likewise hold responsible any witness giving perjured testimony, a power not possessed by any lay arbitrative tribunal which might be established.
> The plain and simple issue is whether, because an outside union wants to supplant and fasten itself upon the organization formed by 9,800 out of 11,700 of our men, the right of the overwhelming majority of

STRIKEBREAKERS READY FOR ACTION

Nearly 3,000 Men Mobilized at Terminals, While Police Prepare to Keep Order.

AUTHORITIES MOVE QUICKLY

Uniformed Force of 5,000 Held at Stations, Aided by Detectives on General Duty.

Nearly 3,000 strikebreakers, gathered from all parts of the country, many of them mobilized here since Labor Day, filled the barns of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company above Ninety-ninth Street last night and, shortly after 10 o'clock, moved in large companies to the subway and elevated terminals, to be ready to step into the places of the regular employes as soon as they struck. About 500 were massed at 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, the terminal for the local lines of the Bronx division of the subway, and as many more went to the Bronx Park terminal. Similar groups waited for duty at the 242d Street and 137th Street terminals of the Broadway division of the subway.

The passing of the peril of a railroad strike afforded the Interborough an unusual opportunity to obtain emergency employes, for groups of men assembled by the railroads in Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis, Philadelphia, and other cities, released as soon as Congress passed the eight-hour bill, hurried to New York under orders from General Manager Frank Hedley.

Seek Police Protection.

About 9 o'clock last night, when the strike vote was being taken, officials of the Interborough were busy lining the men up and making efforts to obtain police protection for them. Applications for members of the uniformed force were made at Police Headquarters and precinct stations with varying results. The officials said they were ready to put the men on their trains and at other work just as soon as the regular employes walked out. It was insisted that the strikebreakers were experienced in the work assigned to them, but this was questioned by the union leaders.

The strikebreakers have been living, since their arrival in the city, in the car barns, where cots have been put up for them. They have spent their days idling, throwing dice, holding boxing matches, and eating meals provided for them by the Interborough. In the last few days the regular employes have had to pass through crowds in each barn and ugly words have been exchanged.

The principal barns converted into dormitories are those at 179th Street and Third Avenue, 129th Street and Third Avenue, 159th Street and Eighth Avenue, the Bronx Park terminal and the 242d Street terminal.

5,000 Policemen Held in Readiness.

Police arrangements connected with the strike had been perfected even before the first of the meetings at which the strike was authorized had been called to order. Early in the evening Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger had had all the seventeen Inspectors of the department assembled in his office in Police Headquarters, and there had gone over with them his plans for preserving order.

The 5,000 men whom, the Chief Inspector announced, he planned to use had been held in various station houses throughout the city, and when the Inspectors left Headquarters the Police Department was prepared to handle an immediate strike. The Chief Inspector said more men would be available in the event of an emergency, for all details had been abolished at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Only the men in military training on Staten Island had not been disturbed, and would not be, Schmittberger said, unless their assistance proved absolutely necessary. The Inspector remarked with a smile that General Manager Hedley had estimated that

COMPANIES WELCOME FIGHT

"All Agreements Off," Says Shonts, Announcing a Contest to the Finish.

Mitchel Speeding Here to Check the Strike

Mayor Mitchel will arrive in New York tonight. He had intended motoring here from Plattsburg, arriving Friday, but he will now rush here by train.

At 1 o'clock this morning the Mayor, then near St. Johnsburg, Vt., talked with Theodore Rousseau, his Secretary, on the long distance telephone and was apprised of the situation. He told Mr. Rousseau he thought he would be able to reach St. Johnsburg in time to catch a train that would bring him into the city late this afternoon.

The transit strike which officers of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes threatened would "paralyze traffic in this city as it was never paralyzed before" began last night.

Employes of both the subway and elevated divisions of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company voted to stop work because the company had refused to release the men from the "master and servant" contracts, and the men on the New York Railways Company, the so-called Green Car system, voted to go out also. Care was taken to announce that this strike was not a sympathetic one, but had been called because the men believed the company had violated its agreement with them made last month.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of both companies, received the news with what seemed to be satisfaction. He said:

"All agreements are off. This is a fight to the finish. And we are 100 per cent. prepared."

Then he issued orders to concentrate 2,750 strikebreakers at division terminals of the subway and elevated systems.

Approximately 18,000 men are employed on the lines affected which include, in addition to the subway and elevated lines, practically all the surface lines operating in Manhattan except the Second Avenue road and the Third Avenue system and its subsidiaries.

Men of the Third Avenue system are to meet today to consider the general traffic situation.

B. R. T. Unaffected.

So far the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has not been affected and it was said last night it would not be.

Trolley service in Richmond was reported unaffected with the promise that the men would continue work. They are satisfied with the increase in wages won by the strike of last month.

Men of the New York & Queens County Railway Company, operating in Long Island City and Queens, were said last night to be restless and to be awaiting action by the men here.

The Union Railway and the lines of Westchester are affiliated with the Third Avenue line, and presumably will be guided by the action of the Third Avenue's men today.

Little disorder marked the early hours of the strike, though crowds gathered at some of the elevated and subway stations to boo and jeer at the men who continued to operate trains. But the police dispersed these gatherings quickly. They were ready for any emergency. Hours before the strike was called Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger had assigned 5,000 men to strike duty, paying especial attention to the guarding of power houses, sub-stations, yards, and platforms. Uniformed men were assigned to all train and surface cars.

Headquarters had been opened by the Interborough officials in the Hotel Belmont even before the strike was called, and leaders of the Amalgamated Association had established themselves in the Hotel Continental. From these points careful watch was kept on the progress of the strike.

Strike Nominally Over Contract.

Ostensibly the men voted to quit work because General Manager Frank Hedley of the Interborough Company had declined on Tuesday to release his employes from contracts binding them to work for two years under their present terms of employment.

Actually the strike resulted, in the opinion of men who have followed affairs closely since the strike of last month, because the Amalgamated Association found itself in a position where nothing less than a strike could prevent the destruction of its grip on New York's traffic situation:

On Tuesday Mr. Hedley flatly declined the union's demand that he undo the work he had already begun of bringing the Interborough men into a sort of private union of their own. Yesterday he admitted, with frankness that amounted to belligerency, that he was contemplating a similar effort among the men of the New York Railways Company. In effect, he challenged the union to do its worst.

General Organizer William B. Fitzgerald and Louis Fridiger, local counsel for the union, accused the Interborough and the New York Railways Company of bad faith; they charged, in effect, that the officials had employed their time since the peace agreement of last Aug. 7 in strengthening their position and preparing for an effort that should disrupt the union. Interborough officials took no pains to deny this. Whatever the merits of the case, at least they were prepared, and regarded the present as a satisfactory time to fight out the question of unionism to a finish.

Expect Trouble to be Short.

James L. Quackenbush, general counsel for the company, spoke the mind of all the officials, apparently, when he said:

"If there are enough bluecoats and brass buttons and night sticks—not revolvers—where they are needed, the strike won't last long."

Other officials declared they expected most of the men to stand by them, and President Shonts said he was prepared to replace those who quit with strikebreakers.

The New York Railways Company admits that many of its men, probably one-half, according to Mr. Hedley, are members of the Amalgamated Association, and the General Manager told Inspector Schmittberger last night he did not hope to operate more than one-quarter of his surface cars.

The Interborough contends, however, that of its 11,000 men only about 2,000 have affiliated with the association, while some 9,000 employes have signed the Master and Servant contracts. Last night Mr. Hedley and others said they expected a majority of these 9,000 men to remain loyal to the company and it was pointed out that the strike vote which, if it proved successful, would affect 11,000 men on the Interborough alone, had been adopted by less than 2,000 of the Interborough employes.

SUBWAY AND ELEVATED MEN VOTE TO STRIKE

Cheering Throng of 1,500 Begins War on Interborough—News Rushed to Train Sheds by Auto.

The strike on the subway and elevated lines was declared officially at 9:29 o'clock, a few minutes after about 1,500 men, tightly packed into Lyceum Hall, at Eighty-sixth Street and Third Avenue, had heard the report of the Chairman of the committee that waited on General Manager Hedley of the Interborough on Tuesday afternoon.

Michael Curley, a motorman, was Chairman of that committee, and he read a report which said that Manager Hedley and the Interborough officials had refused to return individual contracts they had made with employes of the Interborough. These, according to the union leaders, take from the men the right of collective bargaining. Curley said that Mr. Hedley had advised the committee that any man who wanted his contract returned would have to go to court to get it, and that the officials had refused to submit to arbitration the fairness or unfairness of the methods employed to obtain the contracts.

"Brothers, you have heard the report. What is your pleasure?" the motorman asked on concluding the report.

The hall was in tumult in a second. Men jumped upon chairs and waved hats and coats, while others raced about the aisles whistling and shouting: "Strike! Strike!"

The shouting continued for several minutes, the men on the platform acting as cheer leaders and urging the men on the floor to "whoop it up."

Peter J. O'Brien, Second Vice President of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Men, then called for a more orderly strike vote, and again the question was carried by acclamation. On a second vote it was made unanimous, and O'Brien announced formally that the strike was on at 9:29.

When this announcement was made two carmen, who had been waiting on the platform, dashed to the door and gave a signal to men in waiting automobiles, who sped away to carry the strike order to the men at work on the subways and elevated lines, and to order them to take their trains into the sheds and leave them there. Some of these couriers headed for train sheds while others hastened to elevated and subway stations.

When the tumultuous throng in Lyceum Hall had quieted down, after posing with arms up as though shouting while a photographer took a flashlight picture, Chairman O'Brien delivered an attack upon officials of the Interborough company. He referred to charges that the men had been urged to strike by outsiders, and called them to witness that none of the "aliens" on the platform, where the union leaders and organizers had their seats, had coerced them. Of the company officials he said:

"They have been advertising in the papers for strikebreakers." He was interrupted by hisses and catcalls. "They have been trying to intimidate you, to scare you men," he continued, and somebody yelled: "To fire us!" "They have only a few hundred strikebreakers," O'Brien continued, "and these they parade from barn to barn to make you think they have enough men to take your places.

"Let me tell you men that you are not alone in this. You will have the support of every member of the Amalgamated Union in the United States and Canada. And let me tell you that you have nothing to fear from the company or anybody else. Before you get through this company will do as it did three weeks ago. It will take off its hat and bow submission to you."

O'Brien told the men that voting to strike was not all they had to do; that their work had only begun. He said the important thing was to get all of the men of the Interborough into the union, and told them to consider Lyceum Hall their headquarters, and to bring their fellow-workers to sign the union pledge.

The union leaders seemed to realize that to sign up other subway and elevated employes was the most important work of the next few days, for about 11,000 of them are affected by the strike called at the comparatively small meeting of last night. Among the men at this meeting were observed blue-shirted workers of the Second Avenue surface line, which is not involved in the strike, and men with the dark straw uniform caps of the Third Avenue Railway, who are also unionized but not yet involved in the strike. The Third Avenue men will hold a meeting in Brevoort Hall today to decide whether to call a sympathetic strike.

Louis Fridiger, attorney for the New York carmen, aroused the men to further cheering by telling them that he had never seen such a demonstration as theirs when they voted to strike. He ridiculed the statement attributed to Interborough officials that the men were not intelligent enough to act for themselves, but were compelled to call in "alien" agitators.

"Their objection to these men," Fridiger said, "is because they know the days of your oppression are over."

Fridiger told the men that the company officials had tried to intimidate them by discharging men who refused to take off their union buttons yesterday on coming to work. A number of these men who had been discharged were in the hall to tell their grievances.

In all, it was estimated that about 100 of the workers had been discharged, though some of the strike leaders made the number larger. One group of thirty guards said they had been met in the 145th Street subway station on the Lenox Avenue line by a representative of the company and told that they must choose between the union button and the company badge, and that they had walked out together. Several said they had received the same treatment on the elevated lines, and with these cases in mind speakers at the meeting referred to the situation as a lockout and not a strike.

Fridiger read from a newspaper to quote an Interborough official as saying that a strike would provoke violence and that fire would be met by fire. "That is very significant," said the strikers' lawyer. "If the Interborough meant that as a threat or a challenge, it will not take them long to get their fingers burned."

Fridiger said that Oscar S. Straus was "one of the great men of the country" and could consider questions of labor impartially. The audience broke into cheering at this and applauded every mention of Mr. Straus's name.

The speaker was earnest in urging the men to refrain from violence and intimidation. He charged that the officials of the Interborough were "artists" in intimidation and would seek to provoke the strikers to violence.

"Leave the intimidation to them," said Fridiger, "and don't let them stir you to violence. Don't use force; don't do anything that will turn the public against you. When you leave the hall go to your brothers on the line and ask them to support you, but do not attempt to use force with them. The law gives you a right to picket, but the pickets must be orderly and law-abiding."

William B. Fitzgerald was the next speaker. He said he would have avoided the strike had it been possible; that he personally did not want the strike. "But my conscience is clear," he shouted, "and now the only thing to think about is victory."

The speaker said the Interborough officials had called him a "highbinder" and an "alien," but that the "finger of suspicion" would never point to him as it had pointed to some among the company officials. He answered a reported insinuation that he might abscond with money from the treasury of the union by declaring that he expected to spend the remainder of his life in New York City and State. When questioned after his speech whether this meant that he intended to organize the transit employes upstate, Mr. Fitzgerald replied:

"I can't answer that yet, but my next move will be toward Brooklyn."

During the meeting Deputy Police Commissioner Lord drove up to the hall. He said he was out looking the situation over and placing policemen where he thought they might be needed most. Uniformed men were conspicuous and plentiful wherever large crowds had collected.

"SERVICE CONTRACTS" BRING STRIKE CRISIS

Labor Leaders Say N. Y. Railways Action Violates Mayor's Agreement of Aug. 7.

The strike situation became critical yesterday afternoon, after a conference of the union leaders with Frank Hedley, General Manager of both the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and New York Railways Company. The men went to Mr. Hedley to discuss the twenty-six wage and working condition demands made by the organized workers of the New York Railways Company, but they refused to continue the negotiations when Mr. Hedley told them that the New York Railways Company was "considering" asking its employes to sign individual service contracts, as had been done by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

This brought the New York Railways Company into a controversy for which its close relation to the Interborough was solely responsible. The two companies have the same officers and for the most part the same Directors. Theodore P. Shonts is President and Mr. Hedley General Manager of both. Thus the negotiations for both companies have been handled by the same officers, although their relations with the union were far from the same.

The New York Railways Company was a party to the surface car strike settlement of Aug. 7 underwritten by Mayor Mitchel and Chairman Oscar S. Straus of the Public Service Commission, which obligated it to confer with its organized employes on all future differences, and failing to agree to accept arbitration.

The Interborough was not involved and was not a party to the settlement and not obligated to confer with its organized employes. Hence the Interborough took the position that it had the right to ask its employes to sign individual service contracts.

The union leaders at their conference with Mr. Hedley declared that, whatever the Interborough might have done, the New York Railways Company certainly was debarred from seeking individual contracts by the settlement of Aug. 7.

One of the first questions asked of Mr. Hedley by Louis Fridiger, counsel for the union, was whether he intended to present contracts to the employes of the New York Railways Company.

"Such contracts have been drafted and set up in type," admitted Mr. Hedley.

"Have you issued any of them?" demanded Lawyer Fridiger.

"Not yet. But we have considered it," said Mr. Hedley.

"When are you going to send them out?"

"I don't know," replied Mr. Hedley, whereupon the union leaders took a few minutes in private to decide what to do.

Then Mr. Fridiger and William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the union, told Mr. Hedley that the conferences, as far as New York Railways negotiations were concerned, were "all off."

"We consider that the New York Railways Company has broken its agreement of Aug. 7 by considering the sending of individual contracts to its employes," said Mr. Fitzgerald. "The conference, therefore, is off. Good-by."

Mr. Hedley later said he had gained the impression that Mr. Fitzgerald's declaration did not merely refer to the conference of yesterday, but to all negotiations under the agreement of Aug. 7. It was, he understood, an announcement that the union leaders felt free to call a sympathetic strike on the lines of the New York Railways Company.

Mr. Hedley frankly admitted to the labor leaders at the conference, although the Interboro controversy was not properly a subject for consideration, that he had been dismissing Interboro employes who had been active in the union or had absented themselves from work to aid the organization. Mr. Hedley could not tell, exactly, how many Interboro men he had dismissed.

"It may be 75 or it may be 125," he said after the conference, "but I think 100 is about right. Mr. Fitzgerald asked me at the conference whether I would admit that the Interborough had been dismissing men. I told him yes, that all men who did not report for work were dismissed, among them the members of the committee who called on me yesterday to demand that individual contracts be canceled. I told him the company would continue to dismiss men for such causes, and also in every case where members of the union attempted to intimidate non-union employes. I said to him: 'I said I would dismiss men for these reasons, and I will. This sort of thing must stop. The company will not tolerate having its loyal employes intimidated.'"

Mr. Hedley denied, however, that the Interborough had also dismissed employes because they wore buttons of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. He made no attempt to conceal that he expected the union to call strikes on both the elevated and subway lines, as well as on the New York Railways surface car system. Indeed, he seemed more than willing for the union to take such action. James L. Quackenbush, one of the lawyers for the Interborough and the New York Railways Companies, was equally positive of this during the day. So was Theodore Rousseau, secretary to Mayor Mitchel. In view of this he will have another talk with Mr. Mitchel by telephone early this morning. The Mayor is on his way to New York City from Plattsburg in an automobile.

UNION EXPLAINS NEW BREAK.

New York Railways Co. Officials Are Accused of Bad Faith.

William B. Fitzgerald and Louis Fridiger, organizer and counsel, respectively, for the carmen's union, issued a statement yesterday in which they said that "it was the individual and unanimous opinion of every member" of the committee representing the employes of the New York Railways Company, which met with Mr. Hedley, that the company had begun and continued to act "in absolute bad faith, in utter disregard of the agreement and spirit of the agreement of Aug. 7."

"At the previous conferences held pursuant to agreement of settlement of Aug. 7," said the statement "all twenty-six demands of the men had been taken up and discussed between the officials of the company and the committee representing the employes and their spokesmen. Some of these demands had been granted, some left for arbitration and others were to be redrafted.

"At the beginning of the conferences Mr. Hedley was told by the spokesmen for the committee that information had been received to the effect that working agreements or contracts of employment similar to those circulated among the employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company were being circulated among the employes of the New York Railways Company and he was asked if this was true. His answer at first was merely that it had been discussed.

"Without going into detail, suffice it to say that further questions were put to Mr. Hedley by the spokesmen for the committee and answers received, the gist of which is as follows:

"That the officials of the company had discussed the advisability of obtaining written contracts of employment for a definite period from the employes of the New York Railways Company, and that it was contemplated that such contracts of employment should be obtained from them; that the question was discussed as to whether or not these contracts would be in violation of the agreement of settlement of Aug. 7; that the suggestion and discussion with reference to the advisability of getting all the New York Railways Company's employes under contract had taken place not only subsequent to Aug. 7, the date of the New York Railways settlement, but they first began after the conferences which were being held between the officials of the New York Railways Company and the comittee of employes and their spokesmen; that these discussions had reached such a point that the contracts had actually been set up in type and proofs had already been submitted to Mr. Hedley, which he had seen and read, but that he was doing nothing with them at the present time, although it was contemplated and expected that they would be circulated for signature in the future.

"He refused to state when or how soon in the future these contracts would be circulated, pleading that although he was the General Manager and Vice President of the company, he did not know when it would be. In conclusion, Mr. Hedley admitted that the contract contemplated to be signed by the New York Railways Company employes was identical with the one circulated and signed by the Interborough employes.

"Mr. Hedley was then requested to grant a few minutes' adjournment of the conference so that the individual members of the committee and their advisers could confer, and it was the individual and unanimous opinion of every member of the committee that the company had been, and is, acting in absolute bad faith; in utter disregard of the agreement and spirit of the agreement of Aug. 7, and contrary to the spirit in which they, the committee, had entered into and conducted the conferences; and they instructed their spokesmen that it was their unanimous opinion that the conference should be brought to a close."

MASS MEETING IN GARDEN.

Strikers Arranging for a Monster Demonstration Tonight.

A mass meeting will probably be held tonight in Madison Square Garden, according to announcement by Chairman O'Brien. He said that the committee was trying to rent the Garden so that the employes of the surface car lines, as well as the elevated and subway men, could attend.

At 1 o'clock this morning a meeting was held in Lyceum Hall for employes who were unable to attend the earlier meetings. The hall remained open continuously and a meeting of the striking employes will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

B. R. T. MEN NOT TO STRIKE.

Canvass Indicates They Are Loyal to Company, Which Raised Pay.

A canvass of employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company made yesterday indicated that they would not be involved in any strike on the Interborough Rapid Transit or on the New York Railways Companies' lines. More than thirty motormen and conductors on the B. R. T. during the afternoon gave expression to this opinion. Union representatives have attempted to organize the Brooklyn employes, these men said, but their eforts were unsuccessful. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has just given to its men another rise in pay.

"There'll be no strike here," said one conductor on the Bergen Street line. Here in Brooklyn the company treats us fairly. There were some of the union organizers over here trying to get us to form a local, but some of the boys got after 'm and handled 'em pretty roughly, and we haven't seen any of 'em since."

QUEENS CARMEN MARK TIME.

Uutimatum of Company Deters Many from Readiness to Strike.

Union men employed on the lines of the New York & Queens Railway, which operates the trolley system throughout Queens, were late last night working under waiting orders. It was understood at that time that they were to be governed by orders from union headquarters in Manhattan. Daniel J. Haley and members of the union committee were at their headquarters in the Jackson Avenue Park Hotel, Long Island City, where a continuous meeting was held, union men arriving and leaving as their duties permitted.

The general understanding seemed to be that no action on their part would be taken until today, and that it would be governed by the Manhattan situation. It was said at the company's offices that the ultimatum issued by William O. Wood, President and General Manager of the railway, in which he said that the company was endeavoring to carry out an agreement with the men, and that if any of them left at the dictation of the union, their places would be filled by others, had a considerable influence on many of the men. The company, officials said, was confident that if a strike were called, more than 75 per cent. of their men would refuse to quit work.

SURFACE CARS STOP AFTER MIDNIGHT

Crippling of Service Grows.

It was difficult, in the period immediately following the strike, to gauge the exact extent of it because of the normal diminution in service as midnight approached. Moreover, the strikers had been instructed by their leaders to finish their runs before putting their cars in the barns or leaving their trains at a terminal.

Many men had several hours to work before finishing their shifts. In a number of instances the employes refused to complete their time, preferring in their impatience to quit as soon as they reached a barn or a terminal. The first surface car reported deserted was run into the car barn at Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street at 11:45 P. M. and abandoned. There were no strikebreakers used on the surface lines.

James L. Quackenbush, attorney for the Interborough and the New York Railway Companies, asserted late last night that the first reports received by the Interborough showed that two ticket sellers had quit their posts voluntarily and that two others had been thrown down the subway stairs. He could not tell in what stations the violence was alleged to have occurred. In each case he said Chief Inspector Schmittberger had been asked to furnish police protection and had promised that it would be attended to.

Up to midnight the subway and elevated roads handled the homeward-bound throngs from the theatres much as though no strike had been called. The crowds in Times Square seemed the same in size and the trains moved them just as rapidly, the only thing to be noticed being an extra car on some of the local subway trains. Apparently these trains had been sent out when the company was uncertain as to how many more would follow and meant to make the most of its resources.

In thirteen minutes this morning—12:15 to 12:28 A. M.—twelve Subway trains passed through the Times Square station. Of these trains six were expresses and the same number locals. Of the six downtown trains four were expresses and two locals, and of the uptown trains two expresses and four locals. The expresses were running on a five-minute schedule and the locals on a headway of about four minutes.

On the elevated systems at the same time this morning the trains were running on schedules varying from five to ten minutes. Most of the trains, subway as well as elevated, were still being operated by the regular employes of the Interborough, it was said at the stations.

There was no disorder at the Bronx Park Terminal before midnight. The men went off duty quietly and declined to discuss the strike. Several representatives of the Amalgamated appeared among them, but were ordered away by officials of the Interborough.

At Interborough headquarters in the Hotel Belmont word was received at midnight that crews on the Green Car lines were already turning in their cars at the New York Railways Company's various barns.

Ticket agents and collectors in several of the stations denied any knowledge of just when the actual effects of the strike would be felt. They agreed, however, when asked about the matter at 11 o'clock, that up to that hour there were the same number of trains being operated as ran every night at that time.

Interborough officials asserted the movement of the strikebreakers did not mean that the company had abandoned its hope of being able to run all trains with its own men. It was explained that some of its employes would strike, undoubtedly, and that the remainder might not be properly distributed for maintaining normal service on all routes until they had been reassigned after the number remaining loyal and the regular runs of the faithful workers were known.

Hedley Expects Surface Trouble.

General Manager Hedley admitted, however, that the union was in a position to cripple the service of the New York Railways Company to an even greater extent than during the previous strike. The union claims a nearly 100 per cent. organization on the green car system, but Mr. Hedley cut this claim in half.

"Service on the green car system will be crippled if a sympathy strike is called, but we will be able to run most of our trains on the subway and on the elevated," Mr. Hedley said. "We expect a greater impairment of service on the surface lines because the union on that system has apparently been winning, and our men have joined the organization for that reason. We expect, therefore, that fewer cars on the green car system will be in operation than during the last strike.

"About 9,000 of our 11,000 service employes on the Interborough have promised to remain loyal in case of a strike," said Mr. Hedley. "Few, if any, of the motormen will quit their cars."

Later Manager Hedley sent out an order to the car barn at West Twenty-third Street and North River to take off all cars of the Twenty-third Street crosstown line at midnight. The men were told to return to work at 6 o'clock this morning.

Guards who got through work at the 155th Street terminus of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated lines volunteered to make extra runs, according to the train dispatcher there, but he told them to go home, as he had all the men he needed. Some 150 strikebreakers were on hand, and two of these were sent out on each train against an emergency. They simply sat in the cars, however, and none reported on their return to the terminus having been called on to assist in operating the trains.

Shortly after midnight this morning the police of the West Thirtieth Street Station received orders to patrol the stations of the Ninth Avenue Elevated and a patrolman was placed on each platform at every station. At 12:10 A. M. a hurry call was sent to the West Forty-seventh Street Station for the reserves to be sent to Fifty-third Street and Eighth Avenue to quell a disturbance at the elevated station at that point. The police found that on account of the slow schedule of trains 200 passengers had accumulated who were growing impatient. With the arrival of the police quiet was restored.

The ticket agent at the uptown Times Square station deserted his post shortly after the strike order was given, with the result that passengers filed on to the station platform without tickets. Two men attempted to enter the cashier's cage of the station, and when the ticket chopper, who had remained loyal to the company, attempted to remonstrate with them he was severely beaten. In the excitement the two men escaped.

Will Be Short Strike, Carmen Say.

William B. Fitzgerald and a group of leaders and organizers of the traction employes, declared at midnight that the strike would be short. "It will be one big bluff by the Interborough and then a showdown," said Fitzgerald.

The union leaders estimated that the elevated and subway lines could be operated at one-fifth their usual capacity with strikebreakers today, but they asserted the New York Railways Company would be unable to turn a wheel.

They explained that the strike would be one of gradual growth, since the men were advised to finish their runs before quitting. Many of them, they said, put up their cars as soon as they reached a barn or halted their trains when they reached a terminal, proving that they were eager to go out. The full force of the walkout, they declared, would be felt some time this morning.

COAXED MEN FROM TRAINS.

Strikers Went from Meeting Halls to Elevated Platforms.

The men who attended last night's strike meetings became self-appointed walking delegates to call the workers out, and flocked to the nearest elevated stations on the Third Avenue line, as the meeting of Interborough employes had been held on Third Avenue, to induce the motormen and conductors to quit.

The compartments partitioned off for motormen on these cars had been heavily screened on the outside during the day by the company, to protect motormen from any missiles that might be hurled at the windows. Up to 1 o'clock this morning there was little evidence of actual disorder, but there were reports from near the meeting hall that many of the strikers were drinking freely and growing hilarious in saloons, and it was feared that there might be trouble before daylight.

Many of the strikers hurried to the Third Avenue elevated station at Eighty-fourth Street when the Lyceum Hall meeting was over and induced the ticket seller there to abandon his post and join them. A strikebreaker and a policeman were on the platform at the time. They both stepped into the ticket seller's cage and business went on as usual. The strikers, however, remained on the platform and as each train came along they boarded it and told the guards and motormen of the strike order. Many of the guards promised they would make the trip their last and quit as soon as they reached the terminal.

At this and other stations in the neighborhood policemen were sent to the platforms and warned the strikers against laying their hands on conductors or motormen while trying to induce them to quit.

A group of the men who had attended the Plaza Assembly Hall meeting congregated at Fifty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue, the end of the Sixth Avenue line, and shouted as each car came to the terminus: "Put her in the house!"

The depot for this line is on Sixth Avenue between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, and the motormen took their cars back to it and abandoned them without delay.

How to judge the safety of a bank

THE mere volume of any bank's deposits tells little about that bank's strength. Deposits are debts. Financial strength cannot be measured by debts.

A safer judgment of strength is found in the character of the bank's assets. The more liquid (quickly salable) its assets the more promptly it meets demands in times of stress.

At least 95% of the Columbia Trust Company's demand deposits are in liquid form—cash, or securities which can within a few hours be turned into cash.

14,000 policemen would be sufficient to prevent disorder. The whole force totals only 11,000 men.

Points at which guards would be especially necessary, according to the Inspector, were the power houses at Seventy-fourth Street and the East River and Fifty-ninth Street and the North River, the fifteen sub-stations throughout the city where power was reduced for the use of the cars, and the railroad yards at 159th Street and Eighth Avenue, 148th Street and Lenox Avenue, 129th Street and Third Avenue, and Ninety-ninth Street and Third Avenue, in Manhattan, and at 242d Street and Broadway, 180th Street in West Farms, 179th Street and Third Avenue, and 133d Street and Southern Boulevard, in the Bronx.

Detectives Placed on Duty.

Men had already been detailed, Mr. Schmittberger said, for duty inside and outside these places, while other men had been assigned to trains, cars, and elevated and subway stations, two or three to each train, a single man to each surface car, and several men to the station platforms.

The news of the vote to strike taken at the Lyceum Hall meeting was telephoned to Inspector Schmittberger at once, and he passed on the news to Mr. Hedley, with whom he was in frequent telephonic communication. He told Mr. Hedley he understood there were men in the meeting who did not belong there. The Inspector's final move in preparation for the strike was to call in detectives from all the branch bureaus and give them roving assignments to mix with strikers and seek to check disorderly outbursts before they got under way.

Acting Inspector Coleman, in charge of the Borough of Brooklyn, remained at Police Headquarters in that borough last night with a large force ready to meet any emergency. Up to midnight the subway strike had resulted in no trouble in Brooklyn. Fifty detectives from the Sixth Branch were scattered about the Borough Hall, Hoyt, Nevins, and Atlantic Avenue stations and uniformed reserves were kept ready in every station house, though the subway line passes through but two precincts, Adams and Bergen Streets. Subway service appeared normal at a late hour. Tickets were on sale as usual and the regular employes seemed to be on duty.

Deputy Police Comissioner Godley, in charge of police arrangements of the strike, announced at midnight that the 4,000-odd policemen of all ranks who were awaiting the emergency were on their way to guard the property of the Interborough and New York Railways Company, as previously mapped out.

Thirst and Poverty Afflict Men.

The strikebreakers at the various "mobilization camps" are a cosmopolitan lot of all ages and sizes. Some of those who are at the Van Cortlandt Park subway terminal are also in need of funds, as a TIMES reporter who managed to get into their quarters last night quickly ascertained.

The guard on duty at the head of the steps leading to the quarters of the strikebreakers permitted the reporter to reach the top of the stairs. Immediately he was surrounded by a crowd of from thirty to fifty strikebreakers.

"Give me half a dollar, please," said one of the men, as he held out his hand to the reporter.

"Give me a quarter," implored another.

"Take us fellows out and buy us some beer, and we'll tell you anything you want to know," the spokesman for a party of four or five said to the reporter.

The reporter tried to make the men at the head of the stairs understand that he desired to see the man in charge.

"Do you mean Carter? (the name sounded like 'Carter') the guard asked.

"If he is in command, yes, replied the reporter.

"Bergoff has been here, but he's gone," was the answer to this question.

"Who's Bergoff?" the reporter asked.

"He is the boss," a strikebreaker replied, his reference being to one of the members of Bergoff Brothers & Waddell, the firm which, it is understood, has supplied a large number of the strikebreakers.

No Columbia Students There.

The reporter next proceeded across town to Third Avenue in the Bronx and went to the elevated railway barns near 180th Street and Third Avenue. But he did not effect an entrance. A policeman, who was on post nearby, said that about 600 men were in the barns and in cars on the spur tracks. A few of the strikebreakers were in front of the entrance to the barns.

At the West Farms barns of the subway a policeman said there were also about 600 strikebreakers held in readiness for service.

THE TIMES representative did not see any Columbia University students, or men who looked like students, among the strikebreakers who were visible last night. It was said yesterday that Columbia students were employed as strikebreakers in the subway strike of several years ago.

our employes, to make a contract satisfactory to them shall be destroyed.

Any talk of refusing to arbitrate is simply an attempt to becloud an issue which is now presented to the people of New York very clearly. We feel convinced that the safety and efficiency of the railway service of this city is at stake, and we expect to do everything we legitimately can to protect our patrons, our loyal men, and the excellence and continuity of our service.

To this he added orally:

"Those contracts are good and they are enforceable according to the opinion of our lawyers. Our insistence on them cannot be described as a rejection of the principle of collective bargaining. The committees from the brotherhood of Interborough employes presented their demands to the management, and we came to a compromise. This was certainly collective bargaining. Then we merely asked that our agreement with these employes on the brotherhood committees be ratified by the men whom the committees represented. That is the explanation of the individual contracts."

The N. Y. Railways Situation.

In view of the threat of a sympathetic strike on the New York Railways, Mr. Shonts issued a statement as follows:

Sept. 6, 1916.

Any strike on the "green" (New York Railways) surface car lines will be in direct violation of the agreement signed Aug. 7 by union officers with Mayor Mitchel and Chairman Straus, wherein it was provided:

"It is also agreed that all disputes that may arise between the company and the employes in the future, on which they cannot mutually agree, shall be submitted to arbitration as herein provided."

The officers of this company had, in accordance with the agreement of Aug. 7, received a committee of employes headed by officers of the union. That committee had presented various requests. To some of these we had agreed, to others we had been unable to agree, and we expected to meet with the committee, and draft a statement of the mooted questions preparatory to arbitration.

Today we were asked if we had proposed to New York Railways employes a form of contract covering conditions of employment. We stated that no such contract had been distributed. We had considered such a contract, and proof forms had been drawn up. The fact was that we had determined to withhold any distribution of any contract for the present.

Nothing whatever had been done which by any chance could affect in any respect the agreement of Aug. 7. We stood ready to abide by that agreement in every particular, and to arbitrate any questions arising out of it.

The union, before today's meeting, had voted favoring a sympathetic strike in connection with the Interborough situation. As a sympathetic strike is so clearly a violation of the agreement of Aug. 7 with the Mayor and Chairman Straus, any claim of bad faith toward us now is plainly an insincere attempt to befog a very clear issue.

Concerning the suggestion of individual contracts with the employes of the New York Railways, Mr. Shonts added:

"I told the board today that I wanted authority to look into the question of a schedule of hours and wages, but that I did not think that such a work should be undertaken until a strike was actually ordered. A resolution to this effect was passed."

PENNSYLVANIA SYSTEM
The Steel Car Route

Four Hundred and Fifty-three Million, Nine Hundred and Fifty-two Thousand, Two Hundred and Ninety-eight passengers were carried by the Pennsylvania Railroad System during the last two years and a half without the loss of a single passenger's life in a train accident.

These passengers were safely carried on more than 3,000,000 passenger trains for a total distance of over ten billions of miles, or 400,000 times the distance around the world, and upward of 3,500,000 freight trains were operated over the 26,000 miles of track during the same period.

This record has been accomplished by the use of all-steel cars and reliable safety signals; by thorough and constant inspection, and a comprehensive system of efficiency tests.

SURFACE CAR MEN CHEER STRIKE VOTE

New York Railways Employes Say They Are Walking Out to Right Their Wrongs.

DON'T ACT FROM SYMPATHY

Organizer Says Hedley Admitted Contracts Had Been Prepared for Street Car Men to Sign.

It was 11:10 o'clock last night when the employes of the New York Railways Company, assembled in the Plaza Assembly Hall, Fifty-ninth Street, near Lexington Avenue, voted to go on strike. The leaders emphasized, however, that the strike had not been called in sympathy with that declared by the employes of the Interborough Company, but to "right the wrongs" alleged to have been inflicted on the men by the officials of the Green Car system.

More than 2,000 men gathered in the hall at the call of the labor officials, and about 200 more, who could not get in, held an overflow meeting in a smaller hall downstairs. The strike vote was taken with tremendous cheering, and William B. Fitzgerald, the General Organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, received an ovation both when he entered the hall and when he said:

"If you men of the New York Railways Company want to declare a strike, you have my heartiest approval."

The men cheered and stamped so vigorously at this that it was more than three minutes before William Conway, President of the local union of New York Railways men, who was pounding on the speakers' table with a beer mallet, could restore order.

Mr. Fitzgerald told the men at the meeting of the unsuccessful attempts of the union officials to come to an amicable understanding with the officers of the New York Railways Company, and he said that his own conviction that a second strike was necessary had been hastened by the admission of Frank Hedley, General Manager of the company, that he already had had printed forms of individual contracts, similar to those signed by Interboro men, prepared for circulation among the employes of the green car system.

Mr. Fitzgerald contended that this was a violation of the agreement of Aug. 7, which settled the previous street car strike, and convinced him that Mr. Hedley and Theodore P. Shonts, President of the company, regarded the agreement simply as a "scrap of paper."

"I want to tell you men that no corporation will lick the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, attacking brother over brother's shoulder, as long as I am an officer of the association," Fitzgerald said. "If the employes of the New York Railways Company want to strike they have my heartiest approval."

"Let your actions come in your own way and of your own free will," added Fitzgerald when the tumult had been stilled. "The trouble with Shonts and Hedley is that they have not been willing to take their pill. It is my firm conviction that matters between the company and its men never will be settled without trouble, and there always will be trouble till a settlement of the right sort is reached."

Fitzgerald was detained during the early part of the night at the meeting of the Interborough employes, but the men heard of the action at Lyceum Hall through James H. Vahey, the Boston lawyer for the Amalgamated Association.

It was Mr. Vahey who told the men that the strike to be called by them would not be a sympathy strike. He said that the company had broken its agreement and that the men were, therefore, no longer bound by it.

"When one man breaks a contract, that lets the other fellow out, too," he said. "The contract that was made on Aug. 7 was a good one, but the company chose to break it by preparing these individual contracts for circulation and by other acts. I am a lawyer, and I tell you that there is no legal reason why you should not strike, and, if you decide to do so, no power under Heaven can prevent you.

"But please remember that this is not a sympathy strike and that you are not going out because any one else is. You are going out to right your own wrongs and because the company has broken its pledges and violated its agreement."

William B. Fitzgerald said at midnight that between 95 and 97 per cent. of the employes of the Interborough were enrolled with the Amalgamated and that he expected every one of them to obey the strike order. Reports coming to him, he added, indicated that the strike would be in full force before morning.

Fitzgerald said that he hoped for a short strike.

"But we're preparing for a long one," he added.

The strike leaders said that they had adequate resources to carry on a prolonged strike if necessary. Shortly after midnight Fitzgerald and other leaders started out from the Hotel Continental in an auto to see the strike order carried out.

One of the leaders, commenting on the extent of the strike, said that, while the action of the men of the Third Avenue trolley line at their meeting today could not be forecast, the leaders hoped the Third Avenue men would not vote to strike in sympathy with the subway and elevated workers.

"The strike will be extensive enough to win the demands without them," he said, "and the Third Avenue Company seems to be living up to the agreement it made with its men after their recent strike." The same was the case with the trolley line on Staten Island, the leaders said, and they did not expect it to be in any way affected by the present strike. They said that the Brooklyn situation has not been taken up as yet, and that the Brooklyn men will not be expected to strike at the present time.

POLICE ACT IN THE BRONX.

Reserves Called to Quiet 500 Strikers at 149th Street.

Five hundred strikers from meetings downtown gathered at the 149th Street and Third Avenue station of the elevated after noisily urging the guards on the trains aboard which they rode uptown to come out. Some of the trainmen were badly scared, but, despite some wordy threats, they were not attacked.

The crowd on the station platform grew so noisy and threatening that police reserves were called to drive them away. This they did without using their clubs.

In squads of a hundred or more the men then poured into the subway station below, yelling for employes there to come out on strike, and taunting the Interborough's special guards. Tiring of this, the strikers boarded trains for the West Farms terminals. The police did not follow them into the cars. At midnight they were gathering in force in the vicinity of the terminal yards. Ample police protection, it was said, had been provided there.

WHITMAN AWAITS CALL HERE.

Ready to Start for New York if Told Militia Is Needed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 6.—When informed tonight that employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York had declared a strike, Governor Whitman declined to comment on the merits of the dispute, but said that the Adjutant General's office in Albany would quickly inform him of any request for militia to supplement efforts of the New York Police Department to preserve order, and that if he was notified he would leave for New York at once, although his present plans are to go to New York on Saturday.

The Governor was the guest of honor at the Rochester Horse Show this afternoon and at a dinner in his honor at the Genesee Valley Club. He will speak at Albion tomorrow, at Rome on Friday and will go to New York on Saturday.

PARIS SEES GERMANY NEARING GRAVE CRISIS

Speculates on What Hindenburg Will Do to Stem the Tide on the Different War Fronts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—G. H. Perris, the Paris correspondent of The Chronicle, in discussing the allied offensive on the Somme front, says:

"What is Hindenburg going to do about it? He is a bold fighter and has almost dictatorial powers. Without crediting the stories of his open quarrel with the Crown Prince, we are now bound to consider that youth's adventure against Verdun as virtually abandoned.

"Everything suggests that Field Marshall Hindenburg continues to regard the eastern front as the most favorable field of action. Immediately before his appointment nine divisions were said to have been taken from the western front, other than Picardy and Verdun, to stem the Russian flood in Volhynia, so that all but these two regions of the west must now be skinned of every available unit.

"But Verdun and Picardy are everflowing wounds, which must have cost the Germans in the last two months, in killed, wounded, and prisoners, the equivalent of at least another nine divisions—perhaps considerably more.

"What, then, is Hindenburg going to do about it? The root of the fact now beyond dispute is that he cannot hold out both on the east and west.

"In serious and well-informed circles he is credited with the intention of taking the divisions, now at grips with the British and French forces, and throwing them against the Russians. Six months ago, perhaps, it could have been done, but the position now is revolutionized. To be of any use for the east a rectification of the front would have to be made quickly. How is that to be done without disaster in face of the advancing forces with which the Russian, British, and French commanders are now watching for any sign of a break in the opposing lines.

"There is a general sense that the titanic forces in play are speeding to a climax, and it is this sense that gives the urgency here to the question, Why does not the army of Saloniki do more? General Sarrail, whose first defense of Verdun has not been forgotten, is generally regarded as one of the most resourceful of French commanders, and Gustave Hervé plainly tells certain newspaper critics that they have not the information on which to advance any-wise opinion about his 'immobility.'"

LODGE ASSAILS THE SOUTH.

Declares Men from Dixie Rule the Democratic Party.

WATERVILLE, Me., Sept. 6. — Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, speaking at a Republican rally here tonight, asserted that Southern States were profiting by Government appropriations at the expense of New England and a few other Northern States. Arguing that it was a foregone conclusion "that Maine would give her electoral vote to Hughes and Fairbanks," the speaker urged as a first duty that "Maine should send Senators and Representatives to support the Hughes policies."

"When we send from New England Democratic Senators and Congressmen they cease to stand for New England interests and follow blindly and obediently the dictates of the Southern majority," Senator Lodge said. He criticised the Tariff bill as "extremely hostile in all its provisions to New England industries and interests."

"Havng deliberately cut down the tariff, not only to carry out their free trade principles but with the purpose of substituting direct taxes," he continued, "they then framed their direct taxes in such a way as to take nearly all the money from the North and East. Four States of the North (Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois) paid $119,001,000; that is, these four Northern States, out of the forty-eight States, paid more than half of these direct taxes. Ten Southern States, (Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia) paid $8,602,000; that is, about 4 per cent. of the entire tax."

Senator Lodge said that of the 100,000 National Guardsmen at the border on July 31, Virignia sent 2,000, Louisiana 500, and Texas, 3,000.

"The rest of the Southern States had not a single man at the border, while Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, and Pennsylvania had 42,000 men, 42 per cent. of all the troops then present," he continued. "This is another illustration of the manner in which the Southern rulers of the Democratic Party conduct the public business and spend the public money, which they take chiefly from us."

Senator Lodge also condemned the Administration's policy toward European belligerents and Mexico.

URGES FEWER DRUG STORES

Dr. Pritchard Says More Competent Clerks Are Needed.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6.—"There are too many stores and too few competent drug clerks," Dr. D. E. Pritchard of New York told the legislative section of the National Pharmaceutical Association this afternoon, and urged that there should be more encouragement to young men to enter the profession. "The trouble is that as soon as a clerk remains a year as assistant or as a registered clerk he begins to plan to open a store of his own." He had discovered, he asserted, that clerks had come to him who, upon examination, confessed they did not understand the language used by instructors, and were deficient in knowledge of English.

"The public pays little regard to the formula printed on packages, as directed by Federal laws," said Dr. John A. Leverty of Connecticut in a talk on "Potent Drug Content," and he called attention to the indifference of the purchasing public even when buying medicine for self-administration.

The battle which pharmacists have been waging to compel manufacturers of patent medicines to comply with standards demanded in the Federal pure food law was announced as practically won today. To meet the drastic resolution adopted at the California meeting of the pharmacists, patent medicine manufacturers have revised their by-laws and have employed chemists and other experts to analyze all samples of their products.

They have denounced the use of more alcohol than is necessary to act as a preservative and have directed that all habit-forming drugs must be eliminated and that in remedies for children care must be exercised in the use of drugs of any character. They have also submitted to experts patent medicine literature and directed the elimination of all statements that are deceptive and promise cures for recognized incurable diseases.

Officers nominated in the Legislature session were: Chairman—Dr. R. A. Kuener, Iowa City; Secretary—Professor C. V. Jordan, Lafayette, Ind.; Associates—Professor A. W. Lincoln, Washington; Dr. H. V. Ayury, New York City; John Kelly, Utah.

Wellesley Postpones Opening.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Sept. 6.—Owing to the infantile paralysis epidemic, Wellesley College will delay its opening one week, according to an announcement made today by President Pendleton. Entrance examinations will be held on Sept. 25, and recitations will begin on Oct. 2.

FOR A NEW HUNGARY ON AMERICAN PLAN

Count Karolyi Forms New Party to Democratize Empire with General Suffrage.

GOT HIS INSPIRATION HERE

His Platform Calls for Equality of Tongues and Independence from Germany After the War.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 20, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.) — Count Michael Karolyi, a nobleman of one of the most conservative of the old families, who has thrown down the gauntlet not only to the all-powerful Government leader, Count Tisza, but even to the Opposition leaders, and who, at the possible cost of his political future, has set out to "democratize" Hungary, tells The Associated Press that he is drawing his lessons from America. He was in the United States raising funds for a campaign in behalf of a more extended ballot in Hungary when the war began. He reached Budapest finally, after being interned in France, and he has kept the pot boiling ever since.

Explaining his rupture with his old political intimates and his plan for democracy, he said:

"I came to appreciate the great value of democracy when I was in the United States. There I saw the way in which Hungarians who had emigrated from their Fatherland and who here merely vegetated, without any of the real rights of citizenship, became valuable citizens, and saw to what positions of opulence they had brought themselves. A democratic reorganization of Hungary, the basis of which is the general right to vote, is a burning necessity. Unfortunately I discovered in one wing of the Independent Party none of the inspiration and none of the determined desire necessary for the creation of the general ballot. Therefore, there arose between me and a part of the party vital differences in this connection."

Long before the war he claims to have foreseen its possibility, and as a preventive measure urged that Hungary secure in France and Russia the capital she had for years been unable to get in Germany, and by making the loans there place France and Russia in a position of not venturing to go to war with a country indebted to them. When the war did come he attacked Count Tisza and his party savagely, and the Opposition scarcely less vigorously, because they had consented to the ultimatum to Serbia with any conditions, in other words, that they had not said: "We'll fight, but only on condition that you give us a democratic Hungary."

Karolyi has refused to have anything to do with the coalition effected between the Opposition and the Government. He walked out of the Independent Party, of which he had been head, with the declaration that the coalition meant no added influence for the Opposition leaders, yet partial responsibility for the war, which he disapproves. With him seceded ten other Independents, and as many more "strays" belonging to other parties or to no party allied themselves with him. Together as the "New Independent Party" they are the subject of ridicule and even of serious accusation.

The mildest that is said about Count Karolyi is that he is a "hereditary extremist," and perhaps the severest is that he is a Russophile and disloyal to his country because he would like to see Hungary take advantage of its present indispensability and force Austria and Germany to grant the reforms he believes necessary as the price of Hungary's continuation of the fighting.

The "platform" which Karolyi and his followers espouse, a combination of all the radical proposals of the last few years, and which is above all anti-German, is dubbed by those who want to be conservative in their criticism "Prussian, but with paprika added." The Karolyi platform embraces the following:

General, equal, and secret balloting.

Revision of the treatment accorded to the multiple nationalities that make up the Hungarian nation.

Policy of the "open-hand" toward all nationalities during the war and in concluding peace.

Complete independence from Germany after the war.

Democratization of Hungary.

In regard to the treatment accorded to Hungary's various nationalities, the Karolyi party takes the standpoint that hitherto the Rumanian, the Slovak, and the Serbian elements have been oppressed in favor of the Hungarian element. Karolyi and his followers, it is explained, are seeking only what has been sought for a score of years—full democracy regardless of nationality or language, the opportunity for every one to hold office, and the creation of a "democratic empire."

TEST OF EARTH ROTATION.

Experiment Made in Grotto Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Brooklyn.

An experiment to demonstrate the theory of the rotation of the earth on its axis was conducted yesterday afternoon in the Grotto Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Aberdeen Street, Brooklyn, by the Rev. Ferdinand Guicheteau of the French Church of St. Vincent de Paul in West Twenty-third Street, Manhattan.

A pendulum was suspended by a linen thread from the midpoint of the span of the ceiling. The pendulum swung from north to south over a board on which an arc was laid out marked off into geometric degrees. The theory is that, as the earth revolves to the eastward, the pendulum will maintain its plane while the board moves with the earth. The degree of the earth's rotation will then be shown by the change in the geometric degree over which the pendulum swings.

It was explained before the pendulum was released that under normal conditions the pendulum would deviate ten degrees in an hour. At twenty-four minutes after three the pendulum was released and in half an hour had shown a change of five degrees.

Among those who witnessed the demonstration were the Rev. Luis Rodes of the Del Ebra Observatory, Tortoras, Spain; the Rev. Alexander Bradfort of St. Francis Xavier's Church, Brooklyn; Leon Bault, editor of an astronomical magazine; Carlos Perdo of Venezuela and the Rev. François Santoin of the Home of Divine Providence, Staten Island.

MUNITIONS EXPORTS BIG.

Expected to Pass Billion-Dollar Mark Next January.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Figures prepared by the Department of Commerce show that the exports of war munitions for the first two years of the European war amounted to $604,614,028. These figures are for the period between Aug. 1, 1914, and Aug. 1, 1916. During last July the shipments aggregated $74,005,583. If this average is maintained for six months the aggregate exports will pass the billion-dollar mark next January.

The munitions exports from Aug. 1, 1914, to Aug. 1, 1916, were: Cartridges, $58,620,663; gunpowder, $206,875,154; other explosives, $308,755,201; firearms, $30,362,827. Total, $604,614,028.

By years the exports were: Aug. 1, 1914, to Jan. 1, 1915, $9,235,501; Jan. 1, 1915, to Jan. 1, 1916, $199,627,324; Jan. 1, 1916, to Aug. 1, 1916, $395,751,203. Total, $604,614,028.

REVENTLOW MUZZLED, HIS PAPER SEIZED

Anti-American German Publicist Must Submit to the Censor All Future Writings.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—The Deutsche Tageszeitung has again been confiscated by the Government. It will not be permitted to appear again until further notice as the result of an attack on the Government in last night's issue for muzzling Count von Reventlow.

Not only the responsible Imperial Government, but wide circles of public opinion, including the patriotic Social Democrats and working masses, have come to consider that Reventlow, through his journalistic activities, his championship of ruthless submarine warfare, and particularly his anti-American editorial articles, has done infinite harm to the cause of Germany, and that his continued activity would be a menace to the safety of the empire.

Reventlow has been effectively silenced now under the law of 1851. "In the interest of public safety" he is forbidden for the duration of the war to publish anything whatever which has not first been submitted to censorship and has been passed for publication. This censorship, as the Tages Zeitung, in an article headed "The Bubble Standard," points out, virtually means that Reventlow has been muzzled and is unable freely to speak his own opinions, but only those of the censorship. It says further:

"In the opposition press, at the same time, attacks are freely permitted on Count Reventlow. What personal abuse of him is allowed the following will show. The low Rhenish Labor Gazette writes:

"'In the midst of the war which Germany has to carry on against almost the whole world the pan-German Count Reventlow day after day carries on the worst jingoistic agitation against the only world power with which we still maintain peaceful relations. His brand of superpatriotism made Reventlow's Berlin journal the agent of the Entente, whose intentions regarding America he has been systematically and consciously furthering. In common with the Entente, Italy, Rumania, and perhaps Greece are not enough for him. With the Entente, he calls out enthusiastically for more.

"'Objectively considered, he harms the interests of the empire to an extent such as does no other man in Germany. Such an activity is fatal, doubly fatal, in a time of censorship in which every opinion which is suffered to be expressed may easily arouse the impression that it is approved by the Government. It is to be expected of the Government that it will at least show the same toleration toward others who think differently from Reventlow, and that the Government will speak out decidedly and unequivocally against the anti-American jingoism of the mad Count.'"

The Socialist weekly, the New Germany, also contains a sharp attack on Reventlow, whose apparent elimination now from public print is expected to remove a long-standing menace to the relations of Germany and the United States.

SUIT OVER HATBOY'S TIPS.

Court to Pass on Right to Harass Those Who Don't Pay.

The right of restaurant hat boys to drop the hats of, and otherwise harass, diners who give small tips, or no tips at all, is about to be defined by the Supreme Court of Kings County. This question, long of great importance in New York City, has arisen in the case of Harry Gladstone against the Hofbrauhaus in Rockwell Place, Brooklyn, where, for several years, he has been majordomo of the check room.

Gladstone, whose dismissal was sought by his employers, has appealed to the law for protection. He asserted that he had an unexpired contract with the Hofbrauhaus management and that he could not be ousted.

The suit was on trial before Supreme Court Justice Blackmar, who was asked to grant an injunction. The lawyer for the restaurant company contended that the contract with Gladstone was revocable, and besides, he said, Gladstone's hirelings made a practice of dropping the hats and coats of non-tipping diners.

Justice Blackmar reserved decision.

ARREST CUBAN AS FORGER.

Young Commission Broker Who Tried Suicide Will Be Sent Home.

After a two months' search for him in Florida and elsewhere, a man said to be Luis Garriga Prieto, a young commission broker, who is alleged to have fled from Santiago, Cuba, to evade prosecution for forgeries amounting to more than $10,000, was arrested yesterday afternoon in Beaver Street by V. H. Barranco, Special Agent of the Cuban Government. Prieto was arraigned before United States Commissioner Clarence S. Houghton on a charge of forgery and perjury, but waived examination in extradition proceedings. He was committed to the Tombs until Saturday, when he will be taken back to Cuba by Barranco.

Under the name of Luis Garcia, Prieto, who was then supposed to be hiding in Tampa, Fla., was a patient at Bellevue Hospital. While stopping at the Hotel Wallick, Prieto, or Garcia, attempted suicide by taking mercury. He was rushed to Bellevue Hospital, barely in time to save his life. His convalescence at the hospital took five weeks.

TWO FALL 500 FEET.

British Officer and Harvard Student Hurt at Aviation School.

BUFFALO, Sept. 5.—Major W. C. Campbell, a British Army officer, and Theodore De Kruijss, a Harvard University student, were seriously injured by the fall of an aeroplane today at the Curtiss Aviation School. The machine fell about 500 feet.

The injured men were taken to the Erie County Hospital. Major Campbell's condition is regarded as critical. His skull was fractured and several ribs were broken. De Kruijss was not so seriously injured.

DROP STAMP TAXES FROM REVENUE BILL

by the United States Senate last night excited considerable interest.

An official of the Foreign Office said today that the department fully recognized the importance of this legislation, but that any statement as to the attitude of the British Government must wait until the return of Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade. It is expected that one result of the action of the American Congress will be to hasten a reply to the Washington protest against the British blacklist.

WALSH WEIGHS THE VOTE.

Democratic Manager Assails Republican Attitude on Revenue Bill.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Western Democratic campaign manager, in a statement today said:

"That the Republican Party is a party of inaction and obstruction as well as reaction was clearly demonstrated yesterday when the vote was taken in the Senate on the Emergency Revenue bill. The roll call on this measure should cause every Progressive as well as the independent voter to join with the Democrats next November in re-electing President Wilson and a Democratic Congress.

"According to press reports, only five Republican Senators voted for this most important bill. Every Democratic Senator present favored the passage of the measure. It is of no small significance that the five Republicans who registered their approval of the bill are men of progressive tendencies. They are Senators Cummins and Kenyon of Iowa; La Follette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, and Clapp of Minnesota.

"While Governor Hughes is traveling about the country preaching protection and asserting that only by the return of the Republican Party to power may the country be insured against business depression after the war, his party members in the Senate vote against a measure that fair-minded men will admit will insure the continuance of prosperity in the United States after hostilities in Europe end."

ALLIES WILL TAKE UP OUR RETALIATION PLAN

Their Attitude to Be Decided at Paris Conference—Washington Expects No Formal Protest.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The attitude of the Entente Allies toward American trade retaliation legislation will be determined by the Grand Trade Council of the ten belligerent Governments at Paris. Diplomats of the Allies said today that no action would be taken until authority had been received from the council, and in the meantime all information on the subject obtainable was being forwarded to Paris.

Formal notes of protest from the various Governments are not expected. It is thought that no formal action will be taken unless the President actually puts into force the discretionary powers of refusing clearance papers to ships discriminating against American goods, withholding the use of telegraph and cable lines from subjects of discriminating Governments, and denying import privileges to countries which restrict American trade.

Now that the legislation is certain of enactment there is a tendency in diplomatic quarters to minimize its importance. It is realized that with such powers actually on the statute books pressure will be brought on the Chief Executive to use them.

Explaining the position of the State Department today, Secretary Lansing said it was not felt that the resources of diplomacy had been exhausted in efforts to remove illegal restrictions upon American trade. He indicated that there would be no disposition to put into effect the legislative weapons unless an impassé actually was reached and the attitude of Great Britain and her allies has to be regarded as "unfriendly."

It also was explained officially at the department that specific approval had been given there to only one of the amendments to the Revenue bill, that giving authority to refuse clearance to vessels declining to carry American cargoes for any reason other than lack of space. There has been no objection, however, to the other retaliatory provisions written into the bill. It was pointed out that the new legislation represented a crystalization of views growing out of months of discussion between members of Congress and Administration officials.

RAILROAD HEARINGS NOV. 20

Congressional Committee Agrees on Date for Opening of Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Hearings before the Joint Congressional Sub-committee on Railroad Problems will begin here Nov. 20. The committee agreed on the date today, and decided to invite statements from the Interstate Commerce Commission, State railroad commissions, representatives of the roads and of Boards of Trade, bankers, and others interested.

While the joint committee's work will be distinct from that of the special investigation commission authorized by the Adamson law enacted to prevent the threatened strike, its scope will be broad, and any legislation recommended in the report to be made may include provisions dealing with wages and other questions involved in the present controversy between the roads and their employes.

NEAR FISTICUFFS ON SENATE FLOOR

letter, and Mr. Dockery said that in every particular the letter was admissible under the Senator's frank.

Senator Curtis handed back the comment that Senator Ashurst, nevertheless, should have paid the postage on his letter and that every member of the Cabinet was at this time straining the law at every point to bring about the re-election of President Wilson.

Penrose Gets Into It.

Senator Penrose here came into the colloquy with the remark that a very large campaign fund had been employed to elect President Wilson in 1912 and that he had heard reports of $200,000 being used in the election of Senator Owen in Oklahoma. He then told the Senate that Abram I. Elkus of New York had contributed $12,500 to the Wilson campaign fund and that he had received his reward. "He was a little late in making the payment," said the Pennsylvania Senator, "but he got his reward just the same."

Then Mr. Penrose said that Cleveland H. Dodge of New York had contributed to President Wilson's campaign the sum of $85,000. Senator Gallinger, sitting next to Mr. Penrose, turned and exclaimed with mock astonishment:

"You say $85,000! Not $85,000!"

"Yes," said the Pennsylvania Senator, "I mean $85,000. This amount was not given for the campaign for election, but was given before Mr. Wilson's nomination. I suppose he did it to stimulate the uplift."

Senator Thomas manifested a curiosity to know if there had not been some large contributions to President Taft's fund in 1912.

"Not enough," replied Mr. Penrose, "to pay the printing bills."

Senator Ashurst renewed his reply to Senator Curtis's charge that he had no right to frank through the mail a political letter. He had a telegram read that Mr. Taft, when Governor General of the Philippines, had sent to Secretary of War Root, in which he described a ride he had taken on horseback in the mountains of Baguio. There were more than a hundred words in the telegram, and Mr. Ashurst explained that it cost the Government 52 cents a word, as he had taken the trouble to go to the manager of the telegraph company and find out. The dispatch also contained allusions to health in the islands, and compared the mountains in Baguio to the Adirondacks. The Senate laughed when the reply to Taft's dispatch was read. The dispatch was: "Taft, Manila: How is the horse? Root."

Here came the dramatic performance which simulated the old-time scenes in the Senate when colloquies sometimes resulted in blows. Senator Ashurst, as he finished reading the dispatch, leaped toward the middle aisle, overturning Senator Chamberlain as he did so, and rushed toward Senator Curtis, who was sitting next to Senator Smoot of Utah. Mr. Smoot shrank back, as if fearing that he was to be the object of Mr. Ashurst's attack. But the Arizona Senator, gesticulating, when he reached Mr. Curtis bent down over him and shouted: "And this Pharisee from Kansas is shocked at my use of the mails!" The Kansas Senator did not even blink an eyelid. Senator Kenyon asked anxiously if there were not some dispatch in the records somewhere that would tell what really became of Taft's horse, and the Senate smiled.

Senator Penrose brought the discussion back to the general subject of the improper use of money. "In the recent lobby, the copper lobby, seeking to have the Revenue bill amended so as to take off the tax on component parts of munitions, the Senator from Arizona had the distinction of presenting the amendment," he said.

Lies, Says Ashurst.

"If the Senator," replied Mr. Ashurst, hotly, "says that I was influenced by the copper or any other lobby he lies."

Senators sat up. Several Democrats called out to Mr. Ashurst to withdraw his epithet. In the galleries they could be heard saying: "Take it back."

"I think the Senator will desire to withdraw that remark," said Senator Gallinger, while Vice President Marshall rapped for order. Friends of Senator Ashurst surrounded him and asked him to remember the rules of the Senate.

Senator Penrose said that if Senator Ashurst did not offer the amendment his colleague did so obligingly, and that Mr. Ashurst looked suspicious to him, although he might have been near-sighted at the time. Senator James started quickly to his feet and declared that he thought the Senator from Pennsylvania was as much out of order as the Senator from Arizona.

Senator Ashurst went on to charge that when Senator La Follette came to the Senate he was an outcast and an Ishmaelite because he was honest. Addressing himself directly to Senators Penrose and Gallinger, he charged that they were the representatives of special interests and that they ostracized La Follette because he stood for "equal rights of all and special privileges to none," while they stood for the opposite.

"I trust the Senator is not personal," ironically remarked Senator Gallinger.

"Oh, not at all. I simply mean Senator Gallinger, Senator Penrose, and Senator Curtis," replied Mr. Ashurst. The Senate laughed.

"The Senator should observe the rules of the Senate and not call Senators by name," said Mr. Gallinger.

"Well then," Mr. Ashurst retorted, "I will say the senior Senator from Pennsylvania, the senior Senator from New Hampshire, and the junior Senator from Kansas."

A timely motion to go into executive session drew the curtain on the scene and prevented any further exhibits of party linen for the day.

ZEPPELINS MAY BRING MAIL.

Chicago Man Tells of Proposed Transatlantic Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Zeppelins, unarmed and each with a carrying capacity of sixty tons, have been built in Germany to carry mail between Berlin and the United States, according to Morris Epstein, agent of the German-American Alliance, who returned from Europe yesterday.

Mr. Epstein said that the Zeppelins had been named Amerika and Deutschland. He was permitted to view them, he said. Their engines, he said, were powerfully equipped, and they could make the aerial voyage between Berlin and New York in seventy-two hours.

"They are so constructed," Mr. Epstein said, "that they can rise higher than any aeroplane and thus escape hostile aviators. They also can descend to the wate rand travel there under their own power."

Mr. Epstein said the postage charges for this service had already been arranged and would be, for each letter, international postage plus 25 cents.

SENATE REJECTS WILLIAMS.

Nominee for Chicago Postmastership Opposed by Senator Lewis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Without the formality of a roll call, the Senate today rejected the nomination of Dixon C. Williams to be Postmaster at Chicago. This action was taken at the instance of Senator Lewis. Mr. Williams's nomination was made in opposition to the wishes of the Illinois State Democratic organization headed by Senator Lewis, Governor Dunne, and ex-Mayor Harrison of Chicago.

The nomination of Mr. Williams is credited to Postmaster General Burleson. Mr. Williams, who went from Arkansas to Chicago several years ago, was said to be the original Wilson man in Illinois.

Authorities to Start Institutions for Farmers' Education.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—At the meeting of the British Association today, Sir Sydney Olivier, Permanent Secretary of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, replied to a suggestion that steps should be taken to educate the farmer so as to insure increased crop production and extension of the area of land under cultivation.

Sir Sydney said the Government intended to establish agricultural and engineering institutions throughout the country. By this means, he added, the best advice on engineering and agriculture might be collaborated.

GUILLEMONT FIGHT A SOLDIERS' BATTLE

British Fighters Use Own Initiative and Strategy in the Capture of Falfemont Farm.

TAKE WOODS BY SURPRISE

Germans, Bewildered, Run Hither and Thither, While Foes Rush on and Surround Farm.

By PHILIP GIBBS.
The London Daily Chronicle Dispatches.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 5.—My last dispatch, describing the capture of Wedge Wood and the attack on Falfemont Farm, left off at a moment of exciting uncertainty. It was impossible for me to tell whether our men had actually taken possession of the farm. Now the tangled web of the plot is straightened out, and the end of another grim little chapter of the war is the capture of 1,000 yards of the enemy's front to a depth of 1,500 yards in and around Falfemont Farm, which is now held by the British troops.

It was great fighting which gained this ground and the men were their own Generals. These West Country lads were not moved like marionettes pulled by strings from headquarters. It was, after the first orders had been given, a soldier's battle and its success was due to the young officers and non-commissioned officers and men, using their own initiative, finding another way round when one had failed and arranging their own tactics in the face of the enemy to suit the situation of the moment.

When the attack on Falfemont Farm was checked on the south by machine-gun fire, the British troops worked their way westward and, joining other bodies of men advancing from the sunken road beyond Guillemont, crept forward to the slope of ground that goes up to Leuze Wood. Half way up on the outer edge of the spur were two V-shaped trenches which I saw taken by the first two waves immediately after the capture of the Wedge Wood.

Men Plan a Surprise Rush.

In the hollow at the bottom of the sunken road was cover for the men, who were inspired by a great idea. This was the making of a surprise rush into Leuze Wood from its western side while the Germans' attention was directed to the defense of Falfemont Farm halfway down the slopes to the south. It was this surprise movement which caused all the confusion which I saw yesterday among the enemy—figures of German soldiers running down from the high wood to the support of the men in the farm, their sudden retreat back when the British guns swept the ground, and their rush for cover to the wood and doubling back uncertainly, not knowing where to turn when these Germans heard the shouts of British troops in a corner of their sanctuary.

Splendid work was done by the British after dusk and during the night, in spite of the deluge of rain, when the German artillery fired most furiously, but could not dislodge them from the grip they had got on the corner of the wood, lest the German guns should make a massacre of the German infantry. By dawn more troops had joined those who held the spur and passed on to the north of Falfemont Farm, and others had got close to the farm on the south and west by the way of the Wedge Wood.

Nothing to Do but Die or Yield.

Between black posts which were once high, living trees, about sixty Germans stayed on in their shell craters and broken dugouts. When the final British rush came from three sides they could do nothing but surrender or die. Some of them died, others lay wounded and unconscious, but most of them put their hands up.

It is not sufficiently realized, I believe, how very important has been the gain to the British of the last two days of battle. The capture of Guillemont and of the ground beyond it has given them the whole of the German second line, which was broken in parts on the great day of July 14. Since then the British have had an uphill fight all the time, a long struggle upward to seize the high ridge from Pozières eastward and to hold it. It has been difficult to hold and the cost has not been light.

The heroism shown on those slopes, in those woods, in the assault on the high trenches, has been the most wonderful ever shown by British soldiers in a continuous endeavor. Now they have gained the crest of the ridge, and even if the British offensive were brought to a dead halt today, which it will not be, the position of the soldiers for the Winter would be enormously superior to that of the Germans on the other side of the watershed.

Again the taking of Guillemont and the ground by Ginchy has defended the right flank and straightened out an awkward salient. With Ginchy in British hands on one side and Thiepval on the other they should be well placed and there would be a great gain for all the sacrifice they made in fighting forward so hard and so far and with such courage.

BRAVE DEEDS ON BOTH SIDES.

German Courage, Equaling British Pluck, Couldn't Hold Ground.

By PHILIP GIBBS.
The London Daily Chronicle Dispatches.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 4.—In my dispatch of yesterday, describing the heavy fighting at several parts of the line, I was unable to give sufficient prominence to the greatest success of the day, and one of the best achievements since the beginning of the battle of the Somme.

That we hold Guillemont safely and surely, I had the luck to see for myself today, when from neighboring trenches I looked into the ruin of the place, strangely quiet this afternoon. Apart from a few German clumps, I saw that the British were holding the sunken road 500 yards further on.

Yesterday's attack at midday was wonderfully good. The British went forward steadily in waves after a hurricane of fire from the great mass of their guns. The Germans did not expect an attack at the hour which it happened. They probably thought they had balked it by their bombardment on the British lines, and when they flung over 10,000 gas shells, the poisonous vapor of which floated over the ground for hours. They know now that they did not thwart the advance of the British.

The German machine guns swept the ground with a rush of bullets, but the British took cover, as much as possible, in the dips and hollows of the earth, which was chaotic after the long weeks of shelling, and came along quite quickly to the outskirts of the ruined village. A quarry there in the centre of the western edge had been entered and held for a day or two by the British troops, but it was no longer in their hands and had to be retaken.

Prussian Guards Counterattack.

The British troops rushed upon Guillemont with the finest valor. They were in and about those dugouts in the first wave and halted there to see that no Germans remained in hiding to attack them from the rear.

Underground there was not much fighting. A few proud men refused to surrender or did not surrender quickly enough. Most of them gave themselves up easily and made no trouble in being marshaled back, so that something like 6,000 men belonging to the finest German troops are now behind the British lines, out of it for good.

A half hour afterward the British were joined by supporting troops, and the line was advanced to the sunken road, where other German soldiers were captured. The British found here a defensive position all ready for them and after a little work in reorganizing the shelter from that point a number of men went forward again to the attack on Falfemont Farm.

So the battle ended yesterday with the capture of Guillemont, and the British line strongly intrenched along the sunken road.

Desolation and Ruin.

I saw another attack today upon Falfemont Farm and the British capture of Wedge Wood. The way to the trenches was the most amazing scene of the war—more terrible and wonderful and as great a battle picture as any I had seen before. Everywhere along the way which leads to the country between Hardecourt and Maurepas, there is great desolation and ruin of all the things that grew or stood upon the earth. Here, for two miles or so, a long avenue of trees is a highway of violence. Not a tree stands whole, and their great trunks have been slashed and broken by the shell-fire and lie with ragged stumps—great giants—across the unending shell craters there.

For some time before the British attack I watched the country over a parapet, fascinated as though under a queer spell. It is here that the French and British soldiers have been fighting shoulder to shoulder, or at least on the right and left in a great and perilous adventure.

On one side was Maurepas, a few brick ruins standing in the midst of bare black trunks and naked branches. In a turmoil of shell craters on the other side was Guillemont. I could see every tree in it and one solitary shell of a barn and a few black German crosses to their dead and blown-out dugouts on the southern side.

The sunken road led down from Guillemont to the wedgewood in the hollow. The British soldiers held the sunken road, and the Germans were in the wedgewood. Striking up from that small solitary copse of naked sticks were two white chalky trenches, in an obtuse angle with the apex nearest to the wedgewood and the broad base up a sloping ground toward Leuze wood or Louisy wood, as the British call it.

On the ridge above and half way down the slope to the right of the triangle of trenches was Falfemont Farm, without the least sign of a farm, but marked by a number of tree stems, stuck up like telephone poles.

British Come Out for Attack.

The Germans were shelling the sunken road intermittently, and some of their heavy shells, but not many of them, were bursting in Guillemont. The British artillery was not far behind in pounding the German lines. The British shells were falling all over their ground from Leuze wood down to Falfemont Farm and the wedgewood in the hollow below the sunken road.

A little after 3 o'clock in the afternoon I saw the British in the open. They came up suddenly as though by spell-word along the line of the sunken road and southward below Falfemont Farm advancing northward to that place. It was astonishing to see all those men in the open after the utter solitude of the scene.

Few German shells were falling near them. They seemed to have the countryside to themselves. But above the din of the artillery's stupendous noise there was a new and different sound. It was made by the sweeping waves of machine-gun fire, the worst noise in the war, except that of a mine in action. A great deal of it, I am sure, was British machine-gun fire. There was curiously little artillery fire for some time after the attack began. The men advanced in waves. I saw the left waves surging down into the wedge wood; some of them wavered a little, then fell in groups, not dead or wounded, but getting below the stream of bullets a yard high over the ground. The small copse was soon crowded with British soldiers. They seemed to be in a kind of scrimmage, aut out of the middle of it came presently a compact little body of men—German prisoners.

"Right enough and well done," said an officer by my side. I followed the advance of the southern waves toward Falfemont Farm. They went on slowly and steadily, and had a long way to go. It seemed to me a frightful long way, but they crept up nearer and nearer to the edge of bare poles, which were once a wood. Then some of them fell and disappeared into the shell cellars and the broken trench. New waves came up and disappeared also, as if lying or dead in the tall thistles.

Take a Second Trench.

After a little while I saw that many of them had reappeared to the left. They were working up toward the German triangle of trenches on the slope of the spur, striking down from Leuze Wood.

In a few minutes two figures appeared black against the white chalk of the first trench and presently they were lost in it, but not for long. Groups of them were up again marshaling another group, which seemed to have been separated from them and then moved back toward the Wedge Wood. I guessed that they were more German prisoners, but could not see the difference between the gray and the khaki.

"Hello! They've got a second trench," said another man by my side. It was clear enough. Black figures appeared on the second chalk line and then jumped down. My eyes wandered back to the southern waves, advancing on Falfemont Farm. They were heading westward and northward in an encircling movement. Over on the south they seemed to be avoiding the scythe which mowed the grass with machine gun bullets.

It was some time after, while I was watching the confused groups of men, that strange things began to happen in the German lines. From Leuze Wood parties of men came running down to Falfemont Farm. Sometimes they ran a little way, and then ran back, and then came on again. Presently a number of them reached the edge of the ground on which grew bare poles, which was Falfemont Farm, and here they re-formed.

"By the Lord," said an officer, "a German counterattack. Get it over the telephone quick. A good target for our guns."

It was a wonderful target. The Prussian Guardsmen came forward, not in open order, but shoulder to shoulder. They made a serpentine line across the ground, advancing steadily and not slowly, toward our troops. They looked like very tall men, and their figures were quite black against the chalky earth.

German Line Crumbles.

Then suddenly the right end of the line crumbled away. Gaps were opened in the thick bar of men. The British machine guns were raking them.

I listened to the swish-swash of the fire, like a flame blown in the wind. Then like a row of nine pins on uneven ground, the Prussian guards all fell face forward. The unwounded men had fallen with the wounded to escape the British bullets.

"The counterattack has been repulsed," said a voice near the telephonist. He repeated the words more slowly. "D'ye hear, the German counterattack has broken down."

Twenty minutes later, if I remember accurately, another German counterattack was organized in exactly the same way by parties of men coming down from the Leuze Wood, but this was also broken up by the British machine gun fire.

After that all was confused. Odd groups of men seemed to be fighting separately. Men ran up to Leuze Wood, as if in retreat, and then came down again to Falfemont Farm.

RUSSIAN TROOPS NEARING HALICZ

Again Defeat Teutons North of the Dniester and Drive Them Northwestward.

TAKE 4,500 PRISONERS

They Capture Another Series of Heights in the Carpathians and Continue Their Advance.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 6.—Russian troops yesterday captured a Teutonic fortified position in the region of the Lower Gorodenka, in the direction of Halicz, Galicia, and drove the Austro-Germans toward the northwest, says the Russian official statement issued today. Prisoners taken so far number 4,500, including about 2,000 Germans. The statement is appended:

> In the direction of Halicz, in the region of the Lower Gorodenka, a left tributary of the Dniester, our troops captured a fortified position of the enemy and drove him to the northwest. The number of prisoners taken here so far amounts to 4,500 men, among whom were about 2,000 Germans.
> In the wooded Carpathians our advance continues. Our troops have captured a series of heights and have repelled all repeated enemy counterattacks.

BERLIN, Sept. 6, (via London.)—Russian forces, says the official statement issued today at the German Army Headquarters, have pressed back the centre of Archduke Charles's front between the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester River, in Galicia. The text of the statement follows:

> Group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—Russian attacks north of the Zlochoff-Tarnopol Railway line failed under our fire.
> Group of Archduke Charles—Between the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester the Russians again began their attacks. After vain storming attacks they finally pressed back the centre of our front.
> In the Carpathians the enemy gained a small advantage in the fighting already reported southwest of Zabie and Shypot. At many other places he attacked in vain.

A report received from Austrian Army Headquarters under date of Aug. 4 says:

> Archduke Charles's Front—The Russians continued by day and by night their efforts to break the resistance of the Teutonic allies in the Carpathians. There were violent engagements at a number of places. Hostile attacks were repulsed by our fire or by bayonets or hand grenades.
> Small local Russian successes southwest of Fundul Moldewi and in the sector of Tartar Pass were mostly neutralized by counterattacks. The enemy's losses were heavy.
> Hostile attacks southeast of Brzezany caused the enemy heavy losses but gave him no advantage. An engagement in a small portion of a trench is still going on.

FORCING MOUNTAIN DEFILES.

Russians in Carpathians Pushing Steadily Toward Hungary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—General Brusiloff has struck another sharp blow and once more has been completely successful. He is continuing his baffling policy of attacking numerous points along the whole line of his front, with the result that the enemy never understands what is his real objective. At present Brusiloff is scoring a success in the Brzezany district, roughly speaking, half way between Zolochoff and Halicz on the Dniester. This is an important section.

The position on the Zlota Lipa and on the enemy's front nearby being either pierced or considerably bent, developments of the Russian movement will now threaten the Zolochoff group of Teuton forces defending the approach to Lemberg and will become of double importance when taken in conjunction with the renewal of active operations in the Halicz district.

In efforts to strengthen the defenses of Kovel, Vladimir-Volynski, and Lemberg the Austro-Germans have been forced to weaken dangerously their forces in Transylvania and the Carpathians. The Russians are making steady progress through the mountain defiles both near the Rumanian border and much further west along the important railway which runs over the Jablonitsa Pass and down the upper Theiss Valley to Maramaros Sziget. Here they are on the threshold of Hungary, and it is difficult to see how the Teutons can detach sufficient forces to stay the further advance of the invaders.

ITALIANS FIGHT IN SNOW.

Bad Weather Prevails on Whole Front—Austrians Are Pushed Back.

ROME, Sept. 6.—An official statement issued today by the Italian War Department says:

"On the whole front bad weather prevails. The first snow already has fallen in the mountains.

"The enemy activity yesterday was reduced to some artillery actions, which were vigorously answered by our batteries. On the Upper Rio Felizon, in the Valley of Boite, our troops extended their occupation on the western slope of Punta del Forame."

Berlin Publishes British Blacklist.

AMSTERDAM, Sept 6, (via London.)—The Frankfort Chamber of Commerce recently petitioned Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, to publish the lists of foreign firms with which trading is prohibited by Great Britain, in order to enable German firms to develop relations with the blacklisted firms and encourage them after the war, the Frankfurter Zeitung says. The Government complied with the request and published the lists.

AUSTRIAN SOLDIERS IN CONSTANTINOPLE

Most of Turkish Garrison Sent to Asia Minor—Conditions in the City.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—THE TIMES correspondent at Constantza, in a mailed dispatch dated August 6, describing conditions in Constantinople, writes:

"Today Constantinople presents the aspect of a city in foreign occupation. Austrian soldiers are visible everywhere, Germans are less numerous, while Turkish troops have almost disappeared. The latter, including two battalions of marine infantry, have been sent to Asia, either to fight the Russians or to quell the Arab revolt, and twelve battalions of newly-formed Turkish gendarmerie also have gone eastward.

"The 120,000 men which Germany promised to send in order to reinforce the troops opposed to the Russians have not arrived, but a considerable portion of the German troops hitherto in the neighborhood of the city have gone to Asia Minor, while supplies and munitions from Germany have been continuously forwarded in the same direction.

"Since last April the fortification of the European side of the Bosporus have been strengthened, the Christian troops, whom the Government mistrusts, being kept busy with spade and shovel. At Angora 25,000 men are similarly employed constructing defenses, and fortifications also are being raised at Eskishehir and Konah. Sixty armored motor-cars from Germany have been sent over to Haidar Pasha.

"The continued arrival of refugees from the districts occupied by the Russians depresses the public mind. The exhilaration caused by the news of Kut-el-Amara was shortlived. Even exaggerated accounts of the German 'victory' in the North Sea failed to provoke enthusiasm, although the city was illuminated by order, and the Tanin announced the 'complete destruction of the British navy by our brothers, the Germans.'

"All the male population from 17 to 60 years of age have been taken for the army. Boys of 16 have been called up for training.

"A Turkish merchant, who latterly migrated to Constantza, declares all he and the majority of his countrymen want is peace. He does not care whether Turkey wins or loses in the war. The state of things is intolerable, but he does not anticipate a revolution, as the Young Turks are absolute masters of the situation."

TUMULT OVER TISZA IN HUNGARIAN DIET

Opponents of the Premier Shout "Resign!" and Andrassy Demands New Leadership.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—According to a Budapest telegram, says the Reuter correspondent at Amsterdam, yesterday's session of the Hungarian Diet was extremely stormy. When Premier Tisza entered the House he was greeted with loud shouts of "Resign!" from the party of Count Michael Karolyi. The three other opposition parties remained quiet.

When order was restored Premier Tisza, who was interrupted repeatedly, said that the attitude of the Rumanians was without precedent in the history of the world and that he hoped measures which had been taken would bear fruit soon.

"Rumania will not escape her fate," the Premier is quoted as declaring. "I am confident that we will win this war on all frontiers. Our duty is to maintain the unity of Hungary in its fight for existence."

Count Julius Andrassy, former Premier, agreed that the entire energy of the nation should be exerted in the fight, which was in self-defense, but he criticised the manner in which the Government carried on its business and its lack of foresight. The position of the country, the ex-Premier said, was serious, but not critical, and while he had confidence in the outcome, there must be a new leadership.

TRIED TO SAVE KING'S GEMS.

Rumanian Monarch's Steward in Germany Foiled at Border.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Watchful gendarmes at the Swiss border have foiled a gallant attempt by the faithful steward of King Ferdinand of Rumania's estates and personal property in Germany to get his master's valuables out of the country.

The steward, a Swiss named Bassentine, made for Switzerland immediately after Rumania's declaration of war on Austria, taking with him the King of Rumania's cash, securities, jewels, and other belongings, but he had not complied with all the pass formalities and was turned back at the border.

The Vossische Zeitung says:

"Bassentine dwells at present once more in the palace of the Prince of Hohenzollern at Sigmaringen."

SALONIKI LINES SHELLED.

British and Bulgar Patrols Clash East of the Struma River.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A British official communication issued tonight dealing with the operations on the Macedonian front, says:

> On the Struma front there have been patrol encounters east of the Struma, between Oriak and the Kamarjan Bridge.
> On the Doiran front enemy artillery shelled our positions for three hours.

The French official bulletin issued today reads:

> No infantry action occurred yesterday. There were violent artillery duels in the sectors of the Struma and Lake Doiran, as well as on the Serbian front as a whole.

RUMANIANS HOLD DOBRUDJA BORDER

German-Bulgar Invading Army Has Been Driven Back, Bucharest Reports.

TUTRAKAN UNDER ATTACK

Berlin Says Seven of the Stronghold's Defenses Already Have Been Taken by Storm.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Official announcement is made by the Rumanian War Office that attempts of the Germans and Bulgarians to invade Eastern Rumania have been defeated and that the Rumanians are in possession of all the frontier east of the Danube, along which the attack was directed; also that the invasion of Transylvania is being carried on successfully.

On the other hand the official statement issued by the Berlin War Office today makes the following announcement:

> Seven of the Tutrakan works, including armored batteries, have been stormed. North of Dobric strong Rumanian and Russian forces have been driven back by our brave Bulgarian comrades.

Tutrakan is about thirty miles south of Bucharest, on the south side of the Danube. From Oltinita, on the north side of the river, opposite Tutrakan, a railroad runs to the capital.

Subjoined is the Rumania statement:

> On our northern and northeastern fronts, after spirited fighting in the region of Borzeoket, the heights to the west thereof were occupied by us. We captured four officers and 150 men.
> We possess all the Dobrudja frontier, (between Bulgaria and Rumania, east of the Danube.) An attack south of Basardjik was repulsed. The battle continues on the remainder of the frontier. The enemy bombarded Islacx and Calafat, on the banks of the Danube.
> In an aerial attack on Constanza by three hydroplanes bombs were dropped and several civilians, including children, were wounded.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 4, via London, Sept. 6, (Delayed.)—Capture of prisoners and supplies and the repulse of attacks against their positions are announced in an official communication issued by the Rumanian War Office today. The statement reads:

> Small encounters have occurred along the whole of the northern and northwestern front. We repulsed two hostile attacks in the Merisor Valley.
> We captured at Sepsi-Szent-Gyorgy more than 500 wagons containing foodstuffs and forage and a completely equipped hospital.
> In the upper Maros Valley the enemy used dumdum bullets. We captured 7 officers and 620 men.
> On the southern front superior enemy forces attacked the bridgehead of Tutrakan ten times, but each time was repulsed.

BERLIN, Sept. 6, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—An arrangement between Rumania and Bulgaria is being effected for the mutual return of diplomatic representatives of the belligerent nations. It is planned to send the members of the Legations and Consulates of Bulgaria, Germany, Austria, and Turkey in Rumania and other subjects of these countries in a Rumanian ship to some designated port on the Black Sea, where they will be exchanged for the Rumanian representatives in Bulgaria and Turkey and other Rumanians residing in those countries.

Delegates representing Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey have met at Bucharest for a conference in regard to extension of traffic on the Danube.

BERLIN RUMANIANS BESIEGE OUR EMBASSY

Mr. Gerard in Charge of Interests of Rumanian Subjects Still in Germany.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Today was Rumanian Day at the American Embassy here. A notice posted on the front door of the Rumanian Ministry early this morning, advising all interested parties that the American Ambassador was intrusted with looking after Rumanian interests in Germany, caused a Rumanian offensive through the marble corridor of the Embassy on Mr. Gerard's office.

The rush of worried Rumanians, caught here by the declaration of war, was a surprise. To observers it seemed as if the storm in the Balkans had been brewing long enough to enable every one to get out in time, yet in Berlin alone there are over 600 who will now be added to the Germans' mixed family of protégés, mostly Rumanian business men long resident here, also many students and German-born wives of Rumanians.

Many who stormed the Embassy today still had hope of getting passes to leave the country, arguing that Germans were being permitted to leave Rumania. Others, however,, had not the slightest desire to return to Rumania, where they would promptly be put in the army, preferring life at a German interment camp to heroic death on the battlefield.

Mr. Gerard's services were further invoked today by an American correspondent who had received a mail summons "in the name of Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands," to repair forthwith to Holland, there to stand trial on two charges of violating Holland's neutrality by trying to smuggle embargoed foods into Germany. Mr. Gerard promised to use his good offices in the matter.

The correspondent had been innocently caught at the border with the goods on, consisting of a couple of pounds of oatmeal, butter and some condensed milk for his year-old baby. The charge recited the net weight of the oatmeal, etc., weighed without wrapping paper, to the fraction of a pound.

SAY BERLIN ADMITS FAILURE OF U-BOATS

London Hears that Chancellor Has Convinced Those Who Demanded Unrestricted Attacks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A wireless press message from Berne received today says that disillusionment about submarine warfare is now complete in official circles in Germany.

According to the information received here from Berlin, the Imperial Chancellor has pointed out the failure of submarine warfare, not only at secret sittings of the Bundesrat but to a considerable number of political leaders. Pan-German attacks and criticisms drove von Bethmann Hollweg to this course. Pan-Germanists accused him of slackness in abandoning unrestricted submarine frightfulness. The Chancellor was obliged to prove that it was not his own wish but failure of submarine operations which inspired his policy in this respect.

Definite information concerning the magnitude of Germany's losses in submarines now has been communicated to leaders of all parties and groups in the Reichstag, to the principal Berlin editors, and to the Berlin correspondents of some of the leading provincial papers. Most recipients of this information, including many who were formerly advocates of unlimited submarine warfare, rallied to the Chancellor's side and condemn his detractors, it is said. This of course was the object at which the Chancellor aimed in confessing the failure of submarine frightfulness.

Interned Vessels to be Transferred.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—To make room for improvements at the Norfolk Navy Yard, the two German auxiliary cruisers, the Kronprinz Wilhelm and the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, will be taken from the Norfolk and interned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Admiral William S. Benson, Acting Secretary of the Navy, said tonight that the transfer of the two cruisers from Norfolk to Philadelphia would take place sometime between Sept. 20 and Sept. 30. There are 744 German officers and enlisted men interned on the two vessels, and they will go to Philadelphia with their vessels. The two cruisers probably will be convoyed up the coast by several American battleships.

ELKUS VISTS BERLIN, SEES LITTLE OF WAR

Ambassador on Way to Turkey Surprised at Normal Appearance of German Capital.

PREDICTS WILSON VICTORY

Explains That the President Has Not Singled Out Germans in His Defiance of Hyphenates.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—The busiest man at the American Embassy today was the new Ambassador to Turkey, Abram I. Elkus, who arrived here recently via Copenhagen with his wife and three children, a carload of baggage, and a party of young collegians bound for Constantinople as teachers in Robert College there. Mr. Elkus accordingly had his hands full trying to catch an early Balkan train, but found time to be interviewed by Dr. Ludwig Stein, the Vossische Zeitung's expert on foreign politics.

Mr. Elkus denied the report that Henry Morgenthau had seriously offered to buy Palestine from the Turkish Government, explaining that it had only been a little after-dinner joke which the former Ambassador made in the presence of several Turkish statesmen. To Professor Stein's question whether he had any unpleasant experince on the journey or any complaints to make, Mr. Elkus replied:

"Neither we nor our American traveling companions felt anything of the war on the way. We are happy to find conditions in Berlin such that they would certainly make the best possible impression on my American friends as they did on us. I have repeatedly been in Berlin before. Immediately after my arrival this time I had a look at the streets, and, in company with my wife, observed life in the restaurants. To our great satisfaction we were struck by the fact that neither on the streets of Berlin nor still less in the restaurants could one notice anything of the war. We were able to confirm the remark that in Germany the 'democracy of the stomach' reigns.

"One cannot realize on looking at the Berliners that war has raged for more than two years. The diminished meat diet after all has certain healthful advantages for all of us. One becomes in general more elastic through diminished meat eating. I observed no change in the fundamental spirit here as compared with my earlier visits."

To a question regarding President Wilson's prospects Mr. Elkus replied:

"My firm conviction is that President Wilson will be re-elected by a large majority."

Mr. Elkus's interview, which runs two columns in the Vossiche Zeitung, further explains to the German people why such a pacifist as Mr. Wilson must win. He states that this year's Presidential fight is a struggle between Democratic pacifism and imperialism and militarism, and further that Mr. Wilson's recently reported sharp speech against Americans born under foreign flags, which was interpreted here as an attack on German-Americans, and consequently aroused considerable hard feeling, is not to be construed as an attack on German-Americans, but was meant to embrace all hyphenates.

To Professor Stein's last qestion, whether Mr. Elkus was bringing along a special political program for Turkey, the Ambassador replied:

"The program of the American Ambassador at Constantinople was laid down years ago. My predecessors, Mr. Straus and Mr. Morgenthau, held themselves strictly to it, and I shall endeavor to continue it. This program is essentially that America pursues no other goals in Turkey than those dictated by humanity. I do not come, as has been reported, to be an enemy of Turkey, but on the contrary, as an upright and warm friend. I hope to complete the beneficent activities of my predecessors. We Americans pursue in Turkey only the ideals of humanity. I go there with the peace palm in my hand. I can have no better reward for my work than that I might succeed through my modest activity in Constantinople in contributing to restore world peace."

SOCIALISTS BITTER IN CRY FOR PEACE

Circular Called "Hunger" Is Widely Circulated in Germany to Incite Wage Earners.

TELLS OF U-BOAT 'LIES'

Assails Food Exploiters and Predicts Death by Starvation for the Masses Unless the War Ends.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A Socialist antiwar leaflet entitled "Hunger" is being circulated broadcast in Germany. It is remarkable for its bitterness and its language of frank incitement. Evidently it is being distributed widely among the troops, for copies of it that reached Holland are all from soldiers. One copy of the leaflet was brought to a Dutch newspaper by a deserter. Another was thrown over the wire entanglements along the Dutch frontier by German soldiers recently returned from leave. The leaflet, which is printed on lurid red paper, reads as follows:

"What was expected has come—hunger in Leipsic, in Berlin, in Charlottenburg, in Brunswick, Magdeburg, Koblenz, and Osnabruck, as well as in many other places. Disorders, caused by the hungry masses, have occurred before shops dealing in foodstuffs, and those responsible for this state of things have no other remedy for the hungry masses than a state of siege, police swords, and military patrols.

"Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg blames England for the evils at present existing in Germany, and the advocates of the continuation of the war to the bitter end, as well as the supporters of the Government, repeat this prattle.

"Nevertheless, the German Government must know that this state of things was bound to come about. War against Russia, France, and England was bound to lead to the isolation of Germany. Our war-makers lament that our degenerate enemies have blockaded us, but why pursue such a course in politics as will inevitably lead to a blockade?

Assails Government Blunders.

"This criminal provocation of a world war was followed by further blunders. The Government has done nothing to prevent the present starvation of the masses. Why it has done nothing is because the Government clique of capitalists, junkers, and speculators in foodstuffs do not suffer as the masses of the people suffer. On the contrary, they grow richer through the hunger of the people.

"If from the outset of the war serious measures had been taken to prevent hunger and misery, the gravity of the situation would have been revealed to the blockaded masses, and thus enthusiasm for war would soon have cooled. Meanwhile the masses of the people were benumbed by victories and triumphs, although all the time they were being delivered into the hands of agrarian and capitalist food exploiters. The attempt was made to cause the masses to lose their cool common sense. The ruling classes do not wish to give up their plans as to the annexation of territory and the people are defrauded into the belief that if Germany can dictate the peace terms, her influence in the future will be predominant.

"We have been told lies as to German U-boats cutting off England's supplies and that England will be brought to her knees, and the war thus ended. These are fairy tales only fit for little children. Submarine warfare only makes fresh enemies for Germany, and it is impossible to cut off England's supplies even if Germany had ten times as many submarines as she at present possesses.

Charges a Deliberate Lie.

"Further, we were told that the attack on the Balkans would give Germany a chance of relieving the situation, as Turkey would be able to supply abundant foodstuffs. This was a deliberate lie, because all who are well informed know quite well that Turkey cannot supply anything, there being a lack of food both in Constantinople and on the coast of Asia Minor, in consequence of which the Turkish Government cannot even feed its own army.

"Now they would console us with the prospect of the coming harvest, saying all our misery will end immediately the corn is gathered. This is also a deliberate misstatement and simple calculation will prove it so. In the course of twenty-two months of war the produce of two harvests has been consumed, besides great quantities of cattle fodder, sugar and other foodstuffs, which had been accumulated prior to the outbreak of the war. Besides all this there was also what could be requisitioned in the occupied territory of Belgium, Northern France, Poland, Lithuania, the Baltic provinces, and Serbia, and also foodstuffs imported from Holland and the Scandinavian countries.

People Dying of Famine.

"Now there is nothing more. The occupied countries are depleted to the utmost. People already are dying of starvation in Poland and Serbia. The neutral countries are also closing their frontiers, as they are themselves beginning to suffer from lack of food. Our home harvest cannot supply very much on account of the fields having been insufficiently tilled through the deficiency of labor, fertilizer and seeds.

"The quantity of cattle available for food is small. It is now too late for the Food Dictator to provide for an equitable distribution. Foodstuffs exploiters have accomplished their work. Even if they were constrained it would avail nothing, for there is not now sufficient food to distribute to satisfy the people.

"This is the plain truth. The people have been incited to war in consequence of which supplies have been cut off. Capitalist criminals with the connivance of the Government have done the rest. What is to be expected in the future? We may carry on the war for half a year or a whole year longer, but meanwhile the people will slowly die of hunger, in which even the coming generation will be sacrificed.

"Men and women of the wage-earning class, it is with us the responsibility lies one way or the other. Either the masses of wage-earners will persevere in their stupid stolidity, in consequence of which there will be a long process of misery, disease, and death, or the wage-earners will exert themselves and refuse their services to the Government and the ruling classes, forcing them to make peace.

"There is no other way out. We must act! Come forth, men and women! Let your will prevail! Down with war! Long live the international solidarity of the wage-earning classes!"

Berlin Denies Food Riots.

BERLIN, Sept. 6, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The German newspapers today publish a statement obtained from "a competent authority" declaring that recent reports current in foreign countries that there had been hunger revolts in Germany were absolutely false. In fact, it is said, not one person has been killed in Germany on account of the question of supplies.

The denial was in reply to stories printed in French newspapers alleging that seven women had been killed in Berlin, that twenty persons had been killed at Muelhausen, and that the King of Württemberg had intervened to stop the riots at Stuttgart.

AID GERMAN WAR LOAN.

Berlin Reports Big Subscriptions, but London Calls It Failure.

BERLIN, Set. 6, (via Sayville.)—Subscriptions to the fifth German war loan, for which the lists were opened officially on Monday, continue to be received in large amounts. Three corporations have subscribed 29,000,000 marks and two more large subscriptions, one of 60,000,000 marks and one of 50,000,000, have been received.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Subscriptions to the German war loan during the first two days indicate that the loan is a failure, according to reports from Berlin to the Exchange Telegraph Company via Amsterdam. Returns for the first two days were far behind the total raised in that time for previous war loans.

A large number of subscriptions have been received from cities, savings banks, and munitions firms, the dispatches say, but the public has not responded and there is talk of extending the time limit to Oct. 15.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Following up their successes of yesterday and the day before, the French have struck another blow against the German defenses south of the Somme. Their plan seems to be more ambitious than any they have heretofore attempted. During the last few days we have seen the result of the French method of slowly creeping around the village from both sides before launching their attack directly for its capture. The process has become clear and the various steps may be readily followed. It is a leaf from the German book, a repetition of the German strategy employed so successfully against Russia a year ago, only now the French are out-Heroding Herod in their use of it.

This same process is now going on against that section of territory lying northwest of a line joining the junction of the Chaulnes-Roye and Chaulnes-Nesle railroad with the town of Berny. The French thrust of Tuesday carried them south to the outskirts of Berny, and westward to the woods of Chaulnes. The continuation of these attacks has taken almost all of the village of Berny, and has brought the French lines to the outskirts of Chaulnes and a little further south to the Chaulnes-Roye road.

The centre of the pocket which the French are endeavoring to close about the Germans is at Vermandovillers. This pocket is growing deeper with each day's advance. The German lines are consequently growing longer. Moreover, the French have taken the strongest of the German positions in this section and have thrown them back beyond their second line of defense. Gradually the railroad lines are becoming affected by being drawn under the French fire and the means of communications and supply distribution are being reduced in number.

While there is, in its present phase, no immediate important objective in this western offense, one fact connected with it must be constantly borne in mind in judging of this situation. Almost all other great offensives of the war have been directed against a salient which already existed. The temptation of attacking such a position is great because the success, if it is gained, will be great. Should the side of such salient give way under pressure all the forces which hold it, with all their guns, ammunition and impedimenta, are immediately caught. Escape is hardly possible, and then only with great loss. This was the situation at Verdun, and this is what the Germans were after. There were other considerations, of course, but this was undoubtedly one.

The Somme offense was started from within a salient and has had for its purpose the further development of a salient already existing. The result so far has been that this salient has been increased in depth and extended so that, as the process continues, the German line grows longer with each advance, with the corresponding difficulty of holding on.

On the north of the Somme, to return to the fighting itself, the same general process as that just referred to is going on. The French object here is of course Peronne. The French line as it is now run from about the centre of the woods of Marrière to the small village of Ommiecourt, which is on the south bank of the river in the Somme peninsula. Thence it follows the southern bank of the river closely beyond Biaches, whence it breaks away to the southwest just beyond Barleux. On the south bank of the river, then, the French are almost directly across the stream from Peronne. As has been stated in former summaries, it is almost impossible to take Peronne by a frontal attack delivered from the western bank of the river. The French must take it from the north if at all. It is in pursuance of this plan that the French fighting in the north is being pressed.

Slowly but steadily the German lines holding the rectangle formed by the bend in the River Somme and in the Cologne where it joins the Somme are being outflanked. Soon they will be taken not only on the flank, but in the rear as well. When this rectangle has been cleared the French will have taken the longest stride they have yet made toward reaching the vitals of the German position in the Noyons salient. Then also will the entire German position on the west bank north of Barleux be threatened and the river completely cleared as far south as Brie.

In view of the exceeding stiffness of the German defense for the last month and the inability of the French to make any impression on their lines the successes in this latest offensive have been most surprising. Whether it is that the Germans, feeling that their line south of the river was in fact impregnable, had drawn troops away for the purpose of strengthening their front from Thiepval to Maurepas no one can tell. It may be that the French have simply been concentrating a new supply of shell for this offensive, which will soon lapse pending another such accumulation. But whatever the point of view may be taken, the French successes have been little short of amazing.

After a period of comparative inactivity the Russians are again most active, and in the same general manner. Attacks are being made in a number of different sectors. One day one point is under heavy attack, the next day another. This cannot be otherwise than baffling to the Germans and their allies. When heavy attacks are launched in one place it is a simple matter to concentrate to meet them. But when a number of widely separated points are under intermittent attacks such concentrations become impossible, as it is impossible to predict where the blow will fall next. This has been Brusiloff's strategy for months, and it has been uniformly successful.

The lines are, as far as we can judge from such reports as have been received from this front, in approximately the same position as they were three weeks ago except for some minor advances in the Carpathian region. But the Russian attacks have resulted in the capture of about 25,000 men, so that certain advantages in position must have been gained. Most of these were captured when the Russians forced the crossing of the Zlota Lipa River and moved west through Brzezany. The others were captured in the Russian action against Halicz. There has also been severe fighting in the region east of Vladimir-Volynski, but it does not appear that the main effort of the Russians has yet been diverted from the attempt to take Lemberg.

The situation as it exists in Galicia seems to be that Bothmer has concentrated large forces along the Dniester for the defense of the approaches to Halicz, which point is the main element in the scheme of the defense of Lemberg from the south. It is, too, more than probable that a strong body of Germans are preparing for their main defense a line further to the west, as the centre and lower reaches of the Zlota Lipa, which constituted their main line of defense, have been crossed in so many places that this line is practically without further value. The new line is probably the Gnita Lipa, which is the last of the large streams east of Lemberg flowing north and south into the Dniester. Indications are that important developments in this field are pending, the culmination of which is likely to be rapid.

SOLDIERS BURY ZEPPELIN CREW

Officers and Men of British Flying Corps Bear Bodies of German Raiders to Grave.

GREAT CROWD LOOKS ON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The funeral of the crew of the German airship which was destroyed at Cuffley took place this afternoon in Potter's Bar Cemetery. All the arrangements were in the hands of officers of the Royal Flying Corps, who saw that the bodies had decent burial.

The ceremonies were those observed for men on active service, consisting of the simple Church of England burial service, followed by the sounding of taps. It was a quiet, dignified ceremony, without any ornate display such as people who had talked loosely about military honors seemed to fear might be made. There was no flag and no firing party.

The cemetery, a little inclosure of two or three acres, lying among newly cut hayfields, does not yet boast a chapel. All the service, therefore, was conducted at the grave side. The coffins of the crew were placed in one large grave, and that of the commander in another grave.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A great crowd gathered today to witness the funeral of sixteen members of the crew of the Zeppelin which was brought down during Saturday night's raid. In view of the strong protests which had been made against the burial of the German airmen with military honors, a strong force of police was on duty to maintain order. The whole route to the cemetery in the little village of Potter's Bar, where the bodies of the Germans were buried, was lined with police.

Spectators began to arrive by train, automobile and bicycle long before noon, and seized on the hill near the entrance to the cemetery as a point of vantage. Others gathered in nearby fields, for entrance to which farmers made a small charge.

The funeral procession was severely simple. There was nothing resembling a military pageant, and the crowd which saw it pass was silent and unmoved. At the head was a military lorry which carried a coffin containing the body of the Zeppelin commander. Another lorry bore the coffins of the bodies of the crew. Several British airmen rode in the procession. A man in an automobile threw something at the British airmen and the crowd promptly rebuked him. As the procession was entering the cemetery a woman threw two eggs, and the crowd again protested.

The body of the German officer was borne to the grave by six officers of the Royal Flying Corps. The other coffins were carried by men of the same corps. The service at the grave side was an abbreviation of the ordinary Church of England ceremony, conducted by army chaplains. The sounding of taps was the only characteristic of a military funeral by which the ceremony was marked.

The number of the wrecked Zeppelin was disclosed for the first time in the inscription on the coffin containing the body of the Zeppelin commander. The airship was the L-21. The only coffin marked was that of the commander, and it bore these words:

"An unknown German officer killed while commanding the L-21, Sept. 3, 1916."

William Bow, a shibuilder, today forwarded a check for £500 to Lieutenant William Robinson, who brought down the Zeppelin. Mr. Bow had offered that sum to the first aviator to bring down a German airship on British soil. Several other rewards, amounting all together to $3,000, have been offered.

AGAIN REPORT LARGE DAMAGE.

Berlin Tells of Results of Raid, but London Contradicts.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—An additional official report on the Zeppelin raid on England the night of Sept. 3, issued here today, says:

"The fortress of London City and the northern and northwestern portions of London were repeatedly bombed. Within four hours numerous conflagrations proved the success of the attack.

"Other airships attacked the factories and fortifications of Norwich, where strong explosions and fires occurred.

"Searchlights, batteries, and industrial works at Oxford, Harwich, Boston, and on the Humber were bombed and numerous fires caused. In Yarmouth the gas works and an aerodrome were attacked and a battery was silenced.

"At Nottingham military works and factories were attacked and a fire caused which was visible for a distance of forty miles.

"During the attacks the airships were subjected to heavy artillery bombardments, especially when over London. In addition to the attacks from land they were sought out by searchlights and rockets, one airship being simultaneously illuminated by not fewer than eighteen searchlights, but all attacks upon them were unsuccessful."

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Commenting on the German official report regarding the Zeppelin raid, the British Official Press Bureau gave out this statement:

"It is only necessary to repeat that the damage done, viz., practically nil, was exactly what was reported in the British communiqués. There were no conflagrations of any importance and no explosions."

WAR SITUATION GOOD, REICHSTAG LEADERS TOLD

Bethmann Hollweg Meets Them—Hindenburg to Organize Teuton Defence, Says One Witer.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 6. — At last evening's important conference Dr. Bethmann Hollweg told the Reichstag party leaders that Hindenburg and Ludendorff had both stated that the general military situation was good and gave no cause for alarm; that, naturally, it was not to be denied that Rumania's entry made the situation more difficult, but that the final favorable outcome of the war was in no way influenced thereby. Further, he said, the extension of the age limit for military service from 45 to 50 years was not even being considered, which should be construed as a favorable sign.

Professor Otto Hoetzsch, the Kreuz Zeitung's foreign political expert, explains the appointment of Hindenburg and Ludendorff to the supreme command as due to the fact that the war now has entered a new phase of pure defense for the Central Powers. He says:

"Our original task of pure defense was fulfilled in February, 1915. Since then our warfare was directed in several phases of the war to making forward thrusts to secure ourselves. The victories in Galicia and Poland, the break through Serbia, the victory at the Dardanelles, the offensive against Italy, the undertaking at Verdun, fighting in Mesopotamia, and the beginning of operations at the Suez Canal all served this purpose.

"During these last operations the Entente Allies, after endless preparations, succeeded in setting up a united front and resumed the offensive, and no wthe entry of Rumania again brings us face to face with the task of pure defense against the determined will of our enemies to destroy us by making most unscrupulous use of all means. This task of defense the Kaiser now entrusts to Hindenburg and Ludendorff.

"We want to look in the eye plainly and quietly the dangers that threaten us. Fro mthe recent course of events, however, we draw two great lessons:

"First, that time, as long as the operations stand, still works more for our enemies than for us, especially when time is made the most of by English diplomacy working so conscious of its purpose, so brutally and stubbornly.

"Secondly, that we must no longer indulge in the luxury of illusions and self-deception. The existence of our empire and of the States allied with us is at stake. Therefore all other considerations should be relegated to the background, particularly in the handling of political crises that are still ahead of us. Even the military undertaking must now be an action with a political purpose. Hindenburg can be sure that the confidence in him and his staff is so great that he can put the nerves and sinews of the army, the flee, and the whole nation to the utermost test."

GERMAN PRESS PESSIMISTIC.

Vorwaerts Says Peace Speeches Are Applauded Everywhere.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The Daily Express this morning prints the extracts from the Berlin Socialist organ, Vorwärts:

"If the Central authorities still have any doubts as to the real sentiments of the people in regard to the continuance of this frightful struggle, they should personally attend some of the crowded meetings, now being held in various parts of the empire.

"At all of these gatherings the demand for speedy peace without any annexations is received with thunderous cheers.

"At one of these gatherings Deputy Kappler declared that the only real guarantees against the repetition of such a catastrophe lay in the disarmament of all States and the establishment of an international compulsory arbitration court. In the meantime, however, he added, a truce with Great Britain must be arranged, even if at the sacrifice of some of Germany's chief ambitions."

The Schwabische Tagwacht of Stuttgart is quoted as saying:

"Even if the Russians, Italians, and all of the continental allies were beaten, England's naval supremacy would not be destroyed and we may go so far as to say that unless a miracle happens this object will never be realized, not even though the war lasts thirty years. Prolongation of the war can only plunge us into deeper misery and expose us to the gravest perils."

The Berlin Post says:

"The recall of von Falkenhayn is equivalent to an admission by Germany of the defeat suffered before Verdun, an admission which comes more than six months after the beginning of this gigantic adventure.

"It was said that Falkenhayn would be fully justified in the sacrifice of half a million men if he could capture Verdun. He has lost the élite of the Imperial armies and now Verdun represents a military defeat, the consequences of which are now seen in Northern France, in Russia, in the Trentino, and on the Isonzo. It further constitutes a moral defeat of which the reaction is at this moment felt so seriously in the Balkans."

WRITER SENT TO BELLEVUE

Modeste Hannis Jordan Wrote Threatening Letters to Lawyer.

Modeste Hannis Jordan, writer and President of the Hannis Jordan Company, publishers, 32 Union Square, was committed to Bellevue Hospital for observation yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Groehl in Tombs Court. She is 58 years old and lives at 615 West 136th Street.

Assistant District Attorney Minton instituted the action against Miss Jordan and signed the affidavit on which she was committed. Dr. Perry Lichtenstein, the Tombs physician, testified that he observed Miss Jordan in Mr. Minton's office a week ago yesterday, and in his opinion she talked incoherently.

According to the testimony of Mr. Minton, the complaint was made to him a week ago by Frederick B. Campbell, a member of the law firm of Butler, Wyckoff & Campbell of 54 Wall Street, that Miss Jordan had written several threatening letters to him, in one challenging him to a duel and in another threatening to horsewhip him. Mr. Minton further testified that Miss Jordan had been ordered out of the office of the law firm two years ago after repeated visits to confer with Frederick M. Brown, an attorney, who has an office with the firm of Butler, Wyckoff & Campbell, but who is not a member of the firm. According to Mr. Minton, Mr. Campbell asserts that her frequent visits became annoying both to his partners and to Mr. Brown and resulted in her exclusion from the office.

In her own behalf yesterday Miss Jordan admitted writing the letters to Mr. Campbell and gave as her excuse the fact that she had reason to believe that the attorney said she ought to be in an insane asylum. After a conference with Mr. Minton a week ago the Assistant District Attorney said Miss Jordan promised to cease writing to Campbell, but yesterday she telephoned to the District Attorney's office and demanded an interview with Mr. Swann. She was told to come to the building and when she did she was taken before the Magistrate.

CLASH AT BUILDING INQUEST

Bronx Official's Defense Is Called "Canned Evidence."

Coroner William J. Flynn yesterday began the inquest into the deaths of the two men killed in the collapse, on Aug. 23, of the tenement under construction at Marion Avenue and 188th Street, the Bronx. The Coroner's jury was headed by George B. Cortelyou, President of the Consolidated Gas Company. George W. Perkins was to have served as a juryman, but was excused in order that he might devote his time to matters before the Interstate Park Commission, of which he is a member.

The principal witness of the day was Robert J. Moorehead, Superintendent of Buildings in the Bronx. He said he knew little about legal procedure, and asked if he might read a statement which he had prepared. Assistant District Attorney Seymour Mork objected to what he thought would prove to be a "eulogy of the Building Department," but was not sustained.

Mr. Mork and District Attorney Martin both strove to prove that there were many unnecessary offices in Mr. Moorehead's department, and the witness frequently became so embarrassed by the persistent quizzing that his speech halted.

The District Attorney then turned to Mr. Moorehead's statement and brought out the fact that Borough President Douglas Mathewson and Thomas Shannon Press, Republican candidate for District Attorney, had assisted in its preparation. Mr. Martin declared that the statement was merely "canned evidence." The inquest will be continued tomorrow morning at 9:30 in the Surrogate's Court.

WANT GOV. JOHNSON TO ASSIST HUGHES

Republican Managers Trying to Get the Californian to Stump the Middle West.

SEEK TO SOLIDIFY MOOSE

Hughes Makes No Speeches While Speeding to New England—Gets Up-State Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

ON BOARD HUGHES TRAIN, SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—While Charles E. Hughes was hurrying on to Maine today to supplement by his efforts the work done there by Theodore Roosevelt and other campaigners, it was learned that efforts were being made by the Republican managers to get Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California to make a quick tour of the Middle West and some Eastern States in order to get the Progressives into line.

The Western campaign just concluded by Mr. Hughes has shown that the result of the election in November will rest largely with the Progressives, who hold the balance of power in the so-called doubtful States at least. The Democrats have been making a great play, it was said, to stir up discontent among the former followers of Roosevelt and have put forward the incidents which occurred while Mr. Hughes was in California, including his failure to meet Governor Johnson there, as valuable campaign material.

This has emphasized in the minds of the managers of the Hughes campaign the advisability of bringing Governor Johnson before the voters of the Middle West as a campaigner in Hughes's behalf. It is even possible that Colonel Roosevelt will be consulted in the efforts which are being made to get Johnson out into the country for a short campaign.

The principal stumbling block in the way of such plans, it was intimated today, is the fact that Johnson has a hard campaign on his hands in the fight for United States Senator from California. Old Guard Republicans there threatened to turn their efforts toward the election of a Democrat if Johnson won in the Republican primaries, and if they carry on such a fight now that Johnson has the nomination he may feel that he as no time to devote to other matters.

Some of the Moose Unruly.

The Republican managers are very anxious, however, to have both Roosevelt and Johnson go into such States as Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. In Michigan a number of Progressives, a bit discontented with the way the campaign has been going, have come out for President Wilson, and, while the Republicans feel confident of carrying Michigan, they do not want such things to continue because of the effect they might have in other States. In Indiana it is believed the Progressives will control the result, and the Republicans do not want any room for doubt about the Illinois Progressives.

It has not been determined just how far west Colonel Roosevelt will go, but it may be decided to keep him in the Middle West and the East if Johnson turns loose his influence for the election of Mr. Hughes by a campaign tour. Johnson, by his victory in the Republican primaries of California, has gained a new importance as a powerful figure in Progressive and Republican politics in the West. With Hughes, Roosevelt and Johnson working in concert, it is felt, much could be accomplished to put new ginger into the campaign and bring recalcitrant Progressives back into the Republican fold so far as the national ticket is concerned.

Mr. Hughes made no speeches after his brief address in Cincinnati last night while the private cars were being changed to another train. He felt, he said, that the Western trip had been most successful.

"This may be said to mark the conclusion of this particular tour, so far as the West and Middle West are concerned," he said. "Everywhere we have been met with the utmost cordiality, and the depth of feeling that has been manifested has indicated to me that there is very little doubt with respect to the result in November."

Mr. Hughes has covered nearly 10,000 miles since he left New York on Aug. 5, and, while a bit wearied, he is still in good health and voice. He is going into Maine determined to make a vigorous fight and to carry on his attack upon the Wilson Administration because of the passage of the Adamson law and its tariff record. It is probable that Mr. Hughes will go into more detail in regard to the situation which has arisen because of the threatened strike of the railroad men.

Gets Reports on Up-State.

Mr. Hughes heard favorable reports today from the sections of New York through which he passed. He was told that George W. Aldridge of Rochester, Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, and other up-State leaders were making a real fight in his behalf, and that there was strong sentiment for him at least in the big cities.

Ex-State Senator Harvey D. Hinman of Binghamton, an old friend of Mr. Hughes, who ran in the primaries for Governor in 1914 against Governor Whitman, joined Mr. Hughes at Buffalo to discuss with him the issues the candidate will present in his tour of the New England States. Mr. Hinman was confident that Mr. Hughes would show great strength in New York State.

Talk among up-State politicians seemed to favor the chances of William M. Calder for the nomination as United States Senator against Robert Bacon. The feeling here is that Bacon started his campaign too late, after the followers of Mr. Calder were strongly organized.

Mr. Hughes is planning for a vigorous and extended campaign in New York State, as he realizes the importance of victory here, but he will not take any part in the local primary fight. It is probable that from one week to ten days will be devoted to New York.

The Hughes party will reach Boston at 7:05 o'clock tomorrow morning. Present plans are for breakfast at the Copley Plaza, after which the candidate will depart at 8:45 o'clock for Beverly, Mass., famous as the Summer home of President Taft, where he will make a short address. He will then address a meeting at Hampton Beach, near Portsmouth, N. H., and close the day's campaigning with meetings at York Harbor and Portland, Me.

FEAR 8 HOURS AS ISSUE.

Hughes Managers Debate Attacking Wilson on Railroad Bill.

While the Republican National Campaign Committee is still debating the propriety of making a national political issue out of the eight-hour railroad bill, prominent leaders in many States, it was learned yesterday, are going to make the most of the situation in their Senatorial and Congressional fights. Several members of the committee are opposed to attacking the Democratic Party on this issue because of the danger of alienating the labor vote.

Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts and Senator George T. Oliver of Pennsylvania told Chairman Willcox yesterday that the issue would be a vote getter, in their opinion, if the attack was made, not upon the bill itself, but upon the manner in which it was forced through Congress by President Wilson.

"In my opinion," said Senator Weeks, "it is going to be one of the most important issues of the campaign. Of course, to be frank, we will not call it the eight-hour law; that might be dangerous. We will call it the raised-wage law."

"I wonder if Mr. Hughes will advocate the repeal of the eight-hour law?" was the comment made by Vance McCormick, Democratic Chairman.

SEABURY COURTS VOTERS.

Holds Reception in Albany—On Tour of the State.

ALBANY, Sept. 6.—Samuel Seabury, designee for the Democratic nomination for Governor, held a reception at the Ten Eyck Hotel this evening. Judge Seabury has held other receptions at Beacon, Poughkeepsie, Red Hook, Hudson, Troy, and Schenectady.

Judge Seabury will visit Amsterdam, Herkimer, and Utica tomorrow. On succeeding days he will visit the central and western counties of the State. He will return to New York through the Southern tier counties. One of those who shook hands with Judge Seabury tonight expressed regret at his leaving the bench.

"I am not going to leave you," the Judge replied. "I am simply going to change floors, from the court room into the Executive chamber."

Judge Seabury shook hands with several hundred persons, including Judge William H. Cuddeback of the Court of Appeals, John N. Calisle, William Temple Emmet, and Patrick E. McCabe, Daniel J. Dugan, and Postmaster William H. Murray.

CONNERS TO BET ON ERIE.

Ex-Chairman Says Wilson Will Carry County by 10,000.

Chairman Vance McCormick of the Democratic National Committee said yesterday that he had been receiving reports from up-State and was satisfied that the State organization was working in thorough harmony with the National Committee. State Chairman Edwin S. Harris and ex-Chairman William J. Conners of Buffalo called upon Mr. McCormick yesterday and predicted that President Wilson would carry the State.

"I am ready to bet money that Erie County will give President Wilson from 10,000 to 15,000 majority," said Mr. Conners. "Six weeks ago it looked as if Mr. Hughes would have a plurality of 20,000 in Erie, but conditions have changed as I have never seen them change before. The Democrats are enthusiastic over the situation and the Republicans are discouraged."

Mrs. Funk, Suffragist, for Wilson.

Mrs. Antoinette Funk, suffragist and a lawyer in Illinois, announced yesterday through Democratic National Headquarters, that she would support President Wilson for re-election. In a letter to Chairman McCormick Mrs. Funk said that one of the reasons for her decision to support the President was because of his attitude on the eight-hour law.

SECRETARY DANIELS IS BACK FROM MAINE

Says Democrats Admit Republicans Are in Majority on Straight Party Vote.

FINDS WILSON STRONG

But Chairman Willcox Is Confident of Republican Success in the Election on Monday.

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, returned yesterday from Maine, where he has been stumping for the Democratic ticket, and after a conference with Chairman Vance McCormick of the National Committee, went on to Washington. The Secretary spent ten days in the State.

"The people of Maine are prosperous," he said. "They believe in the President's firm and wise policy which has kept the country out of war, and if there could be a referendum, free from old-time party alignment, Maine would vote a thundering approval.

"The vote on Monday will be complicated by local issues. I haven't the slightest doubt but that the Democrats would win if the State and Presidential elections were held simultaneously in Maine. The President is many thousands of votes stronger than the State ticket.

"Democratic leaders in Maine are frank to admit that on a strict party vote there are more Republicans than Democrats, but from my observations there is no doubt that the Progressive and Independent vote is veering toward the Democratic ticket."

"We have to overcome a combined Progressive-Republican lead of 23,000," said Chairman McCormick, "but all our reports are most promising."

Chairman Willcox of the Republican National Committee was just as confident of Republican success.

"My advices from Maine to-day," he said, "declare that the election of the entire Republican ticket with the exception of Wallace H. White, Jr., our candidate for Congress in the Second District, is conceded by Democrats all over the State. We hear that the most desperate efforts are being made to assist Representative McGillicuddy to re-election. Samuel Gompers has been sent to Maine by the Democratic campaign organization in the effort to save McGillicuddy's seat."

170 TO STUMP FOR BACON.

Big Drive Starts in Primary Campaign for U. S. Senator.

The Bacon Senatorial Committee announced yesterday that it would send more than 170 speakers through the State immediately in the interest of Robert Bacon's candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Seventy more up-State Republicans have agreed to serve upon Mr. Bacon's Primary Committee.

"Nothing can prevent Mr. Bacon's nomination now except the endeavor in some counties to make it appear that his nomination is not favored by the organization," said Job E. Hedges, campaign manager, yesterday. "In every county but three there are many prominent Republicans working for Mr. Bacon. I have made no endeavor to build up a factional struggle. Mr. Bacon is as regular as any Republican and can be made an asset to the party."

The former Ambassador will visit the State Fair at Syracuse next Monday, where he expects to meet Charles E. Hughes. In the evening both will attend a dinner to be given by the State Fair managers.

DEMOCRATS WON'T CONTEST

Field Abandoned in 3 Congress and 5 Senate Districts.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 6.—In three Congress and five State Senate districts there will be no Democratic candidates before the electors this Fall. Cornelius O. Seabring of Spencer was designated by petition for the Democratic nomination for Senator in the Forty-first District but he declined and the vacancy was not filled when the time expired last night. The other Senate districts with no Democratic nominees are the Thirtieth, the Thirty-fourth, the Forty-second, and the Fifty-first Districts.

The Congressional districts without Democratic nominees are the Twenty-ninth, the Thirty-sixth, and the Forty-third.

GASOLINE DOWN A CENT.

Standard Oil Co. Announces Second Cut—Price Now 22 Cents.

A reduction of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline was announced yesterday by the Standard Oil Company of New York. This makes the wholesale price 22 cents a gallon. It is the second cut in the price of gasoline this year. The first was on Aug. 7.

The reason given for the decline is the heavy increase in the production of crude oil.

TWO FREIGHTERS SUNK; AMERICANS IN CREWS

Washington Investigates Destruction of the Kelvinia and the Stella Delmare in War Zone.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Sinking of two vessels in the European war zone with Americans aboard was reported to the State Department today by American Consular officers. The State Department will investigate both incidents to determine if American rights have been violated. There is no information now at hand to indicate that either vessel was attacked illegally.

A dispatch from Consul McCunn at Glasgow announced that there were twenty-eight Americans on board the British steamer Kelvinia when she was sunk by a mine or torpedo on Sept. 2 while bound from Newport News to Avonmouth and Glasgow. All of the Americans, muleteers, were rescued and now are in Glasgow.

Consul Hurst at Barcelona reported that James Andrews and Lon Bruce, "presumably" Americans, were among the crew of the Italian sailing vessel Stella Delmare, which was sunk by a submarine off the Balearic Islands on Aug. 29. The message did not state whether the crew was saved nor give the addresses of the two men believed to be American citizens.

POLICE WAR ON ROBBERS.

Dilworth Murder Followed by Campaign to Suppress Holdups.

An extensive campaign to suppress footpads in the Bronx has been started by the police, following the murder of Dwight P. Dilworth on the Golf Links Road in Van Cortlandt Park Sunday night. Several men, either accused or suspected of complicity in holdups, have been arrested. Captain Andrew Wines, who returned from his vacation and resumed command of the Bronx Branch Detective Bureau yesterday, is now directing the hunt for the Dilworth murderers.

Bernard Desia of 59 East 210th Street was arrested early yesterday in connection with the robbery of a man whose name was given to the police as Charles Colby of 357 West 123d Street and who was held up on the Golf Links Road on the night of Aug. 26, one week before Dilworth was killed, and robbed of $36 and a diamond ring. Desio, according to the police, has been arrested two or three times and served a term in the workhouse.

George Leyden of 302 White Plains Avenue and Tony Gadina, who lives in the Bronx, were also arrested yesterday. They are suspected by the police of having been implicated in the holding up of a card game in Mount Vernon on Saturday night. Mis Mary McNiff, Dilworth's companion at the time of the tragedy, has not yet been asked to look at the prisoners to see if she can identify them.

Miss McNiff was in the office of Assistant District Attorney William Quigley of Bronx County for more than two hours yesterday morning, and corroborated in every detail the story which she had previously told of the two roughly-dressed men who tried to hold Dilworth up when his automobile was stalled, and who shot him when he rushed at them instead of giving up his money. The police are still without clues other than her statement.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 6.—The refusal of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Tompkins, neighbors, because of other plans, to take a motor ride with Dwight P. Dilworth, the Montclair lawyer, who was murdered Sunday night in Van Cortlandt Park, led him to go to New York and take the ride with Miss Mary McNiff which ended in his death, it was said today.

"Well, then I'll go over to New York and get some friends," Dilworth was said to have remarked after the Tompkinses had declined his invitation. After some further conversation he departed.

PUTS SHEEN ON TRINITY DIAL

Steeplejack Washes Face of Clock as Crowd Watches.

Persons in lower Broadway stopped at Wall Street yesterday to witness an unusual sight. The old clock in the historic tower of Trinity Church was having its face washed for the first time in sixteen years.

Since the explosion at Black Tom Island a steeplejack has been busy going over the outside of Trinity Church from the great cross at the steeple top to the very base. It had been thought that possibly some stones or ornamental knobs had been misplaced by the explosion, but investigation has proved that this is not the case. In going over the clock on his tour of inspection the steeplejack took occasion to do a little housecleaning, and the dazzling effect of his labors made many of the old-town population imagine that gold leaf had been put on the numerals and the figures and hands.

The last time the face of the old clock was polished up, so far as any one around Old Trinity remembers, was in 1900.

SENATE DELAYS VOTE ON DANISH TREATY

Stone Asks for Action, but Yields to Give Absentees Opportunity for Discussion.

DANISH PARTY SHIFTS

Proposal for a Coalition Cabinet and Submission of Question of Sale to a Plebiscite.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Administration Senators tonight had hopes of ratifying at this session of Congress the treaty to purchase the Danish West Indies for $25,000,000. After several hours' discussion in executive session, there were clear indications that more than two-thirds of the Senators favored the purchase.

Senator Stone, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, asked for a vote tonight, but yielded when informed that Senators Borah and Cummins, who were absent, desired to discuss the treaty before any vote was taken. A few Senators, including Senators Norris, Nelson and Thomas, said they thought the price to be paid was too high.

Among Republican Senators who urged ratification of the treaty was Senator Penrose, who declared the islands should be acquired at once and said the price was not too great to pay. Senator Lewis urged immediate ratification of the treaty, and acquisition of the islands as soon as possible.

When the Senate adjourned, it was with the understanding that another executive session would be held tomorrow and a vote on the treaty asked. Several Democratic Senators said they believed ratification would follow. Senator Stone would make no prediction.

Danish Conservatives Shift on Sale.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6.—At a meeting of party representatives today the leader of the Conservative Party presented a proposal for a coalition Cabinet and a settlement of the question of selling the West Indies through a committee of thirty members, fifteen from each House. This committee would consider the matter and report. Two weeks later the matter would be submitted to a plebiscite. In case half the votes are cast against any sale, the Cabinet would inform the United States Government that the treaty could not be carried out.

Dr. Ellinger, the Conservative leader, said the present Government was right when it held that international questions should be lifted out of the realm of home politics, and he wished this proposal to be regarded as a concession to this idea, to the end that general elections may be avoided.

Moderate Liberals are ready to support the Conservative proposal, which is taken here to show that the Opposition, feeling that public opinion is against political manoeuvres in connection with the sale, is abandoning its original position.

The situation thus seems to be developing toward a carrying out of the policy of the Government.

DENOUNCE SETTLEMENT.

Sherman Will Make Speeches, Asserting Railroad Men Were Buncoed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Senator Sherman of Illinois, who voted against the strike settlement bill in the Senate, will leave Washington as soon as Congress adjourns to make speeches, in which he will inform railroad workers that they were "buncoed" by the eight-hour legislation.

Mr. Sherman regards the enactment of the strike settlement law as a humiliation to the country, and feels that it marks a dangerous tendency which he desires to counteract, as far as possible, by direct communication with railroad workers. He is anxious to have it known that he voted against the bill.

CONWAY HAS HEADQUARTERS

His Managers Make New Suggestion for Debate with McCombs.

Headquarters for ex-Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Conway, candidate for the nomination for United States Senator in the Democratic primaries, have been opened at the Biltmore Hotel. Louis M. Antisdale of Rochester is among his up-State supporters, it was announced.

Disappointment was expressed by Mr. Conway's managers that William F. McCombs, the organization candidate, had refused to take part in a joint public debate.

"If it turns out that Mr. McCombs is really so busy in the next two weeks that he cannot meet his opponent," it was said yesterday, "the Conway headquarters will probably offer the further suggestion that Mr. McCombs could find time on Saturday night and Monday night immediately before the primary election to appear on the same platform with his opponent in Carnegie Hall and the Brooklyn Academy of Music."

PLAN TORCHLIGHT PARADES.

Republicans Promise Old-Fashioned Campaign in New Jersey.

William B. Brewster, Secretary of the National Republican League, announced yesterday that his organization had under way an active Hughes and Fairbanks campaign in New Jersey, although the primaries for Senatorial and State candidates will not be held until Sept. 28.

"We now have 100,000 enrolled members in the Hughes and Fairbanks clubs in New Jersey," he said, "and before the campaign is over we will have 50,000 more. Mercer County has one club of 4,000 members, and Atlantic County has a uniformed marching club of 3,000. Our Jersey clubs held seventy-two meetings last week, at which plans were made for conducting an old-fashioned campaign with bonfires and torchlight processions. We will hold seven big rallies in the State before election day."

WILL TAKE BRIDE TO JAPAN.

Dr. Henry S. Haskell to Wed Miss Regina Farrell Next Month.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 6.—Mrs. John Henry Farrell has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Regina Farrell, to Dr. Henry Smith Haskell of Yokohama, Japan. Dr. Haskell is a brother of Colonel William N. Haskell, U. S. A., of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, who married the sister of the bride-to-be of his brother. The wedding will be a quiet affair and will be solemnized next month.

After a short wedding trip Dr. Haskell will return to Japan with his bride.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS— And Chlorinated Lime

Although Infantile Paralysis is on the decrease, mothers must still use vigilance in protecting their children. Note, therefore, that the Department of Health, City of New York, has advised physicians to use Chlorinated Lime as a disinfectant in all cases of Infantile Paralysis. The United States Government recommends the use of Chlorinated Lime as a most effective and economical germ killer and deodorant.

Disinfectants must be fresh to be effective. Thousands of grocers and druggists have just received a fresh supply of Acme Chlorinated Lime. Do not accept substitutes which may be stale and worthless.

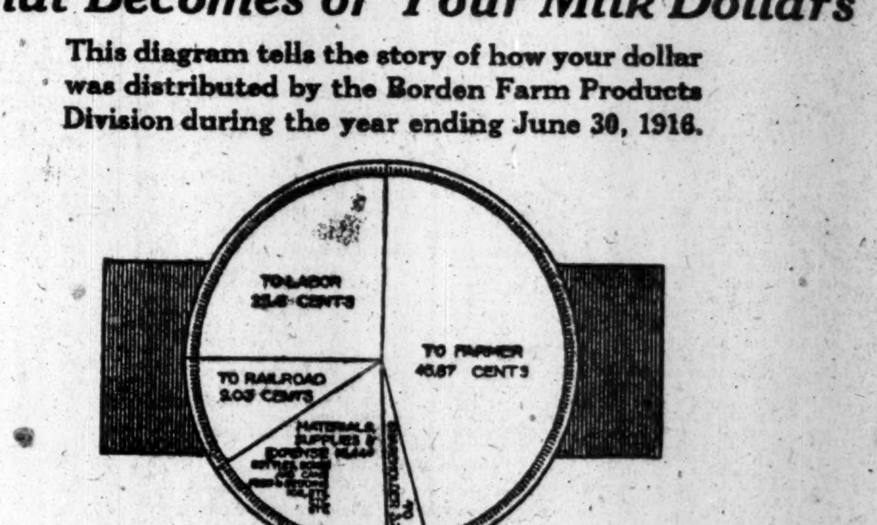
What Becomes of Your Milk Dollars

This diagram tells the story of how your dollar was distributed by the Borden Farm Products Division during the year ending June 30, 1916.



You will observe that out of this dollar there is retained 3¼ cents as profit to the distributor.

And remember this—that nothing that comes to your table requires anything like the comprehensive SERVICE that a good milk supply demands. We supervise the production of Borden's milk with a corps of ninety-two inspectors and veterinarians. These constitute the largest inspectorial force in the world devoted to supervising a milk supply.

This force is nearly twice as large as the combined inspectorial force of New York and Chicago. It means that the Borden supply is the most intensively inspected large supply of milk in America. This service also includes the operation of clean, orderly plants in the country where the milk is produced and a never ceasing supervision over the product until it is delivered to your door, and the law requires that it be delivered at a temperature not higher than 50 degrees.

It provides a service that keeps the production of each day moving in a constant stream from the dairying districts—sometimes nearly four hundred miles away—to the consuming markets.

It provides a service that requires a milkman to come to your door at a certain hour each day, rain or shine, hot or cold, and there never was a time when New York had a whole day's supply ahead.

It provides a service that cannot be interrupted for one day without serious inconvenience, endangering the lives of thousands of children.

Fresh milk, unlike other commodities, cannot be stored, cannot be held, cannot be juggled on the market, but must be turned over every day or its value is so impaired that what is realized is only salvage instead of value.

No food product demands such exacting service on the part of the distributor. No staple product on the market provides the distributor with so small a net profit as

JUSSERAND LAUDS OUR 'LAFAYETTES'

The French Ambassador Likens Americans in the Trenches to Revolutionary Hero.

BECK PRAISES THE FRENCH

At Celebration of Patriot's Birthday He Suggests Monument to Them at Verdun.

The oneness in spirit, the sameness in ideals, and the identity in purpose of the America of 1776 and of the France of 1916—such was the reflection of the spirited celebration yesterday of the 159th anniversary of the birth of Lafayette. America thanked France for the young Marquis, who helped to win the fight for freedom on this side of the Atlantic; France thanked America for the "Volunteers of 1914."

"Never in my country," said M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, at a dinner in his honor last night at the Waldorf-Astoria, "will the American volunteers of the great war be forgotten. Serving in the ambulances, serving in the legion, serving in the air, serving liberty, obeying the same impulses that brought Lafayette to these shores, many young Americans, leaving family and homes, have offered to France their lives. America has shown tonight that she does not forget; France will show that she remembers."

The celebration yesterday was only the second of its kind, but it has been planned to make Lafayette Day a permanent American institution. The exercises in the afternoon, centring at the City Hall, were under the direction of the Lafayette Day Citizens' Committee; the dinner to M. Jusserand last night was under the direction of the France-America Society.

Felicitations from Briand.

The 800 diners, all prominent citizens, cheered the expressions of the hopes of France by M. Jusserand and other speakers. F. Cunliffe-Owen, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the society, was the toastmaster. He said England rightly had a rôle to play in the honoring of Marquis Lafayette, and added:

"The nation against whom Lafayette and France were helping George Washington and the United States to win their independence in the eighteenth century was Great Britain. Times have altered since then. Today America's independence Day is almost as much of a national holiday in Great Britain as here in this country. George Washington is looked upon in Great Britain as an English national hero, as one who fought for those rights dear to every Briton, as they are to all Americans and Frenchmen. Something over 2,000,000 British soldiers are now in France, fighting shoulder to shoulder with their heroic French comrades, to rid the soil of France of the horrors of German invasion—a task in which they have, I know, the heartfelt sympathy of all present, and at least 80 per cent. of the American nation."

M. Jusserand read the following cable messages from the Premier of France:

> The President of the Republic, who has received from Mr. Cunliffe-Owen a telegram of enthusiastic sympathy for France, begs you to communicate to the members and guests of the France-America Society his sincere thanks, and he sends his warmest good wishes and cordial felicitations for the excellent work of this flourishing society. BRIAND.
> The France-America Society has had the kindness to invite me to the banquet which it is giving tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria. I am much touched by this courteous invitation. I beg you to express my regrets, and to transmit to the society my warmest wishes for the continuation of its excellent work, so useful for the maintenance of the cordial relations between the two countries united by century-old ties of affection and unity of aspirations. BRIAND.

Messages of regret were read from Colonel Roosevelt, Mayor Mitchel, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Joseph H. Choate, Lord Aberdeen, and Frederic R. Coudert.

In his speech M. Jusserand paid an eloquent tribute to young Americans who had lost their lives fighting for France.

Estabrook Delivers Eulogy.

Henry D. Estabrook drew a picture of the turmoil of the world of today, of the world collectively and of the people in it individually. He said the ideals of push and hustle accredited to most modern men brought them no satisfaction.

"Men, and brethren," he said, "I have preached my sermon in advance. To take it out of the abstract of ethics into the concrete of experience I propose to illustrate it by the life work of one man; not a genius, in the sense of that mental bias we call genius, but a sane man, as Washington was sane; a good man, as Washington was good; a man who, born to every extrinsic advantage for which we worldlings toil—title, riches, advantages, social caste—flung all his birthrights to the wind, and then reconquered from the world the homage of mankind, and from Heaven the approval of Jehovah. History has enshrined him, humanity may not forget him, France calls him 'father.' Surely, America, in whose name and for whose sake he yielded the title of 'Noble' for that of 'Man,' bartered the coronet of a marquis for the toga of a citizen, giving the word citizen, indeed, a significance and glory America, whose Washington clasped him to his heart of hearts, and called him son—surely America will recall him thus forever joined; Washington and Lafayette."

At the Guests' Table.

Those at the guests' table were:

Alexander T. Mason, President The Federation of the Alliance Française of the United States; the Rev. Theophile Wucher; Major Gen. Asa Bird Gardiner, Secretary General of the Order of the Cincinnati; Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N.; Colonel Vignal, Military Attaché French Embassy; Charles H. Sherrill, former Minister to the Argentine Republic; Francis Lynde Stetson, President New England Society; C. Clive Bayley, Consul General of Great Britain; Henry D. Estabrook; M. Percy Peixotto, President American Chamber of Commerce in Paris; Frank A. Vanderlip; William D. Guthrie, Director of the France-America Society; Alton B. Parker; William G. Sharpe, Ambassador to France; J. J. Jusserand, Ambassador of France; Captain Guy Gaunt, R. N., C. M. G., Naval Attaché British Embassy; George T. Wilson, Vice President the Pilgrims; James M. Beck, President Pennsylvania Society; John Grier Hibben, President Princeton University; A. Barton Hepburn, Director of the France-America Society; John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education of the State of New York; M. Gaston Liebert, Consul General of France; Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A.; Mikhael M. Oustinoff, C. G., Consul General of Russia; Captain A. Martin, Naval Attaché French Embassy; Fuguki Akama, Consul General of Japan; Colonel Robert Olyphant, President Sons of the Revolution; C. F. Shallcross, President St. George's Society; Charles A. Downer, President Alliance Française of New York.

The Ambassador's Speech.

M. Jusserand said in part:

"If there is among the virtues of the American people one which cannot be contested, it is her gratitude, the pleasure she takes in being grateful.

"Once more in the history of mankind war is rending the soil, rending the waters and the air. France and other nations ready for the works of peace, insufficiently ready—but that has been mended—for the works of war, are suffering unprecedented calamities.

"No tokens of friendship, of sympathy, of good will, have touched France more deeply than those coming from this Republic, which persists in remembering Lafayette and his companions. Under very many forms American citizens have shown what they feel for the old ally. Their approval, eloquently worded, has been for us a comfort!

"Americans understand that what is at stake is that same question of independence for a nation, of freedom for citizens, for which our common ancestors had fought in the same fight. They took pride in seeing that to make a good stand, to arrest the invader, to act unanimously with a single purpose, men needed no autocratic organizations holding them together. The love of country, the attachment to sound principles, is between them the strongest of ties. People there are who fancy that a democracy is good enough for peace times, but you have shown that it can be equal to any task, in times of stress as well as in times of prosperity. You proved it in the days of Lincoln; we are trying to prove it again today. We, a democracy like yours, a democracy that can defend its hearths and principles to the utmost, but a democracy that is humane and is not vitiated by any militaristic spirit.

The Name American Blessed.

"You understood that the France to whom your approval went was not a new being, fallen, so to speak, from heaven, and which might possibly vanish as quickly as it came. No, the fighting, the bleeding France of today is the France of all time, that of yesterday and that of tomorrow; that of Joan of Arc, of Bayard, Turenne, Hoche, Lafayette, the same as that of Joffre. Some have wondered that the French, pretty well known for their dash, could show such endurance, but this was to forget that France fought a hundred years' war and won it.

"Never in my country will the American volunteers of the great war be forgotten. There is not one form of suffering among the innumerable kinds of calamities caused by a merciless enemy that some American work has not tried to assuage, in the hospitals, in the schools for the maimed and blind, on the battlefields, in the trenches, nay, in the air, with your plucky aviators. The American name is blessed in the trenches, where those kits named after the hero of today, Lafayette, have brought comfort to so many soldiers.

"Serving in the ambulances, serving in the legion, serving in the air, serving liberty, obeying the same impulses as those which brought Lafayette to these shores, many young Americans, leaving family and home, have offered to France their lives. Those lives many have lost, and never was there shown such abnegation and generosity as that of men who like Victor Chapman died to rescue his American and French co-aviators."

"God's Own Soldiers."

James M. Beck, who has just returned from France, paid an eloquent tribute to the French warriors. A prolonged round of applause greeted his declaration, "I am sure that France of all the nations is first in the hearts of the people of the United States."

Mr. Beck said "France is fighting the fight for civilization." He quoted Shakespeare's reference to French fighters as "God's own soldiers."

"I saw those men on the Verdun front, and they are more 'God's own soldiers' than ever before," he said. "They are 'God's own soldiers' because they are fighting the fight of civilization, not alone the fight for France and the Allies, but the fight for America and the world."

"Let us raise a fund," said Mr. Beck, "to erect at Verdun a monument that will be the tribute of America to the most splendid valor the world has ever seen!"

The speaker called France's stand on the Marne "the miracle of the Marne." After painting a vivid word picture of the gallant fight of the Frenchmen in arresting the German invaders, he declared that credit, too, was due to the bravery of Sir John French, the English commander, and his men.

Joseph H. Choate, in a letter which was read, suggested that Lafayette Day be made a national holiday, and that Congress be asked to enact legislation to that end.

"The cause the French are fighting is our battle as well as their own," he wrote. "Our sympathy is with them to the end."

Applause greeted the reading of a letter from the Alsace-Lorraine Society, in which it was said:

"We are with you in our hearts, as we will be with you in the coming new map."

EXERCISES AT THE CITY HALL.

Ambassador and Prominent Men Speak at Official Celebration.

Accompanied by his staff, M. Jusserand reached the steps of the City Hall at 3:30 o'clock, preceded by a squad of motor cycle police. He was met by Acting Mayor Dowling and a committee and escorted to the Aldermanic chamber, which was decorated with the tri-color and Stars and Stripes.

Judge Alton B. Parker presided, and, in referring to Lafayette, said: "While this nation lives his memory never will be forgotten." He introduced Acting Mayor Dowling, who delivered an address of welcome.

Former Ambassador to France Robert Bacon was then introduced.

"Today as we celebrate the birth of Lafayette," said Mr. Bacon, "his beloved country is taking part once more in a war for liberty, for free institutions, and liberty from the oppression of a militaristic anarchy."

Then referring to Lafayette, Mr. Bacon said: "By birth a subject of France, he was by act of Congress an American citizen. His name is 'sweet as honey on the lips of men.'"

Mr. Bacon referred to the relations of America and France as "that perpetual alliance of two peoples evidenced, indeed, by no scrap of paper, but inscribed in the hearts of every American.

"France is now in another war for independence, a war which will save, which has already saved, civilization and free institutions from the imposition of a theory of government in the hands of an autocratic sovereign will, just as, on an October day in the year 732, Charles Martel halted an invading army at Tours, thus preserving France and Western Europe from an alien and militant civilization," he said. "The battle of the Marne, fought and won by Lafayette's countryman, Joffre, on Lafayette's birthday, makes of the 6th of September a date memorable not only in the history of our country, but in the annals of civilization.

"In commemorating the services of Lafayette, the friend of liberty, the friend of America, and the friend of Washington, our hearts go out to France in her struggle for ideals—for our American ideals—and, as Rochambeau said to Washington in 1781, so today I say to you, Sir, the Ambassador of the glorious country of Lafayette and of Rochambeau:

"'Entre vous, entre nous, à la vie, à la mort.'"

An Example for Youth.

Dr. John H. Finley, State Superintendent of Education, saw in the career of Lafayette, the youthful hero, an example in spirit of preparedness for the American youth.

"It was Lafayette the youth, the rich, titled, homely, red haired youth of 19, whom this republic has reason to remember today," he said, "not the courtly man of 67 as painted by Morse in 1824.

"It was a youth no older than most freshmen in American colleges who, hearing at a dinner party in Metz that the 'remote, scattered, and unprotected citizens of the wilderness had solemnly declared themselves an independent people,' resolved to abandon the pleasures of the 'gayest court and capital of the world,' to leave his young wife and child and to risk his life and fortune in the cause for which his heart at once enlisted.

"It was this young man, just turned 20, who hastened in the direction of the music to the sound of which so many of his progenitors had died, and fought with such ardor as to make him insensible to the wound he had received in battle. It was a young man of only 21 who declined the seductive glory of co-ordinate command with his revered Washington. It was a young man of but 22 who went back to France and did what no one else could have done to give occasion for that popular demonstration. And it was finally a young man just past his twenty-fourth birthday who took part in the concluding campaign of the Revolutionary War.

"Thus his great service to America was consummated before most young American college men have begun to think of public or world service. Here was the spirit of France's unquenchable, uncalculating, impulsive, generous spirit.

"When one has read, as I have read, of the suffering of our young men, and especially college men, in France, in trench and ambulance corps, one cannot doubt that the spirit of Lafayette is among our youth. But our supreme task is to make that spirit universal, as it is in France today, to stir every youth to see that here we have the glorious thing for which Lafayette offered and risked his all and to make every youth ready and willing to give his all to this 'glorious thing,' which must daily be lifted from the commonplace. Our supreme need is of this preparation of spirit in our youth. All else will come with it, but the vigorous training, the universal discipline, must come too."

William G. Sharp of Ohio, Ambassador to France, had come hurriedly from his home, where he is on a leave of absence, to thank France for Lafayette. He praised the determination of the committee to have an annual celebration of Lafayette's birthday.

"I hope that it will grow and continue in popular favor and cement the ties of the two great peoples of the two great republics," he said.

When M. Jusserand was introduced it was several minutes before the applause subsided.

"Of all the tasks one ever had," he said, "mine today is the sweetest—to express my gratitude to the American citizens who in service with their ally show that they remember the service of that young Frenchman, Lafayette."

The Ambassador then reviewed the rôle of Lafayette in the Revolution, and said he wished to say that there had been other great men of France.

"Lafayettes of Today."

"We had another great man, and that great man was a woman," he said. "That other great man is a saint, Jean D'Arc, whom you have recently honored by erecting a statue, and I am sure that as she looks from Riverside Drive across the seas she rejoices at the news from France.

"We owe to Lafayette the flag of our country, the tri-color, which he designed, the flag of Valmy, the flag of the Marne, and the flag of Verdun, which we are proud to see after six months still waving over the shattered city."

The Ambassador referred to the Americans fighting for France as "the Lafayettes of today." And then he concluded:

"Your Dr. Finley has written a book and he called it 'The French in the Heart of America.' After the war there will be a book written in my country and it will be called 'Americans in the Heart of France.'"

In concluding the ceremonies, Judge Parker said:

"Our country is neutral, as it ought to be, but we cannot, and would not if we could, forget that it was France who first recognized our nation."

As a part of the Lafayette birthday ceremonies, members of the Lafayette Day Committee and members of the Alliance Française laid a wreath on the statue of Washington in front of the Sub-Treasury.

There was also a Lafayette Day celebration at the Vanderbilt Hotel. Little Ena Bailly, daughter of a French soldier who was killed at the front, sold tri-color buttons in the lobby of the hotel.

TO TEACH CITIZENSHIP DUTY

Open-Air Meetings for Immigrants Are Planned by League.

Open air meetings to instruct foreign born citizens in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship will be held on street corners of the city during the Winter as part of an educational campaign by the League of Foreign Born Citizens. Herman Glauberman, Director of Naturalization of the league, will address the first meeting Saturday night at Norfolk and Rivington Streets.

Other speakers will be William F. Schneider and United States Commissioner Charles Weser of the Southern District. The questions which are asked of immigrants who have filed their first papers, on their second appearance before the immigration and naturalization authorities, will be explained to the audience at these meetings, and also the meaning and interpretation of the citizenship laws.

Collier in New Farce at Longacre.

William Collier will make his first appearance in New York under the management of H. H. Frazee next Thursday night at the Longacre in James Montgomery's farce, "Nothing But the Truth." In Mr. Collier's company will be seen Rapley Holmes, Ned A. Sparks, Morgan Coman, Arnold Lucy, Margaret Brainerd, Maude Turner Gordon, Vivian Wessell, Mary Harper, and Theresa Michelena. "A Pair of Queens," the current offering at the Longacre, will conclude its engagement there next Saturday night, and after a week's layoff the company will go to Detroit on tour.

A Comedy by Glass and Goodman.

William A. Brady placed in rehearsal yesterday a new comedy by Montagu Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman entitled "Object—Matrimony." Mr. Glass has created a new set of characters, none of which has appeared in his "Potash and Perlmutter" plays. Mathilde Cottrelly will play one of the principal rôles, and Carlyle Blackwell, who has been acting in motion pictures for several years, will be seen in an important part. Mr. Brady has also engaged Marjorie Wood, Jean Temple, Jess Dandy, Jules Jordan, and Leo Donnelly for the cast.

Matinee Recitals at the Comedy.

The Comedy Theatre, where the Washington Square Players have established themselves, will be the scene of a series of recitals and concerts the afternoons on which the Players do not give performances and Sunday nights. Among the musicians booked to appear there during the season are Christine Miller, Boris Hamburg, David Hochstein, Harold Henry, Paul Reimers, Mme. von Niessen-Stone, Edouard and Gaston Dethier, Arthur Hartmann, and Evelyn Starr.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

John Barrymore has returned from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and will begin rehearsals shortly in "Justice," in which he will tour the principal cities this season.

With the new Hippodrome Revue running smoothly, R. H. Burnside yesterday began assembling the principals who will appear in last year's show on tour. Rehearsals will be begun next week, and the first performance will be given Oct. 16 in the Metropolitan Opera House, Philadelphia.

E. H. Sothern has about completed the pictures in which he has been posing for the Vitagraph Company, and with Mrs. Sothern has taken a house at Litchfield, Conn., where he will remain until he begins his tour in "If I Were King" in November.

When Anna Held returns to the New York stage next month it will be in a musical comedy instead of a revue, as originally planned.

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, saw the performance of "The Girl from Brazil" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre with a party of friends last night.

Witold Gordon, a scenic artist, who came here from Paris last year, yesterday signed a contract with H. Robert Law whereby he will be associated with the Law studios for three years. Mr. Law also has a contract to execute Leon Bakst's American orders.

Tempest and Sunshine will appear at the Palace next week in a skit entitled, "A Broadway Bouquet."

Louise Huff, a new movie star, will be seen on the Strand screen next week in a photoplay called "The Reward of Patience."

Robert Mantell, Jr., has been engaged by Silvio Hein for the role of Nym in the revival of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," in which Thomas A. Wise will be starred.

George Broadhurst believes that every audience contains undeveloped dramatic critics, and, accordingly, he has invited all who see his farce, "Fast and Grow Fat," to send him suggestions about it to the Globe.

Andreas Dippel will start Charles Cuvillier's operetta, "The Lilac Domino," on its third season next Monday at the Standard. The cast will include Yvonne Darle, Marie Hamilton, Andrea Corday, Bradford Kirkbridge, and Joseph Carey.

PIERROT'S RETURN QUITE ENCHANTING

The French Pantomime, "L'Enfant Prodigue," Exquisitely Given at the Booth.

RECALLING AN ANCIENT ART

Every Element of Music, Playing, Story, and Staging Blended to Make It a Beautiful Adventure.

PIERROT THE PRODIGAL.—The French pantomime, "L'Enfant Prodigue," in three acts, by Michael Carré, with music by André Wormser. At the Booth.

Pierrot, Jr. .... Marjorie Patterson
Mme. Pierrot .... Gabrielle Perrier
Phrynette .... Marie Louise Renee
Pierrot, Sr. .... Paul Clerget
The Baron .... Emile J. de Varney
The Servant .... Charles Dubuis
Solo Pianist, Aloys Friedheim-Kremer.

"L'Enfant Prodigue," a French pantomime with music that beguiled all Paris a quarter century ago, but which failed sadly when an attempt was made to play it here at the time, has at last come back to New York. Under the more happily descriptive name of "Pierrot the Prodigal," Winthrop Ames and Walter Knight presented it last evening at the Booth Theatre. As given there, exquisitely staged and most charmingly played by a company that includes four French players, an English girl, and an American girl, it is now an enchanting thing.

How commonplace at best and how quite appalling at worst seem all the other entertainments that have been proffered to us this season when compared with the warm humanity and shy, simple beauty of this newcomer. It has something which is grotesquely rare in the American theatre—beauty. "Pierrot the Prodigal" must rank, with a bare half dozen of the best things that have passed this way in the last five seasons, as one of the beautiful adventures of the theatre.

In the late Winter of '91, Augustin Daly staged "The Prodigal Son" at his theatre, with Ada Rehan as Pierrot. It was so abysmal a failure that it was withdrawn before the week was out, and some there were who opined that there never could be any successful removal of Pierrot from his own Italy and France. But others thought that the trouble might be traced to Mr. Daly's own high-handed remodeling of the pantomine, to a performance alien in spirit to its own, or possibly to the resentment of New York at the very thought of Miss Rehan's matchless voice muted even for a time in the practice of an ancient and honorable but different art. So, undiscouraged by this, or by the fact that Pilar-Morin played it here later, Mr. Ames welcomed to this theatre Walter Knight's production of "L'Enfant Prodigue," which, in much the same form, has been rejoicing London all this last season.

It will be interesting to see how we reward his faith. It would seem as if a generation bred on the movies might respond to a form of silent drama that had its beginnings somewhat earlier than Mr. Griffith had his. Certainly the audience that filled the Booth last evening was entranced. It is precious seldom that you see the callous first-nighters standing long after the performance to applaud, while again and again the players come before the curtain to bow their thanks. Yet so it was last evening, and so it may be other evenings, for there are many of us who will want to go every evening of the week. We shall want to go also to the matinées.

In devising "L'Enfant Prodigue," Michel Carré brought back to the French stage another long-absent prodigal, the white-faced, white-ruffed Pierrot of days gone by. For his new pantomine, he told the story of the stern but devoted father; the pious, gentle, loving mother; the spoiled and listless only son; the passing courtesan, the boy's flight and disgrace and then, after a year of desolation, the boy's return and redemption. It is full of tickling humor, but in its climax it is deeply touching. Of course it is. Does it not retell the parable that is most heartwarming to all of us—sinners every one?

But its native beauty is enhanced by the loveliness of the setting. The scene at Pierrot's home, with the white figures moving against the gray-blue walls, is like a piece of exquisite Delft: Phrynette's boudoir is a seductive spot, all softened heliotrope with the black-clad figure of the new worldly Pierrot making an arresting silhouette. At first you think there could be no more enchanting vision that Phrynette, standing there in the doorway with her basket over her arm and the sunlight in her red, red hair. Then you see her under the snowy canopy of her bed, with her white arms resting on the coverlet with its great checks of white satin and black velvet.

This pantomime, you see, is a joy to the eye. But the more important appeal is made to the ear, with the graceful, melodious, humorous music with which André Wormser has underlined its every moment. The music not only trails the wedding march through the thoughts of the aspiring Phrynette, but brings the martial exaltation to the finale, when Pierrot redeems himself by going forth to the wars. It attends to the weightier business of voicing the shifting mood of the story, but, with the 'cello working all alone, it also follows the bumblebee through the maitresse's bedroom and accompanies the gurgling, good red wine down the old father's throat. The score is admirably and spiritedly played by the orchestra under the direction of Elliot Schenck.

Of the players there is much good to report. As the old folks, rich contributions are made by Gabrielle Perrier and Paul Clerget, the latter here at all only because the Germans have his theatre in Brussels. There must be a word for Margot Kelly, who only recently was a "little bit of fluff" on another stage. Stepping into the rôle of Phrynette at the eleventh hour, she has put aside her voice—let us hope for all time or until something can be done to improve it—and covered herself with glory at the Booth.

And especially there is Marjorie Patterson. Here is a young American girl who has studied abroad under Yvette Gilbert and sundry French pantomimists, who has played at odd times in London, and who, in London's "L'Enfant Prodigue," was Phrynette. This is her first appearance in America. Her's is an excellent performance, discreet and full of life. Her face is none too mobile for pantomime, but she works wonders with the grace and precision of her eloquent hands.

But it is futile and rather a pity to try to dissect so simple a thing as "Pierrot the Prodigal." Its quaint charm eludes description. You must see it. If you do not, you are quite, quite mad.

FIRE DESTROYS 2 HOTELS.

North Beach Amusement Park Menaced by $30,000 Blaze.

Fire of undetermined origin wrecked a large and a small hotel at North Beach, L. I., yesterday morning, and thence spread to a tower of a scenic railway, where it was held by the firemen. The loss is from $30,000 to $35,000. The fire started, apparently, on the second floor of the big hotel known as Unter den Linden, at the Old Bowery Bay Road and Ehret Avenue, at the north end of North Beach. It was a frame building, two stories high. It was under lease to Theopold Stuch[illegible]r. The building was destroyed, with all its contents.

From this hotel the fire spread to the Silver Spring Hotel adjoining. This was a one-story building. Across the street, on Ehret Avenue, is Morris's amusement park. A high tower for the scenic railway took fire and burned briskly, but the firemen held the fire in the tower.

MEASURES OF RETALIATION.

"If you don't push, you get shoved," says the German proverb. It may be in questionable taste to offer to our British friends the consolations of German philosophy, but the saying we have quoted is so good an explanation of the motive and theory of the retaliatory clauses appended to the Revenue bill in the Senate that we venture to use it. The British Government has blacklisted some of our merchants, it has interfered with our mails, it has arrogated to itself the privilege of censoring our press cable dispatches, it has put an embargo on some of our exports, and has done other harmful things, insomuch that we are uncertain whether it will fix any limits to its meddling. So we have it in contemplation to empower the President to put in force measures of remonstrance and retaliation that may persuade our British friends to narrow somewhat the limits within which they have already acted. We have been shoved about a good deal, we are now taking thought about an opposing push.

The back of the American camel, already sorely burdened, did not break under the last straw of the blacklist decree, it grew rigid in the resolve to throw off some part of the load. If British ships refuse consignments from American firms under the prohibition of the blacklist the President will find a way to change the British mind. It will be in his power, too, under the proposed legislation, to show our indisposition to submit to some of the interferences of the British censor. The blacklist was stupid and unnecessary, the censorship has been ridiculous. Written protests having proved unavailing, we may try other measures. The retaliation clauses are a warning, and something more—a knock on the door and a club behind the door.

We have no disposition to complain of lawful measures which Great Britain and her allies may take to prevent their enemies from receiving information and supplies. When our lawful rights are plainly violated, however, it is natural that we should make protest, and if protest is unavailing we should take action. That is the only safety for neutrals. In great wars belligerents are accustomed to override neutral rights at their own convenience. Nothing would remain of them if neutral Powers did not show their resentment, and, under sufficient provocation, their teeth.

The President will use his powers, not recklessly but wisely, with sound discretion. We are impartial in the matter. Our procedure against Germany's embargo upon tobacco will be identical with that against the British embargo. The prevailing American view of questions of right and justice in the war and American sympathy with this or that group of belligerents are quite unrelated to these measures of reprisal. It is a matter of business, not of sentiment. When the ship of state is plowing through troubled waters, steering its course by law, light, and justice, the dullest ear can detect the swish and swirl of sentiment as it runs off through the lee scuppers.

A "FREE TRADER" UNREBUKED.

Senator LA FOLLETTE's eccentricities of opinion include the initiative, referendum, and recall, a proposal to suspend the Constitutional power of Congress to declare war until a popular referendum is had, and what not. He is an embargoist. He voted to give up the right of Americans to travel in ships of belligerents. He is joint father with the Hon. ANDREW FURUSETH of the Seamen's law. He is a Republican Progressive or Progressive Republican, approved by Mr. BRYAN. Properly speaking, he is a La Follettian, a chartered libertine of fantastic speech and legislative whimsy, an editor who denounces the whole press as venal. None but himself can be his parallel.

This irregular and wild Glendower of the Badgers seems to have been nominated for a third term in the Senate by the Wisconsin Republicans. His opponent, Mr. MALCOLM G. JEFFRIS, made the unworthy charge that Mr. LA FOLLETTE circulated in Wisconsin, at an expense to the Government of $12,000, one of his speeches in The Congressional Record. Mr. LA FOLLETTE in his campaign depicted politically his poverty. Since Uncle ISAAC STEPHENSON stopped his contributions to the cause of virtue Mr. LA FOLLETTE has to fall upon the great heart of the people in his canvasses. Apparently that organ is still tender to this old familiar tribune.

The Senate would be noticeably improved and the labors of the Government Printing Office notably diminished if Mr. LA FOLLETTE were sentenced to private life. There is one encouraging aspect to his renomination, however. He voted for the Underwood Tariff bill. He is, therefore, "a free trader." The protection hunkers are furious with him. The Dodgeville Chronicle, one of his old and warm advocates, published in a farming and dairy region, was saying the other day, "opposing him for the first time in thirty years," that "no man can deliberately vote "to destroy the locality that made "him and enjoy our support." The Milwaukee Sentinel, an old enemy, proclaimed it the duty of every farmer, to himself and the State, to vote for Mr. JEFFRIS and "rebuke Mr. "LA FOLLETTE's astounding vote in "the Senate against the prosperity of "the great agricultural State of Wisconsin."

The destroyer is unrebuked and the farmers are content with their "fool's paradise" of "temporary" prosperity. In this respect the success of Mr. LA FOLLETTE looks sinister for the Republicans.

STRIKE WITHOUT GOOD CAUSE.

There is no substantial and sufficient reason for the strike begun last night upon the transportation lines in this city. The public is getting tired and impatient of strikes and threats of strikes that put upon it such intolerable loss and inconvenience.

It is not possible to see how the men could feel that they would be better off under the direction of foreign union leaders than under the management of committees and chiefs chosen by themselves, but that was the real reason for calling the strike. The gains they can hope for are not demonstrable.

At the same time they should determine the matter by their own free choice. It is obviously to the interest of the Interborough, it is its public duty, to accord to the men such fair treatment, such courteous consideration of grievances and petitions, that they will be entirely content to manage their own affairs without assistance from outside organizations.

The companies are prepared to meet the emergency. There is reason to believe that large numbers of the men are unwilling to go out. If they yield against their better judgment, they will probably regret the decision. It has the look of a strike forced by a minority, and it will be the general opinion that it ought to end in failure.

WEBB BILL AND TARIFF COMMISSION.

While the tariff question daily is gaining in importance, the position of the Tariff Commission is being lessened in authority. By a vote of almost two to one the Senate refused to put it on a par with other Commissions which this Congress has appointed, and reduced the salary to be paid to $7,500. The view which prevailed was that the salary had nothing to do with the quality of Commissioners. "Let's double our salaries and thereby double our respectability," said Senator SHERMAN. It did not occur to the Senator to propose to halve the Senators' salaries and thereby double their respectability. That is the argument applied to the Tariff Commission's salaries. Perhaps it may work. There may be men of public spirit who will give themselves to this work regardless of the pay. The same might be true of Senators. But there are few Senators who would accept the Tariff Commission's rate of pay and devote themselves to the work exclusively.

That is what the Tariff Commission must do, and then must submit the results of its labor to men who have signified in advance their small estimate of the Commission's position in the scheme of legislation. It is not unlikely that a better tariff will come from the nonpartisan Commission than will be enacted by the partisan Congress. The present prospect is that the Democrats will repeat the Republican mistake, and enact a tariff different in object from that sanctioned by the people. The people twice have given a mandate for a tariff which should put the manufactures of the United States more nearly on the scale of the world's markets. The Republicans lost public confidence through their failure to do so, and still are kicking against the pricks. The Democrats, nevertheless, are ambitious for similar discipline, for they are setting in motion the wheels which will make it impossible for the United States to sell its goods to any other consumers than Americans. Both parties seem to think that Americans like to pay high for everything, and regard cheapness as an unpardonable sin. They kick against the high cost of living, and soon will resent the depression of trade caused by production beyond the needs of this market. That is not the appearance of the moment, but it is a certainty of the future.

The Webb bill was not attached to the Revenue bill, as a canvass of the Senate showed opposition. Therefore it was withdrawn, despite the support of the President and the Trade Commission. The situation, therefore, remains as it is, with good opinion that, according to the rule of reason, combinations for the promotion of trade, and without the effect of undue restraint, are lawful, in all trade, domestic and foreign alike. The Trade Commission can go far to make that undoubted, and the Webb bill proposed no more. Rather, it proposed less, for it applied only to foreign trade. The establishment of two rules of opposite intention would go to prove that one was contrary to reason or morality. Commercial necessity was the argument for the Webb bill. But commercial necessity would not justify anything unreasonable or immoral.

The fact that good foreign practice authorizes combinations in both foreign and domestic trade would seem to indicate that the same rule is good for us also. To deny ourselves at home a facility of trade used abroad would seem poor policy. To justify abroad a policy condemned at home would seem hardly civilized. The Webb bill would do no more than remove an alleged doubt. The Trade Commission now has the opportunity presented to it to perform the same service, and it may be hoped that it will tackle the task masterfully.

THE FALLEN KING OF GREECE.

The language used in the address to King CONSTANTINE, drawn up by VENIZELOS and approved by the Athens demonstration, is clear proof that that King has fallen. It makes no difference that he still sits on the throne; the throne has become only a place to sit on. It was not invective, it was not an argument or appeal, except in form; it was a sober and crushing recital of reasons why CONSTANTINE had become impossible and must mix no more in politics. It is not so much the fact of the address as the wording of it that explains everything that has happened in Greece since that address was drawn up on Aug. 27. Such language as "You are the victim of your natural and human weakness" is not used toward any kind of ruler until he can rule no more. It is extraordinary language to use toward a King, but it would be extraordinary if used toward a President or a Prime Minister, toward any kind of official who has a vestige of power left. Following upon it, and its demand that all parties be united, Premier ZAIMIS made himself dictator and prepared for the union of the parties.

So has ended the Government of CONSTANTINE. Though he reigns, he does not govern; and the Government has been taken away from him by his people because he failed in it, because he had brought his country to the pass so stingingly described in the address: "Instead of Greece being respected by "friends and redoubtable to foes, we "see her today pitied by the one and "despised, scorned, and chastised by "the other." He becomes a mere spectator of the great events which are about to begin. He sought to guide his country into the path which she did not wish to take, because he was superior in wisdom and knew what was best for her; he guided her into paths of peril and disgrace, and she has set him aside. If it is true that, as the address charges, "you hoped that after a Ger-"man victory you would be able to "concentrate in your own hands the "whole power of Government and "sweep aside our system of liberty," then the disaster of his course is even greater than it appears. For, in that case, he has sought for greater power, and by so seeking has lost even the power that he had. Greece is emerging from the cloud of dishonor into which he brought her, and he himself, the individual CONSTANTINE, remains under a cloud of dishonor and, what is worse to some minds, of failure. Three years ago, after his military successes, he was a popular hero; now he is less to be envied than any man in Greece. It was predicted that this war would be the downfall of some Kings; it has been the downfall of one.

JAPHET IN SEARCH.

The vacillation of Mr. HUGHES and the Republican campaign managers makes countless thousands mourn. Where is that basaltic "firmness" which was a solely Republican quality? The cornucopia of issues that don't come out anywhere has been poured over the country with a lavish hand. Agriculture; amendment, Federal, for woman suffrage, (personally conducted by Mr. HUGHES;) arbitration; budget, executive civil service reform, conservation, defense, national; efficiency, (Republican;) extravagance, (Democratic;) foreign relations—so the catalogue of issues goes on to vacillation and veterinary surgery. Parks of verbal artillery have been fired at Mexico and from the Ark of Protection. Issues to burn, only they won't catch fire. Issues here, there, and everywhere; and now we hear of "a paucity of campaign issues," and Mr. HUGHES has pounced on the settlement of the railroad strike as perhaps the long-awaited master issue, the key of Republican victory. Readers of Captain MARRYAT's "Japhet in Search of a Father" will remember that the hero, in his eagerness to find his pater, occasionally fell into embarrassing mistakes, but his zeal in searching was undiminished.

Japhet is still seeking. The Republican managers have their scouts out, "investigators sounding senti-"ment among labor people generally "and railroad men in particular." If the inquirers count a majority for the opponents of the railroad eight-hour law, then it is a Republican issue, founded on the impregnable rock of guess, which is as near as the Republicans seem able to come to what Mr. HUGHES called "the unity of a com-"mon perception of paramount na-"tional needs."

"In a critical period," to quote once more the impassioned candidate, "per-"haps more critical than any period "since the civil war," after nearly three months of endeavor, and after trying vainly all the Republican issues and some of the candidate's own, the Republicans can't make up their minds what the crisis is. Artemus Ward demanded in thunder tones that if anybody in the car had a crisis concealed about his person he should "projuice it at onct." The Republicans are in the same perplexity. They are now taking a limited labor referendum to determine whether the eight-hour law is a critical issue, the much-desired "good enough Morgan until after election."

"Such are our principles, such are our purposes and policies," the Republicans said proudly in their national platform on June 9. Mr. HUGHES accepted them, adding one on his own hook on July 31. The weeks rattle by, and still the brethren are all at sea amid the wreckage of the whole cargo of principles, purposes, and policies, and Captain HUGHES grabs eagerly at a barrel of biscuit floating by. Is it a life preserver? The crew is now taking a ballot. The water is cold.

If a reference to aleatory vice is pardonable, Mr. HUGHES has had no luck so far in "picking winners."

But why are the Republicans so perturbed about finding a political daddy for Japhet? What do they need of any more issues? Isn't Fortune the rosy edges of her smile laying bare for their benefit? Here is National Committeeman HERT of Kentucky telling Chairman WILLCOX that Kentucky is Republican. Missouri and Hoosier seers bring similar good news from Missouri and Indiana. "The lowest estimate" Mr. WILLCOX heard of the Republican plurality in Illinois "was 150,000." We shouldn't be a bit surprised to learn that Texas is doubtful. The Republicans don't need issues. Why keep up the campaign? Why not play golf firmly and unflinchingly until Election Day?

GOOD WORK FOR ARBITRATION.

It was especially fitting that the New York Chamber of Commerce should send to the President and to Congress, as it did on Aug. 31, a plea for arbitration, because this, the greatest organization of its kind in America, has done excellent work for arbitration in trade. "The sacrifice of the principle of ar-"bitration in industrial disputes," said the Chamber in its message, "espe-"cially in the field occupied by the "great public service corporations and "their employés, would involve a moral "loss incalculable in its effects upon "the future relations between indus-"trial enterprises and the public."

For several years past the Chamber has had an efficient Committee on Arbitration, which undertakes the settlement of commercial disputes and has considered hundreds of cases. In many instances conciliation is sufficient, and formal arbitration is avoided. Sometimes "a simple word of advice" from the Chairman, Mr. CHARLES L. BERNHEIMER, as another member of the committee said at an annual meeting, has caused an agreement without delay. Much of the work is of a strictly confidential character, and naturally there is no report of the proceedings or the results for the public. For this reason the importance of the committee's labors is not widely recognized and appreciated.

The rules and regulations of the committee have been adopted by several Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade in this country, and have attracted much attention abroad, in Japan and China as well as in Europe. The committee is striving to secure an arbitration law that shall be uniform in all the States. Its report on international commercial arbitration was approved by many foreign Chambers, and its plan for such arbitration won favor at the Sixth International Congress of such organizations in Paris two years ago, but the proposed consideration of it immediately thereafter by a special committee was prevented by the outbreak of war. The committee is now working with a committee of the State Bar Association upon plans for preventing, by arbitration, unnecessary litigation. In many ways it has been promoting the use of this simple, effective, inexpensive, prompt, and equitable method of ending controversies. Its competent and industrious Chairman and the members who work with him richly deserve commendation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

If Hampered, Why Were They Silent?

While we common folk, or most of us, have been disposed to give the doctors a good deal of credit for the decline of the poliomyelitis epidemic, and to assume that they had won, or were winning, a victory of sorts over it, American Medicine mournfully admits that the disease is still quite unconquered. Indeed, it practically confesses that the precautionary measures taken, as well as those designed to be curative, have been of little or no efficacy, and sees in the decrease of cases merely the fact that at present the mysterious germ is finding few to attack except the naturally immune.

It even makes the discouraging statement that there is likely to be a new flaming up of the plague with the return to the city of susceptible children, so soon to come!

According to this authority, too, the failure of medical science would have been less nearly complete if the municipal health officials had not been hampered and their powers restricted by their old enemies, the politicians. In making this startling charge the writer of the article is not as definite as he might be—as, seemingly, he should be, if he has the facts to sustain his very serious accusation. He only says that because of "politics" not only have there been frequent delays in establishing quarantine, but in many instances it has meant little or nothing to those on whom it was placed. As an additional and closely related cause of the too obvious failure to control the epidemic, he mentions, without specifying, errors of omission and commission of which the hospitals, with some notable exceptions, have been guilty in connection with the handling of poliomyelitis cases, and he includes in these errors "neglect, carelessness, and actual venality."

To laymen, now, there have been no visible or measurable restrictions on the Department of Health. So far as we could see, its physicians have done everything that suggested itself as desirable to them as experts, and certainly they have exercised powers, especially as to the removal of children and the suspension of travel, that would have been considered intolerably despotic if even attempted by any other class. To this control the public has submitted with but rare protests, and those always futile, except in that strange place, Oyster Bay.

If the municipal doctors have had a grievance, they should have proclaimed it aloud. Its instant removal would have followed.

Zeppelin Honors Protested.

Evidently, and not at all surprisingly, a large and articulate fraction of the English public thought that to bury with full military honors—or with any honors at all, for that matter—the remains of the Germans who fell with the burning Zeppelin at Cuffley carried magnanimity to excess. The protests against it were prompt and vigorous enough, it seems, to influence the Government authorities to the extent set forth in dispatches this morning.

That there was excuse, and even reason, in England, for the feeling that these men were not worthy of the respect paid to other dead enemies need not be denied, any more than that when they died they were engaged in a form of warfare which to any except the upholders of militarism at its very extreme was little or not at all better than plain murder—or plain assassination, if that word can be applied, as the word "murder" certainly can, to a killing that has no consciously selected victim. Responsibility for the airship raids, however, does not rest to any measurable degree on the men actually engaged in them, and to say that they should have refused to do such vile work—that decently civilized army or navy men would have refused to do it—is to ignore the practically irresistible force of military discipline.

The soldiers and sailors of every land do what they are told—they obey the orders of their superior officers, step by step, up to the highest. There has been no effort or thought to punish in any way the private soldiers who, at the command of a mad Captain, shot the Irish editor SKEFFINGTON, and presumably they would be buried with the honors due to their rank if they had perished in the discharge of what must be called their "duty," though it involved the performance of a task in itself both abhorrent and criminal.

To have buried the Zeppelin men as at first proposed would, indeed, have put a severe strain on British generosity, and to bury them decently and quietly, with only the ceremony for soldiers killed on active service, was, perhaps, on the whole, wiser, but, none the less, the original plan did have its merits, some of them very practical ones, as was pointed out in this column yesterday.

Was There a Bremen to Capture?

An interest which waned with queer speed into something close to forgetfulness, so far as the general American public is concerned, has been revived by the arrival here of travelers from England who declare that the recently much-discussed submarine named the Bremen was captured and taken into an English port some weeks ago. The tales differ as to what port it was, and give no details as to how or where the boat was taken. They remain, therefore, in the category of important if true, and not a few people still are more inclined to ask, "Was there a Bremen at all?" than to wonder where she is.

For such incredulity there is not much ground. The arrival of a second more or less merchant submarine from Germany was prophesied with convincing sincerity in the same quarters where that of the Deutschland was confidently foretold, and elaborate and expensive preparations for her reception and that of her cargo were certainly made. The only imaginable motive for deception—that of making useless occupation for a few Allies' cruisers—does not adequately account for these demonstrations of expectation.

So there is little question that there was a Bremen, and hardly more that she has been either destroyed or captured. Whether one fate or the other has been hers, the British naval authorities would follow their established policy of suppressing the news of her end. Why they do this is not very clear. It does leave the Germans in a state of painful uncertainty, and of course that is something, from the British point of view, but it also deprives the British themselves of a justifiable joy, and that makes the account about even.

And whatever has or has not happened to the Bremen, the probabilities are that a Bremen will get here sooner or later. The first German submarine to arrive is sure to bear that name.

From the Commissioner of Health.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Commissioner of Health directs me to express to you his appreciation of your earnest co-operation in organizing a fund to be added to that of the Department of Health for the purchase of braces for children crippled by poliomyelitis. The Commissioner further wishes to express his gratification over your persistent and encouraging accounts of the work of the department throughout the epidemic.

A Liberal Censorship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Could you tell me how it is that so many war articles from Berlin are sent "via London"? There seem to be so many things that are denied by the English censor and papers and yet are allowed to be cabled here "via London." If these things are not true, why are they allowed to pass, as it seems to me they cannot do the Allies any good being circulated over here? M. O.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To be consistent Major Bigelow should advocate dumdum bullets and "no quarter." This would simplify the question of feeding prisoners of war. CIVIL WAR.

MEXICO AND RUMANIA.

A Good Guess and a Bad One on Furnishing Munitions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On several occasions the Administration, for reasons of American policy, permitted the exportation of munitions of war from the United States to Mexico. Such exportation caused considerable partisan criticism on the ground that the munitions might be used against the United States in the event of the union of the Mexican factions for war with this country. The exportation of arms was permitted in the hope and expectation that their use by Mexicans against bandits might obviate the necessity of a war with Mexico for the protection of our frontier—a war which would certainly result in a serious loss of American lives.

Critics who sit at ease in their libraries and carp at the President fail to see that he, like other heads of governments, is sometimes forced to guess, and that it would be unfair to blame him if he called "heads" when the coin fell "tails."

On this very question of the exportation of arms to a possibly hostile country, the German Emperor and the German Government have made an unfortunate guess. The cannon and machine guns now blazing from Rumanian trenches against German troops were made in Germany; the shrapnel and shells were recently exported from Germany to Rumania. The Kaiser, who has never been accused of "vacillation," guessed wrong. He called "heads" and the coin fell "tails." He guessed that Rumania would side with Germany or remain neutral. He guessed that a refusal to furnish munitions to Rumania would drive her into the Entente. He guessed that furnishing arms to Rumania would win that country to his side or induce it to remain neutral. He guessed wrong. Still, no one accuses him of "vacillation" or of having furnished arms to an enemy with which to kill German soldiers. The German people realize that the Kaiser guessed for his country to the best of his ability.

But if our President guessed wrong, if, in a war with Mexico, American troops were killed by Mexicans with shells made in the United States, what a cry would go up from easy-chair critics! What rant would be uttered by men who fail to realize the harrowing responsibilities of our President in these hideous days! Gentlemen, gifted with the happy faculty of perspicacity after the fact, having exercised their intellects to the extent of observing that the guess was wrong, that the coin fell wrong, would hold our President guilty of the blood of his countrymen.

Buying England's Colonies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As the citizens of the United States are now lending to Great Britain large sums, secured not only by good faith, but now by ample collateral, why would it not be a clever notion to suggest to the borrower that instead of further borrowing, she sell something (that she really doesn't need) for either cash or profitable exchange?

Why, for instance, shouldn't we offer to purchase and pay for Jamaica, British Honduras, the little islands of the Caribbean, and even British Guiana, and the islands of Bermuda?

Such a bargain would solve almost completely the difficult problem of "Monroeism," would shift entirely upon us the burden of policing the Western Hemisphere, and (without wounding her vanity) supply a need which at the present moment Great Britain sorely feels—ready money.

ACHILLES AND THE SWAN.

Eve of the day when the slain of Achilles so burdened the tide
That Xanthus, upflinging red foam, on his brother-river had cried,
"Haste, Simois, haste! With thy fountains and rills my current augment,
For I choke with the bodies of them that this madman to Orcus has sent!"

There to Achilles, at sunset alone on the marge of the stream,
Uprose from the trampled sedges a youth like a star in a dream!
Glittering-white was his armor, white was his fair-flowing crest;
And, scorning, he spake: "If hunger for battle still rage in thy breast,
Then, godlike Achilles, I challenge thee
here, by this river divine,
By Xanthus immortal! Try thou thy prowess, thy cunning, with mine!"

Then marveled Achilles: "Is life of so small esteeming to thee—
Thou, slender, white-armored—to melt like the snow, when thou closest with me!
In thy wantoning freedom, so brave of thy words—who art thou, in sooth?"
Then answered that venturous stranger:
"Nameless am I in my youth.
Yet knoweth the Son of Peleus needs must young valor be tried.
So, call me the Way of the Wind and the Will of the Wandering Tide;
For, truly, of these were my sires—of the Wandering Tide and the Wind,
Who never to ambush were drawn,
whom never none knew to bind.
Fight thou with me, O Achilles—proof
as thyself to all scath!"

Then hot flamed the heart of Achilles, and up he arose in his wrath—
Wrath that no words might compass.
. . . And silence there was by the stream,
Save for the souls of the slain, sighing forth to the after-life dream,
And save for the darts of Achilles like whispering lances of sleet.
Yet they pierced not the breast of the stranger, but hurtless they fell at his feet!
And now, in his two strong arms that were knit with the strength of the oak, Achilles grappled that youth, and fiercely exultant he spoke:
"Have thou my parting embrace—thou, mad in thy callow pride—
Ere departeth thy ghost to thy sires of the Wandering Wind and the Tide." . . .
Short came the breath of the youth, and drooped his fair helmeted head,
And down on the rushes he sank midst
the murmuring shades of the dead.
Then would Achilles take spoil, desiring the silvery mail.
But lo! In his hands was a plume, in place of each glittering scale!
And the plumes were the shedding from wings—the wings of a swan in flight;
And the wings of the swan blushed red in the tenderly outgoing light,
While downward there floated a song for which well might the Sirens pine:
"I that am Cygnus on earth, am called by the Gods, The Divine:
I am the Bard—of the kin of the Wandering Tide and the Wind—
Sure to elude, to betray, one like thee, of the blood-lusting mind!
Thou cruel! Devourer of men, and knowing no joy save thy wrath,
I challenge thee here—canst thou follow the Bard on the wild-swan-path?
Thou, the deceived, the undone—and thy hands all empty of spoil. . . .
So ever—a song on light wing the will of the slayer shall foil!"

GERMAN PROPAGANDA BEFORE THE WAR.

One Who Had a Part in It Found It Had a "Sinister Purpose"—Says Secret Agents Were Employed Here.

By DR. JOHN F. COAR.

Kingston, Mass., Sept. 5, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent editorial article, "A Dangerous Proxy," you inquired pertinently whether the "blanket indorsement" of Mr. Roosevelt's Lewiston speech is to be "the length, breadth, and height of Mr. Hughes's Americanism."

It would seem as though your query were to be answered in the affirmative. Mr. Hughes's repeated utterances, down to his St. Louis speech, indicate very plainly that he appreciates the lurking danger of hyphenism; but no single utterance of has has dragged this danger from its lurking place, named it specifically, and met it unequivocally. Even in his remarks in St. Louis on Sept. 2 he confined himself to a repetition of the platitudinous statement of his address of acceptance. After reading Mr. Roosevelt's specific excoriation of professional hyphenism and after congratulating him for his effective support, a 100 per cent. candidate should be able to speak to the point provided he is a 100 per cent. patriot as well. For a 100 per cent. patriot will desire to burn on the flanks of professional hyphenism the brand of outlawry so distinctly that no American, least of all one who is likely to mistake it for patriotism, can by any possibility be deceived. This he will desire to do the more positively since there are among our citizens of German extraction many well-meaning men and women whom an insidious propaganda has unhappily bewildered.

The writer of this communication, though he has no German blood in his veins, was nevertheless himself deceived for many years by a propaganda that purported to be in the interest of a more sympathetic understanding of the German people by Americans. This propaganda he not only welcomed, but aided and abetted, because he believed—as he still believes—that its ostensible purpose is altogether laudable and desirable. To be sure, he disliked many of the methods that were employed, as, for example, the dissemination of information regarding Germany and the Germans, almost entirely in the German tongue, to audiences composed mainly of Americans of German blood, with an appeal to racial pride and the inevitable tendency to racial isolation or segregation. He felt that by some curious perversion of circumstances the men and women who knew least about Germany and the Germans could not readily be included in the scheme of enlightenment, since those in control of the propaganda were Americans of German descent and those who brought the light from the Fatherland preferred to speak in their native tongue to blood-kindred.

In fatuous innocence he urged that the propaganda be made mutual, holding that Germans were quite as much in need of enlightenment concerning America and the Americans as the latter were in need of enlightenment concerning the Germans. He knew that for years certain men of German birth, whom Americans had trusted with public office, were vilifying America and Americans in the press of Germany, and that American ideals and American institutions were being aspersed systematically by these men. In 1911 and 1912 he lectured in many of the large cities of Germany and at numerous universities as the representative of the Germanistic Society of America, endeavoring to make clear to his German audiences, in their own language, the essential aspirations of the American people. He was welcomed, as he expected to be welcomed, with that genial hospitality and that kindly enthusiasm which is the birthright of the German people, and to this day he cherishes the memory of those months as one of the precious possessions of his life—despite another memory as bitter as the former is sweet.

For it was in those same months that he was informed at the very source of the ostensible movement to bring about among Americans a better understanding of things German, that this apparently generous movement had a sinister purpose. He was told that the ultimate purpose of the propaganda was to re-establish among Americans of German descent the consciousness of their common racial origin, to preserve among them the sense of their German nationality, and to create a social body that would as such champion the cause of the Fatherland in the coming war. He was told more than this. He was told that for more than ten years there had been in the United States of America annually no less than twoscore secret agents commissioned to work for two distinct ends: First, the introduction of the German language into the public schools so far as possible as the school-language in districts heavily populated by emigrants from Germany, and the increasing use of this language as the school-language in private or parochial (Lutheran) schools. Secondly, the consolidation of the so-called German-American vote to the end that it might hold the balance of power and bring about at least a benevolent neutrality in favor of Germany in the coming war.

It is needless to say that on his return to this country the writer severed his relations with all societies that were in any way connected with a propaganda designed to further these ends, though only by indirection. Every true American knows what the accomplishment of these ends signifies for our American democracy. Our national life cannot endure for long if the principle of racial segregation finds any lodgment among us. Because our citizens of German extraction cannot well help sympathizing with their kindred in Germany, and because the stress of this sympathy is apt to warp their judgment in matters of purely national import, therefore no candidate for the suffrage of the American people should permit, as Mr. Hughes has thus far permitted, any political activity to go unrebuked that centres in, or depends on, a sense of nationality which is not first and last American. Mr. Hughes knows quite as well as Mr. Roosevelt knows that professional agitators are seeking to make political hyphenates out of the voters of German descent. He should brand that effort as the underwriter of his candidacy has branded it, specifically and unequivocally. Patriotic Americans, in particular those of German birth or ancestry, will applaud him if he does. No patriotic American can consistently support his candidacy merely on the guarantee of Mr. Roosevelt or of any other person. We are not giving our suffrage to Mr. Roosevelt—not this year.

Charles Evans Hughes, where do you stand?

AN ANALYSIS OF BLEASE.

An Answer to the Question of His Political Success.

Middlebury College,
Middlebury, Vt., Sept. 4, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of your yesterday's editorial articles begins with the following question: "Will some calm analyst in South Carolina, familiar with its political and social conditions, interpret to wondering outlanders the Hon. Cole Livingston Blease, twice Governor of that State and last week a candidate in the primaries for a third term?" I am somewhat familiar with the political and social conditions of South Carolina, and I have decided to venture to qualify as a "calm analyst" and attempt to answer your question.

It is not surprising that those unacquainted either with Blease or with the conditions in South Carolina should wonder at the persistent and widespread popularity of such a type of politician. It was incomprehensible to me, though a native South Carolinian, how Blease could have the hold on the people he obviously had; but my return to the State three Summers ago and my attendance, during the Summer just past, upon one of the campaign meetings at which Blease spoke have thrown some light upon the situation. I am not at all sure that my analysis is correct, but I "dope" it out this way:

Blease is a man of very remarkable ability in a very limited sense. He is not a statesman in any sense of the term; he wholly lacks the statesman's point of view, his own vision being always blurred by partisan, narrowly partisan, considerations. But, so far as his vision goes, it is extraordinarily clear. He knows very explicitly what he wants, he has clearly definable ideas—all the more easily defined because they emerge from a consideration of only one side of the question. And this clarity of ideas produces in the man a dogmatism and self-conceit which I have hitherto hardly deemed possible even in a politician. Even those who are most bitterly opposed to Blease's ways of thinking feel the weight of his tremendous, his magnificent, dogmatism; and doubtless many are affected by it; while the voters who are not in the habit of thinking for themselves are dazzled by the clarity of Blease's views and assume they have been convinced when, as a matter of fact, they have only been blinded; among this class of voters Blease's omniscience is not argued, it is admitted.

In the art of a certain type of campaigning Blease is a past master. In the use and abuse of question-begging epithets—"poor man's friend," "cause of the people," "inalienable rights of the individual," &c.—in the ability to place a misconstruction upon generally admitted facts and draw false inferences from them, in the ability to make the worse appear the better reason Blease surpasses any man I have ever heard speak. Certainly, in the campaign just closed there was no one to compare with him in these respects. And there are thousands of voters, not only in South Carolina, but in every State in the Union, who are won by such tricks, especially when they are accompanied by the mesmeric influence of an overweening dogmatism. With the "gaping rustics ranged around" and with a man like Cole Blease on the speaker's stand casting his spell over them, making them believe and vigorously maintain that black is white, the onlooker who still keeps his equilibrium is almost tempted to doubt whether a democracy can long endure the test.

Blease is also a genius at organization of political forces. By his extraordinary pardon record he has bound to him a certain class as with hoops of steel. His henchmen are scattered over the State and the promise of the spoils of victory spurs them to work for their leader tooth and nail. Particularly are the cotton-mill districts solid for Blease. In the home county of Cooper, one of the candidates in the recent primary and a man in every way superior to Blease, there are four cotton mills; of the 753 votes cast at these mills Blease received 521 and Cooper 198. This same condition obtains throughout the Piedmont section of the State, which is thickly dotted with cotton mills. So thorough is the organization here that Blease can safely count on the practically solid support of these numerous voters regardless of the opposition he may have.

There are some points of similarity between Tillman of pitchfork fame and Cole Blease. But these resemblances are superficial. In point of fact there is a vast difference between the two men, the difference, namely, that exists between a man who is rough and uncouth, but profound and patriotic, and a man who is rough and uncouth, narrowly partisan and withal superficial.

Vacillation in Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Hughes says Mr. Wilson is vacillating. Is he as vacillating as Mr. Roosevelt, who switched from the Republican Party to head the Progressive Party, and switched back to the Republican Party, deserting his friends and the Progressive principles for which they stood? Was he as vacillating as Mr. Taft, who was the friend of Mr. Roosevelt, being placed in the chair more through Mr. Roosevelt's efforts than through his own, and then became the enemy of Mr. Roosevelt because the latter prevented him from getting a second term? If Mr. Wilson, notwithstanding his so-called vacillation, is able to give the country all it asks, what more could Mr. Hughes give the country, even should he prove himself not to be vacillating? But I suspect that the vacillation of Mr. Wilson is, first and last, diplomacy.

Fairy Godmothers Wanted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some American ladies are so kind as to act the part of Fairy Godmothers to men of the Royal Garrison Artillery at the front. As they are so interested I wondered whether others would join my league if they knew about it, and I am, therefore, venturing to ask your help in making it more widely known in America.

I have found nearly 6,000 friends for the men in different parts of the world, but still have hundreds longing to have "Godmothers." Nearly every one in England has relatives at the front, so it is increasingly difficult to find them for men who have nobody at all or whose people cannot afford to send to them.

There are no subscriptions, but each member undertakes to send a man a weekly paper, and every three or four weeks or so to write to him and send him a small present.

It is requested that all inquiries should be sent, with a stamped addressed envelope for reply, to Mrs. R. F. Johnson, Townfield, Hayes End, Middlesex.

SUFFRAGISTS KEEP NEUTRAL IN POLITICS

National Association Votes Down Every Proposal for Change in Policy.

DEBATE NOT ENDED YET

Convention Today Will Consider Mrs. Catt's Resolution Featuring Federal Amendment Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6.—With the rain coming down in torrents the forty-eighth annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association opened this morning in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, where every seat was taken. The convention was called two months ahead of time to prepare for political contingencies in connection with the Presidential campaign.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt presided, and the morning session was given over to business. Reports were read and Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, First Vice President, warned the delegates that they must not be too confident because the Republican candidate, Mr. Hughes, had indorsed the Federal amendment.

Virtually all the speakers declared for strict neutrality in the Presidential campaign and to continue the non-partisan efforts of the association to bring about equal suffrage throughout the United States.

The question of continuing the present policy of the association came before the convention in the form of two proposed amendments to the organization's constitution. One proposed that the association drop work on State legislation and concentrate on the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution. The other provided that the association cease its efforts in behalf of the Federal amendment and confine its activities to getting woman's suffrage by States. The amendments were defeated by a viva voce vote, in which few affirmative voices were heard.

Expect More Debate Today.

Then Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the association, presented the following resolution:

> The forty-eighth annual convention of the Woman Suffrage Association interpret Article 2 of the Constitution, which pledges our auxiliaries to secure the vote for women by appropriate national and State action, as meaning that the Federal amendment is our immediate and principal aim, and that all State campaigns, whether legislative or referendum, are preparatory to this end.

Miss Laura Clay of Lexington, Ky., a staunch advocate of State rights, immediately attacked the resolution as undemocratic and as nullifying the action just taken by the convention. The resolution also stirred up opposition among other delegates, and there was every evidence of a stormy session. A motion by Miss Clay that the resolution be laid on the table was defeated, and then further debate was shut off by the carrying of a motion made by Miss Hannah J. Patterson of Pittsburgh, Corresponding Secretary, that the resolution be made a special order for 11 A. M. tomorrow.

Mrs. Catt and other leaders in her administration anticipate a lively debate, but expressed confidence that the resolution would be adopted.

There was a three-cornered debate on the policy question. Miss Clay led the forces which favored exclusive State action. Mrs. Ida Husted Harper of New York was the principal speaker for concentration on the Federal amendment, and Mrs. Raymond Brown of New York made the principal address in favor of no change in policy.

Quotes Wilson and Hughes.

Mrs. Catt opened the discussion, and amused the delegates by stating that Charles E. Hughes, the Republican Presidential nominee, had told her that the Republican platform came nearer to what the suffragists wanted than that of the Democratic Party, and that, on the other hand, President Wilson told her the Democratic platform was nearer to woman suffrage than the Republican platform. She said, however, that she believed both Presidential candidates were sincere and honest, and declared that both were far ahead of their respective parties in their views on the suffrage question.

Miss Kate Gordon of Louisiana seconded the speech made by Miss Clay for exclusive State work. Mrs. Glendower Evans of Massachusetts seconded the address of Mrs. Harper for Federal amendment work, and Miss Florence Allen of Ohio seconded the speech of Mrs. Brown advocating no change in policy.

Miss Allen said that if State work was taken up exclusively it would look as if the suffragists had been captured by the Democrats who were strong for State rights, and if the convention decided to concentrate on the Federal amendment it would appear as if the association had made a deal with the Republicans. The suffragists, she said, would follow strict neutrality among the political parties. The association should ask the help of all men regardless of their party affiliation, and no man or party should be antagonized, she said.

Delegates from Colorado, Oregon, Texas, Georgia, Alabama, Massachusetts, Virginia, Illinois, Michigan, Arkansas, New York, Missouri, Tennessee, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Maryland, and Florida spoke briefly in favor of continuing the present policy. The delegate from Texas said that when Mexican bandits invaded Texas the people in that State did not stand on State rights but quickly called for Federal aid.

Applause for Dr. Shaw.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, former President of the association, was loudly applauded when she was called upon to close the debate. The veteran worker for equal suffrage said that if she were to be born again she would give the same amount of time to the cause, above everything else in the world. The non-partisan campaign for equal rights the association had waged for so many years, she said, had brought the suffrage question up to where it is today. Education of men, rather than partisan political action upon the part of the association, she said, was the best method to bring about universal equal suffrage.

The announcement to the delegates that President Wilson would speak at the convention on Friday night was greeted with long applause.

There was a reception this evening at the Marlborough-Blenheim to the delegates, alternates and visitors, by the Atlantic City and the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Associations. Receiving were Mrs. John J. White, wife of Judge White, and Mrs. E. F. Feickert, President of the New Jersey State Suffrage Association, and the national officers.

Among the guests were Mrs. Alice Duer Miller, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Mrs. Emma Smith Devoe, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. George Bass of Chicago, Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Mrs. Raymond Robins, Mrs. Henry Villard, Miss Jean Gordon, Miss Laura Gordon, Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Miss Charlotte Rumbold, Miss Eva Ward, Miss Alice Morgan Wright, Miss Katherine D. Blake, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. Katherine Waugh McCulloch, and Miss Lucy Anthony.

EX-JUDGE MURRAY DIES IN 62D. YEAR

Former Jurist of Court of Claims Was Police Commissioner in 1894.

HELD MANY PUBLIC OFFICES

His Political Career Began Here 40 Years Ago—A Member of Patriotic Societies.

Charles H. Murray, formerly Judge of the Court of Claims, who was well known in Republican political circles in New York, died yesterday at his apartment in the Hotel Seymour, after a lingering illness, in his sixty-second year.

He was born in San Francisco and educated in Mount Pleasant Academy, and was admitted to the Bar in 1876. After starting his law practice in this city he took up Republican politics and became leader of the Eighth Assembly District, President of the Lincoln League, executive member of the Republican County Committee, Chairman of the Ninth Congressional Committee from 1894 to 1912, and member of the Executive Committee from 1904 to 1906.

Judge Murray was a delegate to the Republican National Convention from 1888 to 1912 and delegate to the State Conventions from 1886 to 1912. He was Republican candidate for District Attorney in 1893, and in 1890 he was Supervisor of the Census.

Judge Murray was Special Assistant United States District Attorney in 1892, Police Commissioner of New York in 1894, Aqueduct Commissioner of New York in 1897, and Quarantine Commissioner for New York State from 1901 to 1905. In 1904 he was Chairman of the Republican County Committee, and he was appointed Judge of the New York Court of Claims for the 1905-1906 term.

During his term as head of the Police Department he was responsible for a shake-up which resulted in the retirement of several Inspectors and Captains. He was a nephew of the late Samuel G. Courtney, United States District Attorney in this State.

Judge Murray was a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, a charter member and Deputy Governor General of the Sons of the Revolution, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Society of Foreign Wars, the Society of the War of 1812, of which he was a charter member and Judge Advocate General; the Loyal Legion, the St. Nicholas Society, Huguenot Society, the Bar Association of the City of New York, and the Republican and New York Athletic Club. He left a widow.

REV. DR. McCLELLAND DEAD.

Prominent Presbyterian Educator and Former Brooklyn Pastor Was 83

The Rev. Dr. Adam McClelland, Professor Emeritus of Ecclesiastical History in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Dubuque, Iowa, and for a quarter of a century pastor of the Fort Greene Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, died on Monday of pneumonia at the home of his son, Dr. Lefferts A. McClelland, 78 McDonough Street, Brooklyn. Dr. McClelland was 83 years of age and had been blind since his seventh year. He was born near Belfast, Ireland, and when 18 years old he came to this country and became a teacher in the New York Institution for the Blind in Manhattan.

He studied for the ministry, and after a special course at the University of New York, where he received his degree of Ph. D., he was graduated from the Union Theological Seminary in 1858. His first pastorate was in the Lawrence Street Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, which was later united with the Fort Greene Presbyterian Church, and after twenty-five years he resigned to accept the professorship at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Dubuque. He remained there for twenty-one years, during which time he also served as acting President of the seminary.

Dr. McClelland was the author of "A History of Our Lord," which is still used in seminaries as a textbook. Besides his son, Dr. Lefferts A. McClelland, he is survived by another son, Henry J. McClelland, a Manhattan lawyer, and a daughter, Mary A., wife of the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Loetscher, Professor of Church History in the Princeton Theological Seminary.

THE TOME SCHOOL

In a picturesque region of Maryland, with the most modern equipment for the physical welfare and mental training of the boy, TOME cherishes old-fashioned ideals of developing his character by wholesome exercise and wholesome study.

The long autumn and spring invite him to golf and tennis, to football and baseball. An efficient physical director and special coaches point the way and encourage competition with comrades of his own age and weight.

Perfect sanitation, good food, and modern, well-appointed dormitories, with a separate room for each boy, insure his health and comfort.

TOME boys are taught in small classes, with supervised study, under experienced men. TOME specializes in the preparation of intelligent boys for college, technical school, or business. Tuition $700

THE ELY SCHOOL

Greenwich, Connecticut,

Reopens Wednesday, October 4th, 1916.

In all departments the school offers its patrons a superior grade of teaching in small classes, so that each student has opportunity for daily recitation and personal attention from teachers who are college women or highly trained specialists. College preparation. General courses.

The Junior Boarding School, entirely distinct from the Upper School, for girls under fifteen. Work and play with unusual care.

The attention of parents is called to the school's unequalled record of health. Situated twenty-eight miles from New York City, two miles from the village, two hundred feet above the Sound, with twenty-five acres, having its private artesian wells, sewage disposal, bathrooms adjoining every bedroom, a herd of Jersey cows, complete sanitation is secured. The school has never suspended its work on account of illness.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—A cataclysm struck the Metropolitan forces in the second round of match play for the national amateur golf championship over the Merion links today, and the one ray of comfort in an otherwise dark and gloomy day was the fact that the conqueror of Oswald Kirkby, Metropolitan title holder and favorite for the title, was Gardiner W. White of Flushing, who has been playing the best golf of the tournament in a quiet way. White won by 2 up on the home green when Kirkby pulled a long approach shot to an unplayable lie six inches from a huge flower pot on the steps of the clubhouse entrance.

Max Marston of Baltusrol, looked upon as a tower of strength by the New York contingent, was swept aside in the victorious march of the Westerners. Bob Gardner put his stalwart shoulders to the tower, and it immediately toppled over and crumbled into dust. Instead of a repetition of the famous thirty-seven hole match of last year at Detroit, it was a complete rout, Marston at one time being 7 down to the national champion, and finally losing 5 up and 3 to play.

Another Metropolitan star to sink in the tidal wave that overwhelmed the struggling Easterners was Frank Dyer of Montclair, Pennsylvania champion, who succumbed to the wonderful play of Bobby Jones, the 14-year-old lad from Atlanta, and the story of that defeat is worthy a golfing epic.

Dyer played fine golf yesterday in defeating Blossom, the intercollegiate champion, and he was picked by no less an authority than old Benny Sayers to win the title. He started out well, and the youngster was 5 down at the sixth hole. At last the phenomenon had exploded. He ascended so rapidly that as he stood on the seventh tee his chances of surviving in the tournament could not be distinguished by the naked eye.

Lad Descends to Terra Firma.

About a half hour later, however, a spot was visible in the sky. It was not a sun spot, either, but it was the son of Mr. Jones, Sr., of Atlanta, who was rapidly returning to earth, and who eventually started for the home hole in the morning round 1 up, only to have the match squared when he played the wrong ball to the green. It was a magnificent recovery, however, and well appreciated by the large gallery that followed the players. The boy won easily from Dyer in the afternoon, 4 up and 3 to play.

John G. Anderson of Siwanoy is the only Metropolitan player to remain in the tournament in company with Gardiner White, and as they are in opposite sides of the draw they are wishing each other the best of luck until the final round.

Jesse Guilford, the long driving champion of Massachusetts, defeated G. A. Ormiston rather easily in the afternoon, after the Pittsburgher had held him all even through the morning round. Guilford has had an easy time of it for the last two days, but tomorrow he will find a tall, dark man about to cross his path in the person of Gardiner White, and in his form of today the Flushing player is invincible.

Chick Evans had a real day off in winning from W. P. Smith of Pine Valley, the match ending at 10 and 9, when only half of the second circuit had been completed. He needed a day of rest, however, between his match with Nelson Whitney and the struggle with Johnny Anderson that is due tomorrow. The last time these players met in the national championship was in the semifinal round at Garden City in 1913, where Anderson won.

Bob Gardner will endeavor to persuade Bobby Jones that he has done enough for a youngster in this tournament, but the boy is stubborn and may resist so forcibly as to create the greatest sensation in the history of American golf.

Boy Plays Badly at the Outset.

Playing the first hole against Dyer in the morning round, the Atlanta youngster started his streak of remarkably poor golf by taking three putts and losing the hole. When Dyer topped into the brook on his tee shot at the second hole Jones should have won it easily, but he drove out of bounds, dilly-dallied in the bunkers, and ended by taking three putts for a lost hole by 7—6. Three more putts on the third green made him 3 down, and a half in 4 at the fourth hole was only a temporary stay on his downward path.

On the fifth hole Dyer rolled into the brook that guards the green on his second, pitched up dead, and went down in one putt for a 5. With two putts to halve the hole, the boy proceeded to take three, and found himself 4 down. Another frightful session of putting on the sixth green and he had reached the ultimate depths of his degradation, standing 5 down with only six holes played.

Here he made a wonderful rally, while Dyer played the kind of golf that cannot be described in polite society. He took twenty-two strokes on the next four holes, par on which is fourteen, and the Atlanta boy won all four of them, coming within a hole of squaring the match. Bobby had a putt for a 2 on the short seventh, won the eighth when Dyer topped his second into a bunker, and received the ninth with open arms when the Pennsylvania champion forced it on him 6—5. This is a full mashie pitch across a pond to a long, narrow green. Dyer was in a pit to the left, with Jones similarly located on the right side of the green.

Niblicks Settle the Game.

After two useless shots in the bunker, during which time he hit considerable sand and very little ball, Dyer gave over his work to watch Jones. If the youngster came out on the green on his first shot, Dyer had every intention of abandoning the hole. The boy did come out, but his opponent still clung to his chance, for Bobby's ball merely hopped out of the bunker, ran across the green, and came to rest in a choice location by the side of Dyer's ball. Then came the duel of niblicks. Each player made a strenuous effort, got his ball out on the next shot, and went down in two putts, but this gave the youngster the hole, 5—6.

Fortunes varied on the homeward journey, but a ten-foot putt for a three on the 330-yard fifteenth hole and a four-foot putt for a two on the seventeenth left the boy one up going to the home hole. Here a mixup was encountered that really cost the youngster a lead of two holes. Both players were using the same kind of ball, and, after the drive, one was located in a good lie on the edge of the woods, while the other was buried in the woods. It was Dyer's drive that was buried, but the boy played that ball, hit a tree in trying to get out, lost the hole, and ended the morning round all square instead of two up, as he should have been.

The youngster got right down to work in the afternoon, however, took the lead on the first hole, and was never headed until he won out on the sixteenth green.

On the first hole Dyer put his approach shot in the huge bunker short of the green. He descended into the pit with his well-worn niblick, gave a terrific windmill stroke that conjured up a miniature sandstorm, and then mournfully pursued his ball across the green into the trap on the other side. Here he repeated the performance, and went back to the scenes of his first shot, only to abandon the hole to the boy, giving him the lead at one up.

Dyer Leaps from Bunker to Bunker.

From this point to the eighth hole, all the holes were halved, with the youngster clinging grimly to his lead. They were both playing fine golf through this stretch, but Dyer had a fearful and wonderful session in the bunkers at the eighth hole that left him 2 down. With a short pitch across a yawning trap to the green on his second shot he landed in the bunker. Out came the trusty niblick from the bag, and into the bunker descended the Pennsylvania champion. A cheer told him he was out, but a dismal groan that followed made him aware of the fact that he was over the green into a twin pit on the far side. More work for the niblick.

Jones, in the meanwhile, was on the green in 2, with a sure 4 in view. "Once more into the 'breach'" said Dyer, clambering down into the pit on the far side. Another cheer, another groan, for he had repeated his former process and was now resting comfortably about six inches from his starting place. Dyer admitted that he had had ample exercise on that particular hole and the youngster was 2 up. The ninth was halved, Bobby's medal score to the turn being 38.

The boy drove into a bunker on the tenth hole, tried for the green from that location, but missed it and was only 1 up. He regained his advantage a moment later when Dyer drove into a bunker on the left of the eleventh fairway, and then the holes were halved up to the fifteenth. On this hole the Atlanta youngster planted a chip shot within two feet of the cup, taking a 3 that won the hole and left him dormie 3. Dyer failed to make the long carry across the quarry on his second shot to the sixteenth green, and a par 4 by the boy clinched the match 4 and 2.

In anticipation of a repetition of the remarkable match at Detroit between Marston and Gardner, a large crowd turned out to follow the players. They were much disappointed, for the Baltusrol player was but a shadow of his last year's form, and proved an easy victim for the national amateur champion. One thing, however, that Gardner has demonstrated, is that he is vastly underrated as a golfer in the East. He has wonderful control of pitch shots to the green, and puts a back spin on them that fairly makes the ball jump up right in the air wherever it lands.

He is a heady player, a fine putter, never knows what it is to lose courage, and is always straight as an arrow on the pin. He has been keeping his reputed long driving under cover because of his sore finger, which still bothers his grip, and also because he has had no need of it so far.

The Baltusrol player got away to a prophetic start by taking three putts on the first green and losing the hole. From the second tee he hooked into a bunker, came out short, was still in the rough on his third, pitched within six feet of the pin on his fourth, and missed his putt for a 5. Such golf as this was easy for Gardner, who was short of the green in 2, on in 3, and down in two putts. Marston drove out of bounds on the third hole, but he got a half in 5, when the national champion failed to get out of the rough on his second shot and took three to reach the green. Gardner lost one hole of his advantage on the fifth by driving away off direction on a sidehill, pitching his second into a trap, his third into the rough on the other side of the course, and his fourth on the green. Marston was on the green in 3, winning the hole 5—6.

The Baltusrol player made a terrible mess of the sixth hole and put Gardner 2 up again. He hooked his tee shot into a ditch, endeavored to play it out of it's watery lie without soiling his white costume, and very naturally failed to move the ball to any considerable extent. Not desirous of further wetting, he picked up and dropped back for a penalty stroke, and played 4 into the rough on the other side of the fairway. In the meanwhile Gardner drove into a bunker, came out well, and curled his third shot within ten feet of the pin. When Marston's fifth shot was still some fifteen yards from the cup, he acknowledged that he was 2 down and walked to the seventh tee.

Both Are in the Rough.

He might just as well have walked to the eighth tee, for Gardner proceeded to steal the short seventh from under his very nose. Both were in the rough to the right of the green, Gardner emphatically so. The title holder hit his ball so strenuously that he rolled over the green into the long grass on the other side, while Marston came out nicely with a ten-foot putt for his 3. Gardner should have known that he was beaten on this hole, but that is one thing he has not learned. He is never even distantly aware of the fact that he has no chance for a hole or a match. He called Murphy, his caddie with the drooping mustache and the prominent "galluses," picked out his niblick, and holed out in 3 from the side of the bank. Enter Mr. Marston with a missed putt and the national amateur champion was 3 up.

Gardner lost the eighth hole by driving too far. His ball rolled into the rough, and in the pitch to the green he failed to get clear, and tumbled his ball into a ditch to the right. He failed to get out in 3, and Marston won the hole with an easy 4. Both were in trouble on the ninth, and the hole was halved in 4.

The tenth was halved in 4, and Marston lost the eleventh 5—4 after he was on the green in 2, with Gardner in the long grass on the edge of a trap in the same number of strokes. Gardner ran up and sank a four-foot putt for his 4, and Marston missed an eighteen-inch putt for a half, 3 down once more. Three more putts on the thirteenth green left him 4 down, and, with a possible 3 on the fifteenth green, the perverse Mr. Gardner laid him a stymie and prevented him from having even a good try at the four-foot putt to reduce the margin of lead.

Marston drove a bunker to the left of the seventeenth green, but he lost nothing by it, as the title holder obligingly took three putts and halved the hole in 4. The Baltusrol player hooked his tee shot into the depths of the woods from the eighteenth tee, was still in the woods on his second, hit half tin can and half golf ball on his third but got clear, was sort on his fourth, up on his fifth, and abandoned the ball to Gardner, who was nicely on in 2. This left Marston 5 down at the end of the round.

Three putts by Marston on the first hole in the afternoon round and one [illegible] hole left the metropolitan star 7 down. This was too much, and Marston braced so well that he was only 3 down at the turn. He won the third when Gardner ran across the green into a trap, captured the fourth by sinking his first putt of the day for a 3, one stroke under par, and was presented with the eighth when the amateur champion drove into the pit that guards the green more than 300 yards from the tee, and in endeavoring to get out shot his ball far into a woody dell, where it still remains.

On the ninth hole Gardner played his worst and his best shots of the match. His worst shot came when he flubbed his tee shot completely, pitching some seventy-five yards off the tee into a ditch. His recovery was magnificient. Standing on a slippery bank and reaching down as far as he possibly could to hit his ball, he pitched across the water to the green within fifteen feet of the pin. The shot was wasted, however, for Marston was nicely on with his tee shot and won the hole with a 3, when Gardner missed his putt by the fraction of an inch.

At this point Marston was only 3 down, and appeared to have a fighting chance of winning out. All hope died, however, when he drove a bunker on the eleventh hole and took a 5, 4 down once more. The next three holes were halved and both players got about equal distance from the fifteenth tee, where Gardner was dormie 4. The national champion played first and pitched some fifteen feet past the pin.

Marston Buries Last Hope.

The last hope of the Baltusrol golfer was buried in the trap into which he pitched his ball on his approach shot. Gardner ran his third shot up to the lip of the cup, and all Marston had to do to remain in the contest was to hole out from the bunker with his niblick. This he failed to do, and Bob Gardner, national amateur champion, was free to keep his engagement with Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta for two rounds of golf tomorrow morning over the Merion Links.

Kirkby and White played the best match of the tournament up to the present time. White had a 73 for his morning round to a 75 for Kirkby, and in the afternoon the Flushing player took a 76 for a thirty-six-hole total of 149 strokes. With the greens as keen as they are and the fairway in its dried out condition owing to the long drought, this is remarkable golf.

White was bunkered on the first hole, losing out, and Kirkby was bunkered on the second, squaring things again. An eight-foot putt for a stroke under par on the fourth hole put the Flushing player 1 up on the metropolitan amateur champion, but another putt that gave Kirkby the fifth hole in a stroke under par made the match even up once more.

This sort of turn-and-turn about playing found White 1 up at the turn in 38, to a 39 for the Englewood golfer. Coming in, the holes were halved until White took three putts after pitching nicely to the thirteenth green. Once more the match was squared, but the Flushing player went into the lead again on the fifteenth by pitching his second shot within a foot or so of the pin for a 3. He held this lead to the end of the round and finished 1 up.

Kirkby was bunkered on the second hole of the afternoon round, putting White two holes in the lead, but three putts that the Flushing player took with his queerly shaped weapon set him back at 1 up again. On the eighth hole White met much the same fate that overtook Gardner earlier in the day. His drive got such a long roll that it ran into trouble, and before the Flushing player could explain things in a satisfactory manner to himself he lost the hole and the match was squared.

White has once more taken to his bosom the putter with the wry neck and the round aluminium head that he discarded earlier in the season, and with this instrument he proceeded to take three putts on the ninth green, losing the hole to Kirkby, who uses an ordinary putter which refuses to work more than twice on each green. Here the Flushing golfer was 1 down for the first time in the match.

This was plenty, but, unknown to White, much more was on its way. He was on the edge of the tenth green in 2, and took three more shots to coax his ball into the cup, standing 2 down. The putter that betrayed his trust on the ninth green came to his rescue in his adversity and a seven-foot putt for a 3, one under par, at the eleventh, reduced Kirkby's lead to a single hole.

Kirkby's Ball Disappears.

The twelfth was halved, paving the way to the mystery that marked the play on the thirteenth hole and squaring the match. White pitched safely to the green, and Kirkby fell short somewhere between the edge of the green and the brook, a narrow strip of long grass about three feet in width. The players looked, the caddies looked, the gallery looked in vain. No ball. Not even half a ball or the smallest part of one, and the match was squared.

Kirkby missed short putts on the fourteenth and sixteenth holes that would have given him the victory, but White was holing his with relentless certainty. A tee shot that landed in the bunker to the right of the seventeenth made things look dark for the Englewood player, especially when he failed to get out in his next shot. White was on the green and took a 3, going to the home hole 1 up. Kirkby had a long iron shot to play to the home green.

He hooked it, and it rolled through the gallery, across a road, a flower bed, across a practice putting green, and brought up within six inches of a huge flowerpot on the club steps, where it could have been played only by moving the clubhouse. Rather than go to that much trouble, and, as White was on the green in 2, Kirby gave up the ghost, with White the winner, 2 up.

John Anderson had little trouble in defeating Bob Hunter of Midwick, 6 and 5, but he played one shot on the sixth hole which he considered the best of his long and varied tournament experience. He was in the ditch that runs parallel to the hole, and, moreover, he was on the far bank from the hole, so that it seemed almost impossible to get his ball out, not to mention aiming it at any particular point in the horizon. He aimed it, however, at the pin, falling into the ditch as he made the shot, and the ball brought up on the green some fifteen inches from the cup. The rest of his play was steady, but not sensational, and he is amply prepared for his match with Evans tomorrow morning.

The summaries:

Second Round of Match Play.—Robert A. Gardner, Hinsdale, defeated Maxwell R. Marston, Baltusrol, 5 and 3; R. T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, defeated Frank W. Dyer, Montclair, 4 and 2; Jesse Guilford, Woodland, defeated G. A. Ormiston, Oakmont, 6 and 5; Gardiner W. White, Flushing, defeated Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, 2 up; John G. Anderson, Siwanoy, defeated R. E. Hunter, Midwick, 6 and 5; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, defeated W. P. Smith, Pine Valley, 10 and 9; D. C. Cockran, Baltimore, defeated Ferry Adair, 5 and 3; C. E. Buxton, Huntington Valley, defeated George Small, Baltimore, 2 and 1.

CHAMPAGNE STAKE IS WON BY VIVID

Whitney's Fast Youngster Beats Woodtrap, Only Other Entry, in Belmont Feature.

Vivid, from the stable of Harry Payne Whitney, which finished fourth in the Futurity last Saturday, won the Champagne Stake, an event which was to have been the chief attraction of the day's racing at Belmont yesterday. That it was not was hardly the fault of the association, but rather because owners failed to start their horses.

In former years the Champagne Stake was considered one of the most important two-year-old events of the season, and it went far toward establishing the championship in this division, as it is the first time the youngsters are asked to go seven furlongs, all their earlier races being three-quarters of a mile. The event is more than forty years old, and was first run at Jerome Park in 1868.

Yesterday's race was the first time, except when Colin won in 1907, that there have been only two starters. The fact that only two went to the post with about seventy-five eligibles is hard to explain, particularly as the stake is of considerable value.

Vivid and August Belmont's Woodtrap were the two youngsters to face Starter Cassidy. Had not the former been added the Rock Trap colt would have had to go the route alone, as the other two entries, Mary Powell and Straight Forward, were withdrawn. There was very little to the race once it was under way. The winner went to the front at the break, and practically led throughout. Accustomed to racing six furlongs, the added eighth of a mile was a hard test for the juveniles and they were both tired and leg-weary at the finish.

Wenonah, carrying the colors of Schuyler L. Parsons, won the opening race on the card, which was a selling event for three-year-olds and upward. The winner was off to a flying start and immediately assumed command. Warscher, her jockey, kept her in front all the time and she made every post a winning one. Flag Day, which raced to his best form, followed Wenonah closely throughout, but could not get to the winner and was doing his best at the end to stave off the challenges of Naushon, which was the favorite. The latter was off badly, which may account partly for his poor showing.

The Oak Ridge Stable's Harvest King graduated from the maiden class of two-year-olds when he won this event over a straightaway course of six furlongs. The victor was a heavily-played first choice, and he never left the issue in doubt for a single second. Going out in front at the start, the son of Sea King was not threatened, drawing away in the final furlong to win by three good lengths. Leicester, a recent importation, bearing the Madden silks, was second. The latter, off badly, made up a lot of ground and in a fast drive took the place from August Belmont's Deckmate by a nose.

Showing a fine turn of speed, Vermont a Broomstick three-year-old belonging to J. O. Talbott, won the mile event for mares and geldings. It was a three-horse field, and the victor had very little difficulty in defeating Old Broom and Juliet, which came home in the order named.

Sorrento, with an eight-lengths lead, easily accounted for the steeplechase, over the usual two-mile route. Until Murphy, his rider, nearly lost his seat at one of the jumps in the backstretch, Aberfeldy had a commanding lead. From then on he was never in the race and finished last. When Aberfeldy stumbled the winner took up the pace and for the last quarter of a mile was always in front.

The most exciting finish of the afternoon was in the last race, when the imported Chiclet and Flittergold finished noses apart. The event was for three-year-olds and upward which have not won $800 in 1916. Rhine Maiden and Fellowship were the pair to show in front at the start. But their lead was of short duration. Coming around the turn Chiclet collared the two front horses and, once straightened out for home, took up the pace. Meanwhile Flittergold, which was coming along under a hard drive, also passed Rhine Maiden and Fellowship. Having accomplished this much, the son of Hastings set sail for the winner and the two raced together from the sixteenth pole home. They both seemed to flash past the judges' stand at the same instant, the finish being so close that the spectators were unable to tell which had won until the numbers were displayed on the board.

Before the races today there will be a sale in the paddock of horses in training, the property of John Sanford. The lots include Loechares, Bac, Brumley, Kilkenny, and other good ones.

NAPOLEON DIRECT VICTOR.

Geers Pilots Winner Home in Two-Minute Race at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 6.—Pop Geers scored an easy victory over Roan Hal and Single G in the 2:00 class, the feature event on the Grand Circuit card today, winning three heats in slow time. The fastest heat was the first, when Napoleon Direct went under the wire in 2:04¼. In the second heat the winner did the last half in 0:59¼ and the last quarter in 0:28½. Roan Hal, by great drives to the finish, beat out Single G for second place.

The first extra heat event of the afternoon came when the 2:12 class was called. Princess Wilkes, driven by Bill Crozier, a local horseman, won the first heat, getting the pole at the start and keeping it right through the heat. Walter Cox, with Young Todd, came to the front after that and won the next three heats. Brownie Watts took the 2:20 trot for three-year-olds, going the second heat in 2:12¼.

The thirty-first renewal of the Charter Oak Stake will be raced tomorrow, with St. Frisco and Mabel Trask as the leading contestants for the $5,000 purse.

MISS VAUCLAIN WINS AGAIN.

Gets Blue Ribbons with Cygnet and The Whip at Rochester Show.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Governor Whitman was the guest of the manager of the Rochester Horse Show this afternoon. Before visiting the show, where he spent the afternoon, he was the guest of Mrs. Warham Whitney at a hunt breakfast. It had been announced that the Governor would ride to the park on one of the coaches starting from Mrs. Whitney's home, but, instead, he arrived at the ring in an automobile. He will leave tomorrow for Albion, where he is to speak.

Constance Vauclain of Rosemont, Penn., whose horses are winning consistently in several classes, gained another blue ribbon with Cygnet in the interesting class for ladies' hunters. Miss Marion Beck, daughter of Sir Adam Beck of London, Ontario, Canada, rode for her father in this class, taking second place with Melrose. The feature of the event was the riding of Marie Louise Thompson of Rye, who was mounted on several unschooled horses from the Chilton Stables of Middleburg, Va., and the Charlton Stables of Avon, N. Y.

The Whip, Miss Vauclain's champion harness mare, took the blue in a stiff harness class which included J. Campbell Thompson's Nestledown Chancellor, Loula Long's Reputation, and John L. Bushnel's The Governor. The Long horse won second, and the Thompson entry third.

The Willisbrook Farms ponies, which took one first and two second prizes on Monday and two firsts and a second yesterday, continued their performance today. Model Fire took a second in the harness class for ponies over 12.2 and under 13.3 hands, and, paired with Antipon in the tandem class for ponies under 13.2 hands, won the blue.

The class for saddle horses of any type or breeding kept for private use was won by Walter H. Hantris's bay gelding Twilight, champion at Brockton, Long Branch, and Syracuse. As an additional prize in the event, a bronze medal was offered by the Arabian Horse Club of America. Buren Arnold, winner of the Wild Flower Cup the previous day, took second place. The pretty chestnut Sparkling Moselle, with Miss Webb up, was third.

Isabella Wanamaker's pair, Eve and Suave, carried off the first honors in the class for harness pairs over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.3 hands. Ladies drove in this class, and Mrs. Sidney Halloway was seen behind J. Campbell Thompson's Nestledown Blazer and Nestledown Blazes. Walter Hanley drove James Coxe Brady's Biereno and Hamilton Star, and Miss Vauclain drove her own winning pair, Lady Dilham and Elegant Dilham. The Brady pair took second place and the Vauclain entries third.

LIGHT WORK OPENS FOOTBALL AT YALE

Eli's First Gridiron Exercises of Season Begin with Tad Jones in Command.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 6.—With Field Marshal Tad Jones in command, and with Clarence Alcott, Dr. William T. Bull and Michael F. Sweeney of Yale's executive coaching staff present, Yale's football work for this season was inaugurated this afternoon. A squad of exactly forty players reported. The heaviest of this number, Galt, weighed in at 243 pounds, and the lightest, Levingsley, at 129 pounds.

They met Captain Clinton Black at noon for registration, and in the afternoon went through the first gridiron exercises of the season. The work consisted of the lightest kind of passing, falling on the ball, punting and starting, which was carried on for an hour on historic Old Yale Field, now dismantled of nearly all of its stands, but still available for daily practice.

Among the veterans were Harry Legore, whose eligibility through technicalities last year resulted in a new amateur athletic rule; Howard Baldridge, tackle; Charley Taft, son of the former President; Joe Neville, Effie Waite, Howell Van Nostrand, quarterback, and Art Gates. Kirkpatrick, the former Freshman tackle, who, it was announced, had left college, reported, but may not be available for play this fall. Callanan, the former Holy Cross star, joined the squad. Dr. Arthur Brides and Billy Marting, the only missing members of the resident coaching squad, sent word that they will be here for the close of the week.

Announcement was made tonight that Lenny Stagg, coach at Chicago University, will be here next week to assist the staff. He has not coached in twenty-five years, but this season, because of a new Western rule, he will not join the Chicago University squad until Sept. 20. Stagg played end on the Yale 1888 and 1889 elevens and established the first eleven at the Springfield training school in 1890, going to Chicago the next year.

Head Coach Jones said this evening that the Yale work would be extremely light for two weeks. The present hot wave will curtail it for the present, aside from Jones's determination to increase the drill only conservatively. No line up, even for signal rehearsal, is expected before next week. Jones will have general direction of the coaching, Bull of the backs, Alcott of the ends and passing, and Brides and Marting will be in charge of the line.

The list of candidates today included the following: Legore, Hallowell, Baldridge, Galt, Rosener, Menzies, Gaines, Levingsley, Vorys, Taft, Stewart, Jacques, Hutchinson, Bridge, Garland, Neville, Jones, Edwards, Waite, Winter, M. Smith, Sperry, Conway, Saunders, Oviatt, Gates, Van Nostrand, Corbin, Potter, Theobald, Kirkpatrick, Callahan, Osmund, Robinson, Carson, Woods, Zenner, Metcalf, Thomas and Backus.

The schedule for the season is as follows: Sept. 30, Carnegie Institute; Oct. 7, University of Virginia; Oct. 14, Lehigh; Oct. 20, Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Oct. 28, Washington and Jefferson; Nov. 4, Colgate; Nov. 11, Brown; Nov. 18, Princeton, and Nov. 25, Harvard. All games at the Yale field except Princeton.

RUTGERS SQUAD REPORTS.

Forty Candidates Take Part in First Practice on Gridiron.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 6.—Forty candidates reported to Coach Foster Sanford today for the first football practice at Rutgers of the year. The men were put right to work and were given a little scrimmage work. Most of the veterans of last year were on hand and there was also a large number of promising new men on hand. Of these Homer Hazel, the Montclair High School star, looks like a sure choice for the fullback position.

The biggest loss felt by the team is that of Talman and Nash, All-American men last year; but Garrett, the Indian fullback, will be shifted to Talman's place at guard. Hazel was given a lot of punting work yesterday, and Coach Sanford feels that he will be able to replace Talman in that department. Nash and a number of other members of last year's team were on hand to aid in the coaching. The first game will be played here against Albright on Sept. 23.

CADETS BEGIN PRACTICE.

Coach Daly Puts Army Football Squad Through a Hard Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Lieutenant Charles D. Daly, former Harvard and Army football star, who has coached the Army eleven for the last three seasons, arrived here today to take up his duties as head coach for the Cadets. Daly had the Army squad out for a two-hour drill this afternoon. The squad was divided into half a dozen units, and the coaches worked the men hard, in spite of the Summer heat.

A tentative eleven was formed, with Captain McEwan, centre; Meacham and Knight, guards; Rundell and Butler, tackles; Cole and Redfield, ends; Gerhardt, quarter back; Peck and Vidal, half backs, and the veteran, Ford, at full back. Oliphant, Place, and Jones, stars of a year ago, worked with the quarantined squad on the north field. Lieutenant Benny Hoge, Captain of the 1913 eleven, also joined the coaching staff today.

U. S. SOCCER TEAM WINS.

American Eleven Takes Last International Match in Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 6, (via London, Sept. 7.)—The All-American soccer football team tonight defeated a team made up of players of the Allmenna Idrottsklubben and Djurgarden Club by a score of 2 goals to 1. This game was the last to be played, and the Americans will sail for home on the Oscar II. on Sept. 8. Trainer Harry A. Davenport of Newark, N. J., and C. H. Ellis of the Brooklyn Celtics will not sail, Davenport remaining to take the position of masseur to the Swedish team, which will meet the Denmark Federation in games in October.

The Americans scored both goals in the first half, their first goal coming after a penalty kick and the second being the result of fine passing. The Swedish team was only able to score ten minutes before the end of the last half.

MISS GROVE WINS AT NET.

Mrs. Le Roy Also Advances in New York Lawn Tennis Club Tourney.

Many matches were played yesterday in the open singles and doubles tennis tournament for women of the New York Lawn Tennis Club on the clay courts at Columbia Oval. Miss Margaret Grove, Hudson River champion, and Mrs. Robert Le Roy advanced to the fourth round in the singles by victories in the second and third brackets.

Miss Margaret Taylor made a hard fight to remain in the play, but was eliminated in the second round by Mrs. P. Hitchens, who still holds the championship of Mexico, which, incidentally, has not been contested for several years. Mrs. Hitchens had to go the limit of three sets to dispose of her young rival at 2—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Miss Marie Wagner, former indoor champion, made her appearance in the singles and easily won her second round match against Mrs. Louis Manheimer in two love sets. The summaries:

WOMEN'S OPEN SINGLES—First Round.—Miss Ann Hamilton defeated Mrs. Murray, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2, and Miss Hazel Sawyer defeated Miss Ethel Tyndale, 8—6, 6—4. Second Round.—Miss Gertrude Della Torre defeated Miss Helen Alexander, 9—7, 6—3; Miss E. Skinner won from Miss Elsa Rayser by default; Miss Margaret Grove defeated Mrs. M. Huff, 6—0, 6—2; Miss Bernhard defeated Mrs. Edward Lynch, 6—3, 8—10, 6—2; Mrs. Eberhardt defeated Mrs. Straus, 11—9, 9—7; Mrs. Percy Wilbourn defeated Miss Ann Hamilton, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Blanche Brine defeated Miss Adele Cragin, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Hazel Sawyer defeated Mrs. Carlebach, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Louis Manheimer, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Mrs. Samuel Waring, 6—2, 6—0; Mrs. Seidenberg defeated Mrs. Parsons, 5—7, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. P. Hitchens defeated Miss Margaret Taylor, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3. Third Round.—Miss Margaret Grove defeated Miss Skinner, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Mrs. Seidenberg, 6—0, 6—1.

WOMEN'S OPEN DOUBLES—First Round.—Miss Edith B. Handy and Mrs. William B. Pouch defeated Miss Margaret Taylor and Mrs. McAneny, 7—5, 6—0; Miss Ina Kissell and Miss Ethel Tyndale defeated Mrs. P. L. Burdick and Miss M. Lowerie, 6—3, 6—0; Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss Helen Alexander and Miss Grace Gilleadeau, 6—3, 5—7, 6—2; Miss Gertrude Della Torre and Mrs. P. Hitchens defeated Mrs. A. Humphries and Miss Bessie Holden, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Marshall and Mrs. Straus won from Mrs. Bailey and Miss Sexton by default; Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Blanche Brine defeated Miss Bernhard and Mrs. Carlebach, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2; Mrs. Samuel Waring and Miss Embree Henderson defeated Mrs. Hinchliffe, Jr., and Miss Edith A. Bagg, 4—6, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. Manheimer and Mrs. Seidenberg defeated Miss Gibbon Goddard and Mrs. Dril, 6—2, 8—6.

GIANTS DIVIDE WITH THE SUPERBAS, WHO SLIP INTO SECOND PLACE WHILE PHILLIES ARE IDLE

ONE GAME EACH FOR GIANTS AND ROBINS

After Winning First Peppery Battle, 6 to 1, McGrawites Are Tamed by Marquard, 2 to 1.

BENTON TWIRLS BOTH ENDS

Allows 14 Hits in Big Day's Work—Brooklyn in Second Place Because Phillies Don't Play.

The Giants and the Dodgers played a couple of games up at the Polo Grounds yesterday which were chock full of red pepper and scrap, and if they go a few steps further it will be almost time to call out the militia. McGraw's newly repaired club won the first game, 6 to 1, and thereby shoved Brooklyn from first place. The Phillies and the Boston Braves didn't play, so although Brooklyn carried off the second serious quarrel by a score of 2 to 1, it wasn't enough to hoist them out of second place.

The second half of the two-ply bill found the players of both clubs so anxious to win that they got as mad as hornets at each other and at the umpires. Casey Stengel was caught napping off second in the third inning and felt so badly about it that he almost cried. He fumed and fussed so much that Lord Byron had to banish him from the game.

Rube Benton showed more disposition to indulge in manual labor than any Giant player has exhibited for years. Rube pitched both games yesterday, but his ambition to get the nickname of "Iron Man" failed because his teammates couldn't hit Rube Marquard, who was against him in a hair-raising pitching duel in the later battle.

Benton Hard at Work.

As it was, Benton gave Brooklyn only fourteen hits in the two encounters, holding them to four in the first game. Benton deserves a lot of credit, if for no other reason than that he showed a fondness to work. There are many of the Giant players who have gone through several games without much exertion.

In the first inning of the second game it looked as if Benton wasn't going to last long. Johnston singled and Daubert sacrificed. Stengel smashed a hot one to Fletcher, who tried to make a sharp throw to catch Johnston going to third. It would have been a great play if he had made it; but he didn't, and the ball went wild to the stands while Johnston scored.

The Giants evened it up in the second. With one out Kauff singled to centre and so did Holke, sending Benny to second. Kauff and Holke worked a double steal, Mowrey being spiked as Kauff slid into third. Rariden's sacrifice fly scored Kauff.

In the first half of that same inning Brooklyn threatened trouble when Mowrey doubled and Olson sent him to third with a sacrifice. Chief Meyers got an intentional pass from Benton. Marquard banged a liner to Herzog, who got the ball just as Meyers was passing. The two fell over, but Herzog, without arising, tossed to Holke for a smart double play.

Robins Stop Scoring in Third.

The Dodgers won the game in the third inning. Johnston singled to left and stole second. Daubert skied to Kauff and Stengel poked a double to left, which sent Johnston over with the winning run.

Stengel was so tickled with his feat that he took a great big lead off second. Benton whipped the ball back to Herzog and Casey was out by feet. Everybody knew it except Stengel, and all the Giants had a lot of fun with him as he argued with the umpires. He got red in the face and sparks flashed out of his eyes. He was sent to the clubhouse to insure safety.

The Giants got busy on Larry Cheney in the second inning of the first game and chalked up four runs. Zimmerman went out, Olson to Daubert, and Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball. Kauff's single to centre sent Fletcher to second. Holke doubled to left and scored Fletcher, while Kauff went to third. McCarty walked and filled the bases. As Benton was forcing McCarty at second Kauff scored. Burns walked and loaded up the corners again. Herzog banged a double to right and Holke and Benton went home.

Four Steals for One Run.

In the next inning the Giants went on a base-stealing rampage. With one gone Fletcher got a single and stole second. After Kauff flied to Wheat Holke got a pass, Fletcher stealing third in the meantime. Fletcher and Holke then worked a double steal, Fletcher scoring. Surrounding that run were no less than four stolen bases.

The lonesome Brooklyn run drifted across in the fifth. Wheat and Cutshaw singled and a pass to Mowrey filled the bases. Olson hit into a double play, and while it was being executed Wheat scored.

In the eighth inning, with Duster Mails doing the pitching, Fletcher crashed a home run into the right field grand stand for New York's sixth run.

TY'S TRICKS BEAT BROWNS.

Detroit Wins in Tenth When Cobb Executes Fancy Base-Running.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 6.—Tyrus Cobb, matching his speed against the throwing arms of Lavan, Hartley, Marsans, and Sisler, in the tenth inning today, scored the run which gave Detroit a 4 to 3 victory over St. Louis. With one out, Cobb beat out a hit to the shortstop. He stole second, Hartley's low throw bounded into Marsans's hand, but Cobb continued to third and beat the toss. Veach grounded sharply to Sisler, who forced Cobb to return to third, but as Sisler was touching first Ty tore for home and beat the throw by an eyelash. The score:

HUNDREDTH DEFEAT FOR MEEK MACKMEN

Unfortunate Athletics Reap Doubtful Honors of Season at Hands of Red Sox.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 6.—When Boston won today's game here by 5 to 2, Philadelphia reached the century mark in the number of defeats this season. The visitors hit Sheehan's delivery hard in two innings, while the Philadelphia pitcher's wildness was responsible for a run in the eighth inning. Manager Carrigan of Boston was notified by President Johnson of the American League today that he had been suspended for three days for his trouble with Umpire O'Loughlin yesterday. The score:

INDIANS RALLY IN VAIN.

White Sox Stave Off Ninth-Inning Effort and Win by 4 to 3.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Chicago defeated Cleveland by 4 to 3 after staving off a determined ninth-inning rally by the Indians. For arguing too strenuously, Schalk and Fournier of the White Sox were expelled by Umpire Dineen, and Robert Hasbrook, a Muscatine contribution to the big leagues, took the latter's place on first and made a favorable impression. PIRATES TAKE A COUPLE.

Defeat Cardinals by 3 to 2 in First Game and 6 to 3 in Second.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6.—Pittsburgh won a double-header from St. Louis here today, the score in the first game being 3 to 2 and in the second, 6 to 3. With the bases full and the score a tie in the ninth inning of the first contest, Warner singled, scoring McCarthy with the winning run.

Ames was hit hard in the second game, doubles by Casey and Bigbee, Johnston's triple, and Farmer's single scoring three runs in the third inning. Lotz, who relieved Ames, was also hit hard, but Harmon kept the visitors' hits scattered. The scores:

To Select Seven Pro Golfers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—An elimination match will be played by golfers of the Middle States branch of the Professional Golfers' Association on a local course Sept. 19 to select seven players to compete in the national championship tournament at Mount Vernon, N. Y. The date of the championship event has not yet been selected.

MISS MINNEAPOLIS POWER BOAT QUEEN

Wins One-Mile Title and Sets New Record in Bursts of Dazzling Speed.

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—The Lake George Cup, emblematic of the one-mile power boat championship of North America, was won this afternoon by Miss Minneapolis of the Minneapolis Power Boat Association. Miss Detroit of Detroit was the only other starter, mishaps causing the withdrawal of Peter Pan VII. of the Columbia Yacht Club, New York, and Hawkeye of the Lake George Club.

The average speed of Miss Minneapolis in six one-mile trials was 53.11 nautical or 61.08 statute miles an hour, and her fastest nautical mile was timed in one minute four and six-tenths seconds. This was in her first mile, running with the current, and constitutes a world's record, according to all figures available. The winner's average for the six heats also sets a new mark.

Miss Detroit averaged 45.45 nautical or 52.27 statute miles an hour, and her fastest nautical mile was one minute sixteen and six-tenths seconds, made with the current, in her third mile.

Last year's average speed for the cup was 53.87 statute miles an hour.

A hole was stove in Hawkeye's hull by driftwood, and she was towed into her dock. Peter Pan VII. was shipped home before the race because of a bent shaft.

Presentation to the representatives of Miss Minneapolis of the Gold Challenge Cup, which she won yesterday, and the Lake George Cup was made at a dinner of power boat men tonight. The summary:

LAST N. Y. Y. C RACE TODAY.

Fifties Will Compete for Title in Final Club Contest.

This afternoon, over the Glen Cove courses, the New York Yacht Club will have its last club races of the season, the club's activities closing with the ocean races for the Cape May and Brenton's Reef Cups, which will be sailed next week. These are both challenge affairs, however, and will not bring out the racing fleet of the club. The Ventura, Grayling, Carolina, and Barbara will renew their contest for the championship of the fifties, and will probably be seen together for the last time in this race, though some fo them may take part in the Indian Harbor Club races of Saturday and those of the Manhasset Club on the following Saturday, which brings the yachting season of 1916 to a close.

Most of the forties will be out today, as there is still the question of the series races to be decided, and all of them have points worth defending as well as the opportunity to win one of the Autumn cups. Like reasons will bring out all the Class P and the thirties, both of which classes will stay in the sport to the end, as there are the Long Island Sound championships as well as those of the club to be decided.

DENNING SHOWS OLD SKILL.

Returns to the Ring to Outpoint Eddie Nugent in Easy Fashion.

Jack Denning, the West Side middleweight and former idol of the boxing enthusiasts of that locality, made a successful return to the ring last night at the Pioneer Sporting Club in West Forty-fourth Street, where he easily outpointed Eddie Nugent of Nutley, N. J., in the feature ten-round bout. It was as if Denning had left his present occupation of boxing instructor at the City A. C. to give the New Jersey middleweight a lesson in the finer points of the game.

In aggressiveness the west sider was woefully weak, and it appeared that he lacked his old confidence, but in science and cleverness he so far outclassed the rugged Nugent that he made him look like a crude novice.

Denning jabbed with cool calculation throughout the entire ten rounds, and at no time was he in serious danger. In the third, fourth, and sixth rounds Nugent caused his adversary's admirers some worry when he landed with rights to the jaw, but these were spasmodic outbursts, and Denning always came back smilingly, jabbing his opponent about the ring.

The west sider gave the fans a glimpse of his old-time form in the tenth session, when he lost his timidness and willingly exchanged blows with his opponent, and, although he seemed to be tiring, he walked off with the honors with ease.

The second ten-round bout between Joe Lynch, the west side bantamweight, and Monte Attell of California, brother of the famous Abe, was the best of the evening. When the bout ended Lynch had the Californian staggering about the ring, helpless to defend himself, and practically knocked out. In the opening round Lynch floored his opponent with a right to the jaw, but the bell came to Attell's rescue. The bell again saved the Californian in the fourth session, when Lynch had him groggy from a right to the jaw. From then until the seventh Lynch battered Attell about the ring at will.

Benny Volgar outpointed Willie Gilligan in a six-round bout.

Five-Mile River Swim Tuesday.

The New York Athletic Club will hold the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. five-mile river swim on next Tuesday. The start will be at the Columbia University boathouse, 116th Street, and the course will be north to a point off 216th Street. Bud Goodwin, the Mercury Foot veteran, will defend his title in this race.

COAST STARS FIND NEWARK TRACK FAST

Athletes, After Early Trials, Predict Speedy Performances in Title Meets.

Condition will be a powerful factor in the national junior and senior track and field championships tomorrow and Saturday at Weequahic Park, Newark. Realizing this fact, the Western athletes who are already here spent yesterday in furbishing their form at the track. Great progress has resulted in making the cinder path what it should be for a national meet, and Fred Kelly and Earl Thompson, the Los Angeles hurdlers, found it so fast yesterday in their trials that they predicted a 14 3-5 performance in the high hurdles. Bob Simpson did not get here in time to test his speed, but will be out at the track today.

The team of four men which will represent the Columbian A. C. of St. Louis arrived yesterday and lost no time getting out to Weequahic Park for a morning practice. Under the clock of Coach Fitzgerald, Irving Mahl, sprinter, Bob Probst and A. R. Hickman went through their paces. Probst was in such fine condition that Fitzgerald sent him over the quarter at top speed, and he came near a 50 seconds pace.

Hummell, Fee, and Williams, the Multnomah A. C. team from Portland, Ore., were also among the fleet of performers training at Weequahic Park.

Willie Kyronen, the Finnish distance runner, has returned from Detroit, and yesterday asked the A. A. U. authorities to change his entry from "unattached" to the Millrose A. A., which he formerly represented.

The teams from the Illinois A. C. and Chicago A. A. will be here today and Weequahic Park this afternoon should be quite a busy place on the athletic map.

In announcing the entries for the junior championships tomorrow, Frederick W. Rubien, Chairman of the National Championship Committee, yesterday stated that the Amateur Athletic Union must find a more appropriate name for these sports. The impression is quite prevalent that the athletes who compete for championship honors in this meet are immature, when as a matter of fact the only men barred from competing in the A. A. U. Junior Championships are those who have previously won a world's, American Intercollegiate or foreign championship. Many of the men who are entered in these events to try for a Junior title are of such fine calibre that they would have been able to win Olympic championships, had the Olympic games been held at Berlin this year as per schedule.

There will be as starters in the sprints A. E. Ward of the Chicago A. A. and Henry Williams of the Spokane A. C., who have both run 100 yards in 0:09 4-5 within the last fortnight; Irvin Mahl of St. Louis, who last year defeated Jo Loomis, the Senior National champion, at 100 yards, running the distance in 9 4-5 seconds; John McCawley of the Missouri A. A., who two weeks ago defeated Mahl in the Western championships; J. L. Foley, the former Harvard University sprinter, now representing the Boston A. A., who is a ten-second man, and Hector Auray of the New Haven A. A., the 1915 Junior Metropolitan 220-yard champion. The race between these men should result in one of the best sprinting contests of the year.

In the 440-yard run are such men as W. D. Crim, the Cornell crack, who has run the distance under 50 seconds on several occasions; Frank Lagay of Dartmouth College and the New York A. C., who annexed the Metropolitan quarter-mile championship title two weeks ago, defeating all of the best double furlong runners in the East, and A. B. Booth of the Chicago A. A., a 50-second man.

Larry Scudder of the University of Pennsylvania and the New York A. C. looks to be the best man in the half mile. He is the Metropolitan champion. The other good men are Hoenish of San Francisco, Probst of St. Louis and Sandy Evans, the former Pomona College star who is now competing for the Salem-Crescent A. C. Some of the best men in the hurdles are Earl Thomson of the Los Angeles A. C., with a record of 14 4-5 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles and one of the favorites for the Senior title; Verle Murray of the same club, who has done 24 1-5 seconds for the 220-yard low hurdles; Frank Loomis, brother of the versatile Jo, who is good in both the high and low hurdles, and W. S. Hummell of the Multnomah A. A. C. of Portland, Ore., who is confident he will be able to do 54 seconds for the 440-yard hurdles.

In the field events will be seen Robert L. Nourse, the Princeton javelin thrower, who has just arrived in the East from his home in Boise City, Idaho, and reports that he is throwing the steel pointed spear 180 feet in practice. He has a record of 171 feet in competition. Other entries are O. Benson and J. T. Murphy of the Chicago A. A. and Boston A. A. respectively, in the sixteen-pound hammer throw and Fred Watkins of Los Angeles A. C. and Nagle of the New York A. C. in the pole vault. Watkins has done 12 feet 6 inches and Nagle has a record of 12 feet 3 inches.

DUFFY IN RING TONIGHT.

Will Meet Cline at Empire A. C.—Jeannette-Smith Bout Put Off.

Willie Reilly, manager of Jimmy Duffy, a lightweight of the west side, reports that his charge is in fine condition for his ten-round tilt with Irish Patsy Cline of Harlem, which features the program at the Empire A. C. tonight. Cline also has trained faithfully for the contest and will enter the ring well under 133 pounds ringside, the weight stipulated in the articles. Dan Tone has been selected to referee the bout. The management of the club announces that Benny Leonard has signed articles agreeing to a match with the winner of tonight's contest.

The scheduled ten-round bout between Joe Jeannette, the colored heavyweight, and Gunboat Smith of California, arranged for tonight, has been indefintiely postponed by the management of the Manhattan S. C. This action was taken because the managers of the Manhattan Club did not wish to conflict with the Empire A. C., which had previously arranged its card for tonight.

Leo Johnson, the negro lightweight, will be seen in action this evening against Walter Mohr, the Brooklyn boxer, in the feature ten-round bout at the Clermont A. C., of Brooklyn.

N. Y. A. C. INVITES ATHLETES

Program for Entertaining Competitors at Newark Arranged.

The New York A. C. has completed its plans for entertaining the athletes who will visit Newark for the national championships next Monday. Invitations were issued to more than 300 persons yesterday. The following is an outline of the program:

The athletes will assemble at 9:15 A. M. at the city clubhouse and proceed by automobile and bus to Travers Island, via Riverside Drive, Van Cortlandt Park, Bronx Park, and Pelham Bay Park, arriving at Travers Island about 10:30, and leaving for Huckleberry Island about 11 o'clock, where luncheon will be served and a swimming competition will be held for the athletes and a shuffle board competition for the newspaper men and officials; then leave Huckleberry Island about 1:30 o'clock for Travers Island. On the return trip an eight-oared barge race for the athletes—East vs. West—will be held. On the return to Travers Island a baseball game—East vs. West—will be held at 2:30 P. M. Dinner will be served at 5 P. M., and the party will leave Travers Island at 7:30 for the city clubhouse, where a boxing show will be held at 8:30.

In establishing our New York Branch we have taken over our former dealer's stock of floor samples, demonstrators and slightly shop worn cars.

There are only a few—about 20 Overland Sixes and Willys-Knight touring cars.

Some haven't been run a mile. Others are practically new.

All are in perfect running condition—just as good as when they left the factory.

The lowest priced car of the lot retails for $1125.

But to clean up the stock quickly we are making the astonishingly low price of $895 a piece.

These cars are beyond all question the biggest bargains in New York. They will go in a jiffy.

Do not delay.

Come in and get yours to-day.

MEXICAN CONFEREES MAP OUT THEIR AIMS

International Commission Opens New London Sessions with General Discussion.

CARRANZA REFORMS SHOWN

Message Sent to the President Before Adjournment for a Trip on the Sound.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 6.—The American-Mexican Joint Commission appointed to arrange an adjustment of border troubles and other questions between the two nations began its deliberations at the Hotel Griswold today with an exchange of general views.

A summary of the proceedings issued at the conclusion of the meeting alluded to the de facto Mexican Government as having "become every day stronger during the last two years, and in particular since the recognition" of the Government. This summary, agreed upon by Luis Cabrera, Mexican Minister of Finance, and Franklin K. Lane, Chairman of the Mexican and American delegations respectively, was as follows:

"This morning's session lasted three hours, from 10 to 1, during which Mr. Cabrera presided. The first matter of importance was the presenting of mutual credentials. In accordance with the Mexican form of opening conferences, Mr. Cabrera made a declaration of the purpose of the Mexican members of the commission, saying that it was their duty to fulfill in every way possible the great responsibility cast upon them by First Chief Carranza, and that they all stood committed to giving their full powers to bringing to a conclusion this conference in such a manner as would be most profitable to Mexico and the United States. After that, Mr. Cabrera stated that it was the desire of the Mexican members of the commission that the fullest information should be given to the commission regarding all matters involved, and that they were quite ready to meet the Americans in a spirit of utmost frankness.

Exchanged General Views.

"The members of the commission then exchanged views in general about the situation in Mexico and especially on the border, with the view to making a preparatory study of the subject. During the conference the commissioners reviewed the growth, control, and strength of the Constitutional Government, which has become every day stronger during the last two years, and in particular since the recognition of the Constitutional de facto Government, showing that order was being established throughout the Republic, railroad service being extended," &c.

Much emphasis was laid on the work of rehabilitating Mexico, which has been done by the Carranza Administration, and to the rapid progress which was being made in pacifying the country and re-establishing order. Proposed reforms in educational and agrarian lines also were related in detail by the Mexican members. It was pointed out that the recognition of the Carranza Government had greatly assisted the Constitutionalists in their work.

The session was adjourned shortly after noon in order to allow Minister Cabrera to go to Boston to look after urgent personal matters. He is expected to return in time for a renewal of the conferences on Friday morning, when Secretary Lane will preside, and when it is expected that the discussion will settle on the concrete questions at issue.

In the afternoon the remaining members of the party, accompanied by their wives and families, went for a sail up the Sound on the Mayflower.

Secretary Lane was the host aboard the yacht, which cruised for an hour or two in a heavy fog in Long Island Sound, picking her way slowly from fog whistle to fog whistle. As she dropped anchor on her return off the hotel where the conferences are being held, the first opportunity was given for full naval honors to be paid to the Commissioners. The Mexican flag was hoisted at the foremast, officers in full dress stood at attention at the gangway as the party left the ship, and a minute later the nineteen-gun salute, to which the Commissioners are entitled, boomed out, while band, bugle, and boatswain's whistle played their part in the ceremony.

The Commissioners sent to President Wilson and to General Carranza the following message:

> The American and Mexican Joint Commission, in addressing itself to the task assigned to it, desires to send to your Excellency most cordial greetings, and to express the hope that its labors will be productive of results satisfactory to both countries.

Lane Keenly Interested.

Secretary Lane and his associates are evincing a keen interest in the aims and purposes of the Constitutionalist Party in Mexico, as they are learned from the men delegated to aid in the effort to establish a sound basis of mutual understanding between the two Governments. The information thus gained, it is said, may have an important bearing on the specific agreements which the Commissioners may reach.

While the subject of the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico and related matters, such as the formulation of a protocol to cover future military operations along the border, will be first disposed of, it appears certain that assurances by the Carranza Government of full protection for the personal and property rights of Americans in Mexico will hold an equally important place in the eyes of the American Commissioners.

During the recess the American Commissioners will study closely voluminous reports as to the situation on the border. These reports have been prepared by the State and War Departments. The Mexican Commissioners also have at hand complete data on the subject, brought with them from Mexico City. It is possible that another recess will be taken Friday over the week-end.

CABRERA PRAISES WILSON.

Says Watchful Waiting Policy Probably Saved Mexico's Life.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 6.—Luis Cabrera, one of the Mexican Commissioners, who came here today, said in an interview tonight that President Wilson's "watchful waiting" had probably saved his country's life. In part he said:

"In official circles of Mexico, President Wilson is looked upon as one of the greatest men the United States ever had as a leader. He is calm and considerate and his much abused 'watchful waiting' policy has probably saved the life of my nation and prevented your country from entering into a needless struggle."

Rumors, which preceded the arrival of Cabrera said he was coming to Boston to discuss a loan for the Mexican Government, but he said tonight that he simply came to see two sisters who are in school in a nearby city.

PERSHING MAY CHASE VILLA.

Rumor That He Contemplates Joint Action with Carranzistas.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 6.—If Francisco Villa gets within striking distance of the American expeditionary force, General Pershing's soldiers may join troops of the de facto Government in an offensive campaign to exterminate the bandit and his followers. This was the statement of General Funston today.

There has been no agreement between Mexican and American military men for a concerted move against Villa. General Francisco Gonzales, Carranza commander in northern Chihuahua, already has sent a force against the bandit, last reported in the Santa Clara Cañon, and if the occasion arises, the American commander may take part in the pursuit.

"That is up to General Pershing," said General Funston.

Army men pointed out that General Pershing entered Mexico to capture Villa and that his object had not been accomplished. A long code message went forward late this afternoon from General Funston to General Pershing.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 6.—General John J. Pershing left Columbus, N. M., today to return to Casas Grandes and Colonia Dublan. Before leaving Columbus he received a long code message from General Frederick Funston at San Antonio, which, it was rumored, referred to Villa's recent activities in Western Chihuahua. Increased activities at the Quartermaster's Department here and the sending of additional truck trains to Columbus are believed here by army officers to indicate a possible renewal of the offensive against Villa and his band at once by General Pershing's command.

Local army officers believe that Villa's reported movements are designed to embarrass the New London conferees, who are trying to arrive at a solution of the border situation. Carranza officers in Juarez do not hesitate to state that they do not approve of a rumored plan of General Funston for the cooperation of the Carranza and American forces in a chase after Villa. They say the Carranza troops declined to cooperate in the original chase and will not again, even with the possibility of capturing Villa and his band as the reward.

Mexican troops continue to be sent south to Laguna, the nearest railroad station to the Santa Clara Cañon, where Villa is said to be, and General Trevino not only has requested General Gonzales to take the field at once at the head of his troops in the Villa chase, but has again signified his intention of moving his own headquarters into the field and moving against Villa.

Trains going south from Juarez are being closely guarded for fear of a Villista attack at or near Laguna.

RODENBERG RENEWS ATTACK ON DODGE

Illinois Congressman Insists His Charge About Munition Sales Was Evaded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—A further attempt to connect Cleveland H. Dodge of New York, a large contributor to the Democratic campaign fund in 1912, with the shipment of munitions into Mexico was made in the House today by Representative William A. Rodenberg, an Illinois Republican, who challenged Mr. Dodge's claim that his firm is not engaged in making munitions of war.

Mr. Rodenberg elaborated upon his speech of Aug. 4, in which he charged that the day before Secretary Lansing lifted the embargo against shipments of ammunition to Mexico last April, resulting in the shipment of 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition to Carranza, Mr. Dodge "was in the city of Washington, and, according to the newspapers, visited the State Department."

Referring to Secretary Lansing's denial that he knew Mr. Dodge, Mr. Rodenberg said today that he accepted this denial, "because I have much greater respect for Mr. Lansing's veracity than I have for his ability."

However, Mr. Rodenberg said, the court records of Arizona show that the Phelps-Dodge Mercantile Company was indicted in 1913 for the shipment of munitions into Mexico in violation of this Government's neutrality order, and the indictment was dismissed on a technicality. He accused Mr. Dodge of "dodging" the issue in his denial.

MORE PARATYPHOID CASES.

Twenty-two New Patients in the New York Division.

Special to The New York Times.

McALLEN, Texas, Sept. 6.—Twenty-two cases of paratyphoid fever, making the total number sixty-two, were reported by Lieut. Col. William S. Terriberry, Chief Surgeon of the New York Division, today. This is the largest number of cases reported on any day since the mild sickness struck the camp.

Of the new cases the greatest comparative number was found in the Second Regiment, neighbor to the Fourteenth in the encampment of the First Brigade. One more case was reported from undetermined fever patients from the Third Regiment in the Third Brigade camp at Pharr, bringing the total number of cases in that camp, eight miles from Mission, to three. It is believed that these cases were contracted while the regiments were on the hike through Mission and other villages where several cases were reported later.

Nine new cases were reported among suspected sufferers from the Fourteenth Regiment, making the total in that unit thirty-four. The number in the Second Regiment jumped from eight to fifteen. One case was reported among men of the Seventy-first Regiment, who were left behind on suspicion of infection when that organization left for Camp Whitman at 3 o'clock this morning. Sixty patients, including paratyphoid cases and many undetermined fevers, were sent to the base hospital at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, today. This leaves the camp hospital here without a patient.

As soon as the Seventy-first Regiment reaches Camp Whitman the men will be inoculated with paratyphoid vaccine. Major Karl Connell, chief surgeon of the regiment, said yesterday that he and his assistant, Lieutenant Charles D. Kayser, tried to get vaccine from Fort Sam Houston before the unit left camp here. Failing to get it there, they telegraphed to Dr. Haven Emerson, Health Commissioner of New York City, who replied that he could supply them with the vaccine on Friday. The regiment probably will reach Camp Whitman on Sunday and the men will be vaccinated immediately. No other organization here has received the vaccine.

Lieut. Col. Eli Helmick of the Inspector General's Department of the United States Army, who came here with ten other officers a few days ago to inspect every unit in the division, yesterday and today inspected the Seventh Regiment. The men were on their parade ground more than four hours this morning. It is said that Colonel Helmick has instructions to finish his work here before Oct. 1.

71ST NOW HOMEWARD BOUND.

Regiment Likely to Arrive at Camp Whitman on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

VANDERBILT, Texas, Sept. 6, (On Board the Seventy-first Regiment Troop Train.)—In one section of fifty-three cars—long tourist sleepers for the men and Pullmans for officers—the Seventy-first Regiment left McAllen at 3:15 o'clock this morning, bound for New York.

The entire regiment, minus the supply company and mounted headquarters detachment, which are to follow, and two para-typhoid "suspects," left behind in the base hospital at McAllen, had boarded the cars at midnight. The delay in starting was due to the single-track line and the length of the train.

The men, however, after much cheering, had hurried to the luxury of the sheets and pillow cases, the first experienced in two months and three days. The train was divided into three sections at Kingsville, the domain of the famous King Ranch, where the breakfast stop was made.

Colonel William G. Bates commanded the first section, Lieut. Col. W. S. Beekman the second, to which is attached Brig. Gen. Dyer's brigade headquarters car, and Major W. W. Delameter the third section. If the present rate of speed is maintained, Colonel Bates expects to reach Camp Whitman late on Monday.

TO ASK FOR WHEAT EMBARGO

Bakers Meet in Chicago to Discuss Possibility of Ten-Cent Loaf.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Members of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Master Bakers met here today to consider means of dealing with the sharp advance in the price of flour, almost 100 per cent., which, it was declared, is driving many small bakers into bankruptcy.

The association, it was announced, probably would ask Congress to place an embargo on wheat. Bakers also will be urged to push the sale of a 10-cent loaf of bread, which can be manufactured at a profit. Money is lost on the manufacture of a 5-cent loaf, officials said.

GROCERY CLERKS OUT, ASK SHORTER HOURS

Chains of Stores Throughout Metropolitan District Have a Strike of 2,000.

SHARE OF SALES DEMANDED

Heads of Companies Unwilling to Have Managers Join Union—Smaller Concerns Yield.

The retail grocery clerks of the metropolitan district went on strike yesterday morning for higher wages, shorter hours of work, a regular time schedule, and a percentage commission on sales. There was a wide variation between statements on the progress of the strike, and the numbers of clerks who quit work as given out by the organization of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association and the officials of the grocery companies affected by the strike orders. According to the officers of the strikers' association 2,000 clerks were out yesterday.

The strike affects only the larger grocery companies, the so-called "chains" of stores, and the union leaders assert that they are fighting the battle of the individual grocer as well as their own. The men demand a minimum wage of $15 a week, 6 o'clock as a closing hour five days in the week and 10 o'clock on Saturday, recognition of the union, and a 1 per cent. commission on the receipts of the stores.

The strike leaders issued a statement from their headquarters at 160 East Eighty-sixth Street yesterday, asserting that they had 1,000 clerks out from the stores of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, 500 from the James Butler chain, 150 from the Andrew Davey stores, 80 from Daniel Reeves & Co., 150 from the Arctic Grocery Stores of New York and New Jersey, and 200 men from the National Grocery Stores of New York and New Jersey.

"These chain stores now employ one manager and one or two clerks," Arthur McLean, organizer for Manhattan, said yesterday. "From most of these companies the manager receives only $12 a week, which we consider most unreasonable for a job of that responsibility. Aside from that, he often has to work far into the night, especially on Saturdays, when 2 o'clock the following morning will sometimes find him still at his post."

The union leaders are depending on the scarcity of labor and the relatively long time it takes to develop a good retail clerk to aid them in their fight for recognition. They say that the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company told its managers Tuesday that they would have to resign from the union or be dismissed.

R. B. Smith, General Manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, said yesterday afternoon that seven of his company's stores in Manhattan were closed in the morning, but that his Superintendents had informed him that all had reopened. He admitted that the company had had some trouble, particularly in Staten Island and the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn, but said he expected it to end today.

"We are fighting for a principle," he said, "and we have no intention of giving in. We had two meetings with our men last night, one in Hamilton Hall, 146th Street and Broadway, and the other at the National Cash Register Hall, Twenty-eighth Street and Broadway. We talked the whole situation over, and the men said they were satisfied with conditions as they are. I don't believe more than fifty are out.

"It isn't the money question that disturbs our men, as they now get as much as the union demands. It is recognition of the union. We are perfectly willing to have our clerks join, but we are not willing to permit our managers to do so, thus placing responsible positions under union control. The strikers are also demanding a 6 o'clock closing, but we went on record before the strike as being willing to grant that the first of November."

Mr. Smith added he expected the strikers all back today. His company has more than 1,000 stores in the district affected.

M. A. Roach, General Manager of the James Butler Company, stated that his men did not want to strike, but had been intimidated. He said they had their own association, which fulfilled all functions of the union. James Reeves, General Manager of Daniel Reeves & Co., asserted that only four of his stores were closed, and only seven men out. He said the managers were now getting more money than the union asked for.

The chains affected by the strike order, with the number of stores in each, are as follows: Great Atlantic and Pacific, 1,000; James Butler Company, 350; Thomas Roulston Company, 250; National Grocery Stores, 250; Eagle, 85; Daniel Reeves & Co., 100; Andrew Davey, 75; P. Parker, 80.

At an executive meeting at union headquarters last night, the men were told that an agreement, granting all their demands, had been signed by the Thomas Roulston stores of Brooklyn, P. Parker Company, and the Eagle Grocery Company. Agreements with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, the James Butler, Daniel Reeves, and Andrew Davey Companies had not been reached up to a late hour last night.

FLYING BOAT IN TROUBLE.

Balky Engine Sends Davison and Lovett from Air to Water.

New York has grown so accustomed to having aviators perform sensational feats over its rooftops that only a momentary thrill seized the crowd in the neighborhood of the Twenty-third Street landing of the New York Yacht Club yesterday when two young men from Port Washington unexpectedly swooped down to the East River in their hydroaeroplane to remedy a touch of engine trouble. The aviators were Frederick Trubee Davison, eldest son of H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Robert A. Lovett, son of Robert S. Lovett, head of the Union Pacific Railroad system.

The pair are students in the aviation school recently established at Port Washington by Mrs. H. P. Davison and other wealthy persons, and were on their way to watch the manoeuvres of the Mosquito Fleet on Long Island Sound. They were traveling a thousand feet over the river about noon yesterday when the engine balked. Although neither of the two had had long experince in flying, they made a magnificent volplane to the water, avoiding successfully the tugs and barges in the river.

The crew of George F. Baker's yacht Viking put out to their assistance and towed the hydroaeroplane to the yacht club landing. The engine was repaired after two or three hours, and Lovett and Davison returned to Port Washington.

ROAD ENGINEERS NEEDED.

Automobile Chamber of Commerce Will Urge Courses in Universities.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has started a movement to encourage universities and colleges of the country to provide specialized courses in highway engineering to meet the growing demand for trained road engineers. The first steps were taken at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the chamber yesterday.

Inquiries made of State highway commissions show that there is a lack of well-trained engineers. Out of seventy-five educational institutions heard from, less than half provide for any specialization by students in highway subjects. Only four have special highway engineering courses leading up to degrees or certificates. With the large amounts to be spent in road building, including the $75,000,000 Federal Aid Fund recently voted by Congress, the Directors of the chamber think there will be a continuous strong demand for properly qualified engineers.

Record-breaking shipments of automobiles continue. The number of freight carloads sent out from factories in August, according to reports made yesterday, were 18,254, as against 16,989 in August, 1915.

CAME HERE TO ESCAPE WAR.

Spanish Jews Quit Colony in Greece When Called for Duty.

Among the 800 steerage passengers who arrived yesterday at Ellis Island from the Italian liner America, were forty-five Spanish Jews, members of a colony at Cavalla, Greece, who have come to America to escape conscription.

Six weeks ago the Greek Government called for military duty all able-bodied males under 40 years. The forty-five men who arrived here escaped in a fishing boat to Piraeus, where they boarded an Italian steamship sailing for Naples. One of them said bread was 50 cents a pound in Greece, and that there was great poverty on account of the war. All of the forty-five were permitted to land. They will be cared for by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society until they find employment.

AEROPLANE BAFFLES THE MOSQUITO FLEET

Sandy Hook Fog Gives Low Visibility to Circling Craft in Defense Manoeuvres.

SIGNALS FLASHED BY LIGHTS

Harbor Protection Engrosses Mariners Here—Block Island to See Submarine Chase.

The Mosquito Fleet of fast power boats, engaged in a week's manoeuvres to work out the tactical problem of the defense of New York Harbor, encountered a fog yesterday in its second day's work so dense that it taxed to the utmost the skill and ingenuity of the navigators.

The fog prevented wigwag signaling, and the little boats were forced to depend entirely on their fog horns for directions in their evolutions. Shortly after noon, however, the haze vanished and left the Mosquito Fleet to win admiration from naval officers by the promptness and accuracy of its manoeuvres.

The day's work started about 8:30 A. M., when under command of Lieutenant John W. Wilcox, Jr., U. S. N., it assembled in the sheltered waters of Sandy Hook. There it was divided into three squadrons, and spent the forenoon turning and twisting at full speed, sometimes in close formation and sometimes scattered, the boats being several hundred yards apart. When enough practice had been given to the crews to prepare them for the more difficult manoeuvres to come, Lieutenant Wilcox sent them back to the Atlantic Yacht Club to get gasoline from a barge sent down by the Navy Yard, and to prepare for the afternoon's work.

It was while these boats were lying to that some of the most interesting events of the day took place. A hydroaeroplane arose in the mist and circled around just outside the mouth of the harbor, its pilot being initiated in the art of signaling to the mother ship, in this case the power boat Dodger II., owned and operated by Harold I. Pratt.

The invisibility of the air boat when it was flying in a mist was well demonstrated when spectators on boats nearby were unable to see it until it dropped within a hundred yards of the watchers.

It was declared afterward by naval officers that an airship sent in a fog could look down upon the water almost as if it were clear weather. Today aviators in six hydroaeroplanes will learn how to detect navy defense mines strewn yesterday in Ambrose Channel by the destroyer Flusser.

Last night the power boats were assembled at 8:30 and proceeded in three squadrons to the battleships anchored in the harbor. They drilled for two hours, signaling with colored lights, flashes from the big crafts' searchlight, and "blinkers," as the white electric flashes in the Morse code are termed.

Tonight Lieutenant Wilcox plans to have a mimic attack by destroyers on the battleships, which will be defended by the power boats, and on Friday there will be a daylight attack of the destroyers, aided by aeroplanes.

SUBMARINES ARE CHASED.

Second District Squadron Off Block Island Pursues "Invaders."

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—Tactical manoeuvres engaged the scout squadron of fast power boats enrolled in the second naval district about Block Island today with Commander Steuert Davis in command and Lieutenant William D. Puleston, U. S. N., watching and assisting in the work. Three divisions are operating in conjunction with the battleship Virginia, and the destroyers Winslow, Benham, Worden, and MacDonough, the submarine tender Fulton, and three submarines. The new patrol boats owned and commanded by Harold S. Vanderbilt and Hermann Oelrichs were expected from Boston, besides the Flyaway III., owned by F. L. Upjohn of New York.

Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James turned over her motor yacht Maunaloa to Alfred B. Whitney, Jr., of New York, with Stowe Phelps as second in command. Signal work was largely engaged in today, with the squadron chasing submarines tonight and acting as a patrol against these in mimic attacks against the war vessels.

Tomorrow a similar program, with tactical manoeuvres and scouting at night with patrol lines from Block Island to Montauk Point, the submarine attempting to break through, will be the interesting program.

HUGHES MEETING IN STORE.

Speakers Say Alliance is Patriotic, Not Political.

The first of a chain of Hughes Alliance Stores, in which there will be daily speeches and exhibits to further the candidacy of Mr. Hughes, was opened yesterday at 221 Broadway, near Vesey Street. A brass band, which played the "Star-Spangled Banner" and other national airs, many American flags, cartoons and posters derogatory to President Wilson and laudatory to Mr. Hughes, and speakers who sought votes for the Republican candidate in the name of patriotism rather than politics, were the features of the opening.

James R. Garfield of Cleveland, Secretary of the Interior under President Roosevelt, was the chief speaker. He said that on the President's head rested all that had happened in Mexico in the last three years, and he censured Mr. Wilson's course in the recent railroad crisis.

Philip J. McCook, State President of the Hughes Alliance, said it was a patriotic, and not a political, "much less a Republican," organization.

Miss Alice Carpenter said she approved of a national eight-hour day, but that President Wilson had yielded to the railroad men under a threat.

WOOL BUYERS CAREFUL.

Going as Slow as Possible, Especially on Lightweight Goods.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"More wool was sold last week than for several previous weeks, the sales totaling 5,000,000 pounds. One house alone disposed of 1,000,000 pounds. Manufacturers are making large purchases, compared with previous ones. Indications point to the fact that manufacturers are well covered on supplies.

"Conditions in the wool goods market necessitate a great deal of conservatism. Buyers are going as slowly as possible, especially on lightweight worsted suitings or those which will be used for the Spring season. It is reported that cancellations have increased somewhat upon heavyweight woolen suitings and overcoatings. The market generally is rather in a strong position.

"The cotton goods market is more upset through the developments of the last week or two than it has been any time for months, and it is believed that the uncertainty will continue until buyers are more inclined to purchase at reasonable quotations and in advance for their requirements. The outlook is for a continued good demand."

Prices at London Wool Sale.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A better selection, amounting to 8,400 bales, was offered at the wool sales today. The finest merinos were occasionally dearer, but faulty grades were neglected and withdrawn. Crossbreds were firm and Geelong greasy sold at 2s 4½d.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Carter, Macy & Co., Inc., which was recently incorporated under the Delaware laws with a capital stock of $2,000,000, includes the business of Smith, Baker & Co., and Otis A. Poole & Co., both of which were recently merged with Carter, Macy & Co., a copartnership. The foreign branches of the last-named firm, which have heretofore been conducted under the name of George H. Macy & Co., are also owned by the new corporation.

The Cloos Company, Reading, Penn., will on Sept. 15 open a women's ready-to-wear department in the store of the Linbach Company, Lancaster, Penn.

The accounts of the J. W. Knapp Company, Lansing, Mich., and the Manufacturers' Outlet Company, Providence, R. I., have been added to the list of Alfred Fantl, resident buyer, 116 West Thirty-second Street.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday..3½@4 per cent. for the best names
Tuesday....3½@4 " " " " "

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Mercury Goes Up Again.

Weekly Drug Markets will say today that among the commodities which scored marked gains in the last week were mercury in flasks and pyrogallic and benzoic acids. Russian cantharides, false unicorn root, ipecac, and doggrass roots showed fair advances as a result of a scarcity of stocks. Similar conditions forced values higher on oils of peppermint and synthetic wintergreen, with still higher prices predicted for the latter. The rise in silver brought increased prices on nitrate of silver. Uva ursi leaves and Levant wormseed also advanced. The notable declines for the week included acetone, salicylic acid and salicylates, lycopodium, opium, and mirbane oil.

Brazilian Rubber Firmer.

The Brazilian crude rubbers, especially the better grades, continue to be held proportionately higher than the plantation varieties, in spite of the fact that trading in the local market remains small. The manufacturing interests are still holding off, so far as any large buying is concerned, and practically all of the trading is being done between dealers. While the reasons advanced for the strength of the Brazilian grades are more or less conjecture, there is a pretty definite belief in certain quarters that it is due to covering by shorts. Up-river fine was quoted yesterday at 73 cents a pound, spot, while up-river coarse and upper Caucho ball were held, respectively, at 43½ and 44½ cents. For spot shipments of pale crepe 57 cents was asked, while the quotation on similar deliveries of smoked sheets was 56½ cents.

Coal Trade Situation.

The fluctuations of the soft coal market at the time last week when it looked as if a railroad strike was inevitable was one of the features of the industry, according to The Coal Trade Journal, which will say today that, during the two days the excitement lasted, considerable tonnage at the piers or afloat changed hands on the basis of $3.50 to $3.75, f. o. b., with one or two sales reported at $4. In wholesale hard coal circles the problem today is entirely one of production and distribution, and not of finding an outlet for tonnage. Until a few weeks ago this was true of only the three larger sizes—broken, egg and stove. The rest of the list was full of soft spots, but, gradually, this state of affairs has changed.

Are Searching in Vain.

The demands of the retail trade on the jobbers for Fall underwear have reached such proportions that representatives of the latter are virtually scouring the primary market in the hope of replenishing their broken lines. So far as could be learned yesterday, however, their search is a vain one, for most of the mills are about as bare of heavy goods as Mother Hubbard's cupboard. This is true of all kinds of Fall stuff, men's and women's, ribbed and fleeced. Prices on the few lines that are still on the market are at levels which would be prohibitive of business at any other time, but even at these figures buyers are said to be taking imperfect goods when firsts are not to be had. The great demand and restricted production, due principally to a shortage of operatives, are the causes to which the famine is ascribed. Several lines of ribbed and "bal" goods for Spring have also been withdrawn, some because the mills have been sold up and some until cotton comes to a stand, either high or low.

Something Always Goes Wrong.

With the world as an apparently insatiable market American manufacturers of hosiery are bumping into obstacles not of their own making. Both the domestic and export trade is taking all the merchandise of all varieties that it can get. Prices are commensurate with the demand and supply, and with this rosy situation production and profits are being kept down by a paucity of workers and a constantly growing scarcity of knitting needles. Both the current season's and Spring goods are sought, though some lines of the latter have not yet been opened and probably will not be until cotton becomes more settled. As for complaints by foreign buyers of poor quality, not all sellers take them seriously, and those who do say it is probably an unavoidable result of rushing goods out to meet the specified delivery dates. The domestic trade, it was said yesterday, is getting the same kind of goods and is saying little about whether they are good or bad. Merchandise is said to be too scarce these days for quibbling.

Gray Goods Trading Small.

There was not a great deal of breadth to trading in the local gray goods market yesterday. The added break in cotton kept many buyers out of the market in anticipation of a further drop and a consequent easing off in cloth prices, while sellers, who refused to see it that way, kept prices firm at the new high levels. This also hindered trading. Some contract sales of 39-inch 68-72s, not very large, were reported for the first quarter of next year at 7½ cents, with the mills asking an eighth more for spots. The same was true of 38½-inch 64-60s, which brought 6⅝ cents for a limited amount of spots and 6½ cents for goods to be delivered in the next four or five months. More spot sales of 39-inch 56-44s were told of at 5¼ cents. Sheetings, it was said, did not do much. These were average print-cloth prices at the close:

39-inch, 80-80s...*8¾c	38½-inch, 64-60..6⅝c
39-inch, 72-76s....8c	38½-inch, 64-56s..*6¼c
39-inch, 68-72s...*7⅝c	38½-inch, 60-52s..5⅝c
39-inch, 56-44s...5¼c	38½-inch, 60-48s..5⅜c
38½-inch, 64-64s...6⅝c	27-inch, 64-60s...*4½c

*Asked.

Between Seasons in Cloth Trade.

The dullness characterizing the between-season transactions in the woolen and worsted cloth trade was not broken yesterday. Factors agreed that orders for fancy woolens, fancy worsteds, and women's dress fabrics for Spring had been of the best, while reorders were coming in from some sections. Mails received yesterday in the Fourth Avenue district contained for the most part letters from customers revising orders given some time ago. These were not in the nature of cancellations, but had to do largely with shifts in the classes of goods ordered in the first instance. Some of the out-of-town buyers reached the conclusion that they would require less of one class of merchandise and larger quantities of other goods. The revision orders were described as merely a readjustment to meet changed conditions in some parts of the country.

In Laces and Embroideries.

While salesmen handling embroideries have not been out long enough on their Spring trips to turn in information of positive value, indications are said to point to a much better sale of these goods to the retail trade than in recent seasons. The manufacturing trades have been the best customers of the embroidery houses for some time, from all accounts, particularly so since fashion has announced herself to be again in favor of these garnitures for women's undergarments. Makers of women's waists have also been buying embroideries in a fair way, but it appears that they could do better. Domestic goods, because of their certainty of delivery, among other things, are said to be making a better showing than ever. Lightweight novelties are good in laces, including alencons, chantillys, Georgettes, and silk and cotton nets. Metal laces in silver and gold are also in favor. Lamé effects are selling well, too.

More Drawbacks Asked.

Increased export trade is influencing domestic manufacturers to ask the Treasury Department for drawback allowances on white lead in water and white lead in oil. Drawbacks on dry white lead shipped out of the United States have been given for a comparatively long time, but the present gains in foreign markets for lead products in water or oil made it desirable to apply for rebates. The applications just granted specify that, in addition to the usual allowance made for domestic goods made of imported pig lead, a similar allowance shall be made for imported linseed oil or linseed oil produced from imported flaxseed.

BUSINESS RECORDS

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

In Town.

BLANCHE YOVIN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Blanche Yovin, dealer in women's apparel and dressmaking at 734 Fifth Avenue, by Helen H. Rosenberg, $418; W. W. Crawford, $400, and Evelyn Blume, $35. Liabilities are stated to be $28,000 and assets $5,000. Judge Hough appointed S. S. Hamburger receiver, bond $500. Most of the assets are at Bar Harbor, Me., where she had a store during the Summer season. It is said she paid $1,000 a month rent for the store on Fifth Avenue. She did business as Madam Yovin.

LOUIS REICHMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Louis Reichman, jeweler, 1,902 Seventh Avenue, by Louis L. Windt, $330; Chaifetz & Zolatar $200, and Hyman & Zaslav, $50. Judge Hough appointed Charles L. Brookheim receiver, bond $2,000. Liabilities are $14,000 and assets $6,000.

RICHARD A. CLOKE, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Richard A. Cloke, Inc., merchant tailor, 56 Liberty Street, by W. P. Willis & Co., $248; J. F. Douglas & Co., $1,235, and W. H. Lent & Co., $720.

ISAAC J. LEVY, Mount Vernon, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $31,038 and assets forty-nine shares of stock in the Frank Woolen Company, Inc., of Buffalo, of no value. Among the creditors are the Bank of Buffalo, $14,000, secured; May Blumenthal, Buffalo, $3,000, and Sadie Levy, $14,000.

SADIE LEVY, Mount Vernon, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $17,047 and assets $15,000. All except $47 of her liabilities are the same as Isaac J. Levy.

MINA EASLAND, also known as Myron Easland, Catskill, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $868 and assets $35 in accounts.

SWISS CHALET, INC.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Feb. 10 against the Swiss Chalet Specialists, Inc., 200 Fifth Avenue.

MICHAEL GELLES.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Aug. 2 against Michael Gelles, dealer in painters' supplies, 57 Eldridge Street, and clothing at 134 Park Row, on a settlement with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar.

PHILIP ORDOVER.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of Philip Ordover, trading as Laurel Waist Co., 125 Prince Street, with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar cash.

SHIRLEY J. GRAYSON.—Judge Hough has appointed Z. Schwartz receiver for Shirley J. Grayson, dealer in automobile tires at 2,152 Broadway; bond $2,500. Liabilities are reported to be $9,000 and assets $2,500.

SIGMUND SCHUMAN, grocer, 13 Spring Street, has filed schedules showing liabilities $1,645 and assets $574.

A. D. LAKE & CO.—S. Glatstone & Son are creditors to A. D. Lake & Co. for $197, and not for $797 as erroneously announced yesterday.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Hough in the United States District Court yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts:

HAYMAN WALLACH, 903 Prospect Av., formerly real estate; liabilities, $99,082.
WILLIAM L. MALLEY, theatrical manager and producer, 1,400 Broadway; liabilities, $17,335.
Z. PADDLEFORD & SON, general store, Monroe; liabilities, $39,786.
WILLIAM J. GRIFFIN, Canaan, N. Y., formerly hotel.
EMIL A. PALMER, tailor, 703 East 137th Street.
SAMUEL WEISINGER, furs, 150 West 27th Street.
HARRY SAMUELS, salesman, 220 Wadsworth Avenue.
EDWARD W. FOX, 112 Sherman Avenue.
G. WATSON SIMMONDS, 44 West 44th Street.

Residue Goes in Equal Shares to Daughter and Sons.

The estate of Mrs. Frances Pearsall Field was appraised yesterday at $794,986 for her individual estate and $33,225 for a trust fund over which she held the power of appointment. The total net estate was $799,221. She gave $10,000 to her grandson, Edward P. Field; and $50,000 in trust to her son, Maunsell B. Field. The remainder of the estate went in equal shares to her daughter, Mrs. Henry Wilmerding Payne, and her sons, Augustus Bradhurst Field and Thomas Pearsall Field.

The assets included 14 West Thirty-sixth Street, worth $91,000; 13 West Thirty-fifth Street, valued at $90,000; 150 West Thirty-first Street, worth $50,000, and 11 West Thirty-sixth Street, valued at $90,000. A pew in St. Bartholomew's Church was appraised at $3,080. She owned mortgages aggregating $323,415 and securities valued at $140,989.

Mrs. Field was related to the Gerrys, Goelets, Schieffelins, Wilmerdings, and Jays, and was the granddaughter of John M. Bradhurst, who owned a farm extending from 140th to 150th Street, and from river to river. Her grandfather, Thomas Pearsall, owned the Hellgate farm extending from Fifty-seventh Street north along East River.

Ingraham Estate Is $84,586.

The estate of Arthur Ingraham, a brother of ex-Presiding Justice George L. Ingraham of the Appellate Division, who died Dec. 1, 1914, was appraised yesterday at $84,586, but the estate was insufficient to pay all bequests in full. Annuities of $1,000 left to relatives were reduced to $863 and other bequests were cut in proportion. Ex-Justice Ingraham got the residuary estate of $22,834 in trust.

TRADE ENVOY ENTERTAINED.

American Commissioners Visit Bordeaux Vineyards—Will Visit Paris.

BORDEAUX, France, Sept. 6.—The American Commercial Commission, which is making a scientific study of industrial conditions in France for American exporters, today visited vineyards about Bordeaux and then attended a luncheon given by the Franco-American Committee.

The luncheon, which took the form of a celebration in memory of Lafayette, whose anniversary occurred today, closed with a toast by the President of the Franco-American Committee and a reply by William W. Nicholls, Chairman of the American Commission.

Sash Ribbons Are Gorgeous.

Sash ribbons for the season are the most magnificent and gorgeous that have ever been seen. Only strong adjectives will express them. In delicate shades are wide ribbons of gauze, beautiful combinations of color as they are seen together, and each covered with delicate designs in silver. In the deeper tones, some of the orchid shades, the design will be in gold. There seems to be an eruption of color in the ribbons of the solid silk, every color and shade imaginable being combined in one piece and the brilliancy of the effect heightened with gold and silver threads. Gold and silver threads are seen in all varieties of ribbons, woven in with plain colors. The metal effects are shown with more subdued colors, but the tendency is toward gorgeousness.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Very Active and Strong—Steel Crosses Par—Reaction After Large Advance.

The professional trader had much to do with the spectacular movement on the Stock Exchange yesterday, but the professional trader would not have been successful in advancing prices as he did had it not been for the solid foundation upon which his efforts were made.

The forward movement in the stock market which has been under way for some time, though recently interrupted by the railroad crisis, has been due in the main to public recognition of the prolongation of the exceptional prosperity which the country has been enjoying. The drawbacks, even though some of them are serious, are looked upon as no sufficient offset to the fact that trade is very active and profits very large and the outlook promising. Upon those facts many people are buying stocks and many more refraining from selling the stocks which they own; and the effect of these two elements upon prices has been heightened by the large scale operations of several market operators.

Yesterday's record would have been notable for the rise in United States Steel to above par if for nothing else, but it was, in fact, an exceptional day in other respects as well, including the aggregate volume of transactions, the number of issues dealt in and the advances which were recorded in many issues. These, however, did not in all cases hold. In many stocks the close, though still showing net gains, was well below the best prices of the day. That was because a great deal of profit-taking was encountered, and in some stocks, thanks to the great rapidity of their advance, this profit-taking selling was carried on very freely. Quite possibly enough stock was thus brought into the market during the course of yesterday's trading to require a period for the digestion of this enlarged supply. In any event, many days of advances such as occurred in the leading stocks yesterday would almost surely greatly weaken the position of the market, and it would therefore be more satisfactory to see a period of quieter movements, rather than an indefinite prolongation of excited price movements such as occurred in parts of the list yesterday.

Some of the liquidation which turned prices downward after their very sharp advance was prompted merely by the fact that prices had risen very fast; some of it was related directly to the news. This was so, for example, in Mercantile Marine, of which a good deal was sold as a precaution against the possibility that the earnings of the company would be adversely affected should this country, in keeping with the power proposed to be lodged with the President, undertake retaliation against foreign countries, notably against Great Britain, for interference with American trade. Similar adverse effect was exerted upon the railroad stocks by the conditions left by the recent resort to the passage of an eight-hour law as a means to avert the threatened strike. Wall Street, knowing how much dissatisfaction there is in some important financial circles with the manner in which that strike was avoided, is inclined to see in the local traction situation a reflection of a determination on the part of these interests to reject any efforts at compromise.

But the market, taking it as a whole, was not in a mood yesterday to worry over current legislation or threatened labor trouble. It was a prosperity market based on the country's prosperity, which is not without flaws, but which is greater at least in volume than any the United States has known in the past.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

American Securities Are Steady and Featureless.

London, Sept. 6.—The stock market was firm today, with a steady demand for consols. Allied bonds hardened except the French loan, which was easy on expectations of a new issue next week. South American securities were in good request and various South African shares were strong on Cape Town buying. Armament shares were supported owing to rumors of an amalgamation. American securities were quietly steady and featureless.

The revenue returns for last week show sales of Treasury bills amounting to £53,000,000, but the sum of £20,000,000 was redeemed. The excess profit tax yielded over £3,000,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Marks Sag Further.

Reichsmarks sold at a new low level yesterday, when the quotation for cables dropped to 68¾, against the normal of 95.28 cents, for four. The recent weakness is regarded in pro-Ally quarters as the proper reflection of the growing efficiency of the British blockade of German ports.

Selling on War News.

The heavy selling of stocks in the last fifteen minutes immediately followed the report that the British steamer Kilvinia had been torpedoed with twenty-eight Americans aboard. No one on the floor knew that all the Americans had been saved. That news came later. But with the vision of such market setbacks as were caused by the loss of Americans on the Lusitania and other ships and with a bullish speculation that had carried many shares to record heights, professionals sold quickly and heavily on their meagre Kilvinia news, and experienced operators in the offices took profits as rapidly as possible. Brokers coming from the floor said the market looked soft at the close, but, even with the imperfect advices at hand, the market absorbed the late offerings without permitting any wide breaks between sales.

Is It a Bull Market?

The ticker received much more attention yesterday than for a long time. The earnest students who anxiously listened to every beat seemed chiefly concerned as to whether or not the real bull market had arrived. Many decided that it had, and they bought stocks. Others agreed that it had come, but they sold stocks on the theory that, like other bull markets, this one would step back for a fresh start. There were present yesterday many of the unfailing signs of a bull market. For one thing, the Street read the announcement of an impending traction strike that might tie the city up without being the least disturbed. A number of new issues made new high records, among them Steel common, always considered the only real leader in a bull movement; Marine, preferred and common; Inspiration, Kelly-Springfield, and Nevada Consolidated. If the railroads could only have forgotten their recent bereavement the traders' joy would have been complete.

Gold for Speculation.

Asked for the cause of this week's market strength in the face of a wide dissatisfaction over the outcome of the railroad labor controversy, an experienced broker inquired what would have happened to the market at any time before the war if news of an importation of $25,000,000 gold had come out. The answer was that the market would probably have gone up 5 points instantly. Whereupon the broker commented that this $25,000,000 gold now justified a loan expansion of at least $125,000,000, and that this and every recurring importation of gold supplied the best and most frequently forgotten argument for bullish speculation. Against this argument, in his opinion, the paucity of the crops could not be used seriously, for this very circumstance implied that less money would be needed to move them and more left for speculative purposes. The railroads might suffer from lack of tonnage, but speculation in industrials should be encouraged by every prospect of continuing abundance of easy money.

Foreign Copper Orders.

It was reported that the Russian Government was in the market for 10,000,000 pounds of copper and that some of the domestic producers hoped to conclude the contract this week on a twenty-eight-cent basis. The order was said to be in the hands of British agents, but nothing official was learned about it. In the trade the report of this contract attracted little attention in view of other reports that the 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 pound order, which has long been talked about, was still under negotiation between the representatives of the Allies and big producers. As to whether or not an order of that magnitude would be placed there was great difference of opinion, but the general conclusion was that foreign inquiries had become so insistent that some big business in copper for export would be done before many days.

Almost a Scarcity of Tires.

The formation of new automobile companies and the increases in capacity of the old ones have gone on apace, with the result that the coming year's output of cars will be far ahead of even the record production in 1916, but few new tire companies have entered the field. For that reason, it is said, the problem of getting contracts covering the needs of car manufacturers has led to placing an unusual amount of future business. Every new car needs four tires, which the automobile manufacturer must supply, and a sudden advance in rubber might make a serious difference in his calculations. A Director of the Lee Rubber and Tire Company was quoted yesterday as saying that the makers of two popular-priced cars had contracted to take more than 100,000 tires from his company in 1917. The tire issues have been strong for several days, Kelly-Springfield leading the list yesterday with sales of 32,000 shares on an advancing scale.

$150,000,000 IN STOCK PROVES TOTAL LOSS

ASSETS YIELD BUT $23,224

Receiver Makes Final Report on Corporation Once Worth More Than $75,000,000.

The last hope which holders of the $150,000,000 stock of the Rock Island Company entertained of recovering any money through the receiver of the company was dashed Tuesday, when Vice Chancellor Howell in Newark approved the final accounting of Chauncey Parker as receiver and ordered the distribution of the remaining moneys in his possession among creditors.

The receiver reported that the entire receipts from the company, which at one time had a market value of more than $75,000,000 on the Stock Exchange, were $23,224.84; that his disbursements had been $13,154.25, and that the balance on hand was $10,070.59. The court allowed Mr. Parker $3,500 for his services, awarded about $1,750 to lawyers, approved a preferential claim of $625 to John J. Quinlan, and directed distribution of the balance among creditors with approved claims for $15,000.

The Rock Island Company was organized in 1902 with $96,000,000 common and $54,000,000 preferred, to hold all the stock of the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific Railroad Company, which in turn held approximately $71,000,000 of the $75,000,000 stock of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, which was the operating company. The relations between the holding companies and the operating company have long since been dissolved, and Rock Island common and preferred have for some time been stricken from the Stock Exchange after selling for fewer cents than they did for dollars a share in the days of the railroad's exploitation. The operating company itself is in the hands of receivers, with little chance of rehabilitation except on the payment by stockholders of an assessment of $40 a share.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Application has been made to list the securities of the Ohio Cities Gas Company on the Stock Exchange. The common stock has been traded in on the curb at between 67 and 67½.

The Stock Exchange has ruled that until Sept. 30, 1916, stock of the Chandler Motor Car Company may be settled by delivery of either the temporary certificates or the engraved definitive certificates.

Hercules Powder Company yesterday declared the regular dividend of 2 per cent. and an extra dividend of 13 per cent. on the common stock, payable Sept. 25 to stock of record Sept. 15. Dividends are the same as at previous declaration.

Permanent bonds of the City of New York, due 1966, are ready for delivery in exchange for the temporary certificates at Room 851, Municipal Building.

The Guaranty Trust Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 4 per cent. and an extra dividend of 1 per cent. for the quarter to end Sept. 30, payable Sept. 20 to stock of record on that day.

Directors of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company have declared interest on the adjustment income mortgage bonds for the six months ended June 30 last at the usual rate of 2 per cent. per annum. The interest is payable Oct. 15.

The Irving National Bank is distributing a pamphlet containing the Federal Bill of Lading act, with analysis and index.

DECLINE IN STEEL OUTPUT.

Trade Hampered by Hot Weather and Talk of Railroad Strike.

The iron and steel trade papers report that the industry is hampered because the hot weather in August caused a decline in pig iron production. Demand for steel for both domestic and foreign delivery continues heavy, they say, and The Iron Age expresses the opinion that hopes of lower prices have been set aside indefinitely. The Iron Age adds:

For the Allies the taking up of large lots of shell steel discards further accents the scarcity of the forms of steel for which they have been scouring the market lately. Two Central Western steel companies have disposed of about 100,000 tons of such material, and the supply is now about cleaned up. The July exports of iron and steel reported were 496,000 tons, against 527,000 tons in June and 540,000 tons at the highest rate, which was in May. It is not to be concluded from these figures that the war high point has been reached in the war boom, but the export movement will be closely watched for signs of the turn. Steel works order books do not show it.

The placing with a Western maker of 4,000 small gondola-type cars is the only tangible outcome thus far of the long negotiations for rolling stock for Russia. Many more cars are needed, but the deal has taken a devious road. Further sales of ship steel have been made to Japan, including 10,000 tons of plates. Canada is buying steadily in the market, the week's orders including 7,000 tons of structural steel placed at Chicago. The railroads find a surprisingly small amount of steel in some of their lines available for the first half of next year.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Business in the iron and steel market last week was impeded considerably by the prospect of the railroad strike, but the prevention of such a calamity, despite the temporary character of the settlement, has eased the tension, and market developments again are proceeding at a more active pace. Demand for finished and semi-finished steel continues of large proportions, and the sold-up condition of the mills is extending further into the future. Numerous large inquiries for billets, slabs, ingots, shell rounds, &c., continue to come out, but the resulting business is of small proportions, due to the fact that the mills cannot supply the material.

The export demand for pig iron continues heavy. One large inquiry now under active negotiation involves 10,000 to 15,000 tons of bessemer iron for shipment to Italy. The output of the plants throughout the country registered a decline, due to hot weather. The pig iron production in August, for instance, showed a loss of 20,235 tons as compared with July.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The buoyancy of Steel imparted a favorable stimulus to the whole market. While realizing was conducted on a large scale, the offerings during the greater part of the day seemed to be readily absorbed. Commission houses reported indications of a largely expanded interest in the market on the part of the public.

Progress with Canadian Loan.

In banking houses yesterday it was reported that considerable progress had been made this week with negotiations to float the new Dominion of Canada internal war loan, which the Canadian financial authorities have been considering for some time. The expectation is that the loan will take the shape of $50,000,000 fifteen-year 5 per cent. bonds and that the bonds will be sold at 98. It is probable that the terms of the sale will be announced tomorrow or on Monday.

HIDE & LEATHER BOARD WINS

Minority Recognized by the Election of Lindsey Hopkins.

The management of the American Hide and Leather Company prevailed against the opposition of a protective committee of stockholders and other dissatisfied stockholders at the annual meeting of the company in Jersey City yesterday. Of the 250,000 shares outstanding about 137,000 shares were represented, and only 14,000 shares were voted against the retiring Directors.

President Theodore S. Haight and his associates recognized the minority, however, by the election of Lindsey Hopkins of Atlanta, himself a large stockholder and a representative of interests associated with E. F. Hutton & Co., and by agreeing to add to the board George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., President of the Metropolitan Trust Company; Lewis L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange National Bank, and LeRoy Baldwin, President of the Empire Trust Company. The addition of these Directors, which according to the agreement, will be made at the board meeting next month, will increase the Directorate from fourteen to seventeen.

Under the leadership of Frederick Drew Bond, who organized the protective committee, objecting stockholders grilled the management rather sharply. One of them wanted to know how much the officers were paid. Mr. Haight replied that he drew $35,000 as President; Charles P. Hall, the First Vice President, $30,000; Aaron Hecht and F. L. Roenitz, Second Vice Presidents, $25,000 each, and George A. Hill, Secretary, $10,000.

"We place a value on our services," Mr. Haight said. "If we are not wanted we will step out, provided the stockholders so decide."

To a stockholder who wanted a funding of the back dividends on the preferred stock and the dividend on the preferred increased from a lump 5 per cent. to 1¾ per cent. per quarter, Mr. Haight replied that the management did not feel justified in changing the dividend last stockholders get the impression that the dividend was permanent. Business was good, he said, but the officers could make no prediction for the future. He insisted that no plan of recapitalizing the company so as to pay the back dividends on the preferred was under consideration.

Edmonton, Dunvegan & British Columbia Railway Company 4½% First Mortgage Gold Bonds

Unconditionally Guaranteed Both as to Principal and Interest by the Province of Alberta, Canada

Dated August 22, 1916. Due October 22, 1944.
Denomination, $1,000.

Principal and Semi-Annual Interest payable in Gold in New York or any branch of the Union Bank in Canada and England, without deduction or abatement.

Obligation—In the opinion of Counsel the liability of the Province of Alberta is unconditional, and if the Railway Company should make default in any payment of either principal or interest, the Province would be obliged to pay immediately upon demand without any antecedent proceedings against the Railway Company.

In practice the payment of the bonds is under supervision of the Government Department of Railways, and if the Company is not able to meet any payment the Government is fully aware of the fact in advance and funds are provided.

By law the Lieutenant Governor in Council is authorized to make arrangements for supplying the money necessary to fulfill the requirements of this guarantee according to the tenor of the bonds and the dates of the payments are an essential part of the terms of the security.

The above is confirmed by official advices from the Treasury Department of the Province of Alberta.

Resources—The Province of Alberta has never levied a general tax, as its revenues have always been ample to take care of expenditures. There is, however, the power to levy, through legislative enactment, against all taxable property within the Province such taxes as may be necessary to meet expenditures or to provide payment of principal and interest or sinking fund on all debentures or other outstanding obligations.

The Province has a substantial cash balance on hand to meet current expenditures. A sinking fund of at least one-half of one per cent has been provided on all debentures. There are no floating debts or treasury bills outstanding and no portion of the funded debt matures prior to 1922.

Tokio Entertains Judge Gary.

TOKIO, Sept. 8.—The municipality of Tokio tonight gave a reception and dinner in honor of Elbert H. Gary of New York and Mrs. Gary. Gijin Okuda, Mayor of Tokio, presided at the dinner, which was attended by 500 persons, including members of the Cabinet. Mayor Okuda proposed a toast to President Wilson, and GeGorge W. GuGthrie, the American Ambassador, proposed the health of the Emperor. After the dinner there were fireworks, one piece being the entwined flags of Japan and the United States.

Southwestern Utilities 6%
Twenty-Year Gold Bonds

These bonds are a first lien through ownership of all the securities of the Gas Pipe Line Corp. and the Sachen Oil Co. A liberal sinking fund amply safeguards the issue, increasing the equity behind the bonds each year.

The company owns five distinct gas fields on which there are now drilled 79 wells, and others are being constantly drilled from time to time. The oil production consists of nine wells. Net earnings for the ensuing year are estimated at over $210,000.

The bonds now offered are for the purpose of extending the holdings, including the purchase of another Gas Corporation.

BRAZILIAN TRACTION, LIGHT & POWER CO., Limited

(Incorporated under the Laws of Canada.)

THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS TO THE SHAREHOLDERS FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31st DECEMBER, 1915.

To the Shareholders:

The Board of Directors beg to submit their Third Annual Report, together with the Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss Account of the Company for the year ended 31st December, 1915, and a report by the President, Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, on the enterprises in Brazil. The annual accounts of the Subsidiary Companies for the same period are also attached.

While the combined earnings of the Companies in Brazilian currency have fully realized the expectation of the Board, being considerably greater than those of the previous years, the result is not so satisfactory when such earnings are converted into Canadian currency.

For some years prior to the outbreak of the European war, the value of the milreis for sight bills on London was approximately 16 pence. During the latter part of 1914, however, the average value fell to approximately 13 pence, and in 1915 it showed a further depreciation, to an average of approximately 12¼ pence. Converting the earnings during 1915 at the average rates prevailing prior to the war, the net revenue, in Canadian currency, as shown by the attached accounts, would be increased by over $3,000,000.

The revenue of the Company in Canadian currency resulting from the year's operation was as follows:

Revenue from Securities owned and under contracts with Subsidiary Companies		$5,339,192.76
Interest on Advances to Subsidiary Companies		273,683.41
		$5,612,876.17
General and Legal expenses, administration charges and interest on loans		218,074.43
Surplus available for Dividends		$5,394,801.74
Dividends Nos. 8, 9, 10 and 11, at 1½% each on Preference Shares	$ 600,000.00
Dividends Nos. 10 and 11 at 1½% each, and Nos. 12 and 13 at ½ of 1% each on Ordinary Shares	4,249,380.00
		4,849,380.00
Surplus carried forward to profit and loss		$ 545,421.74

During the first half of 1915, dividends on the ordinary shares at the rate of 1½% each were paid on 1st March and 1st June, respectively. As, however, contrary to expectations entertained earlier in the year, the exchange value of the milreis continued to fall, the Board decided to limit the dividends payable on 1st September and 1st December to ½ of 1% each, making a total dividend of 4% for the year.

Although rigid economies have been effected, the cost of operation and maintenance has been adversely influenced by the rise in the price of materials, and by the enormous advance in ocean freights. This advance has particularly affected the earnings of the gas business, as owing to the requisition by the British Government of some of the steamers employed in the Company's service for carrying coal, it became necessary to charter other steamers at rates greatly exceeding those which would have been payable under normal conditions. It is, therefore, remarkable that, notwithstanding the adverse circumstances with which the Company has had to contend, the results for the year have been so satisfactory, and it is evident that with a return to normal conditions the revenue of the Company should be not only equal to that obtained prior to the war, but should show a considerable and steady increase. Conditions generally in Brazil are showing distinct signs of improvement.

The Board are pleased to report that all the coffee purchased for exchange purposes during the year 1914 and at the beginning of the year 1915 has been disposed of, and at prices which realized a sum in excess of that which it is estimated would have been received had the usual method of making remittances been followed.

During the year further shares have been acquired in the capital of the Companhia Telephonica do Estado de Sao Paulo and in that of the Companhia Rede Telephonica Bragantina, and, with those subsequently purchased, this Company now holds 95% of the share capital of each Company. This Company has also made advances for the purpose of carrying out necessary improvements and extensions to the telephone systems, which, when completed, should result in material increases in the revenue.

The Board are glad to state that the relations of all the Subsidiary Companies with the Federal, State, and Municipal authorities continue to be of the most cordial character.

The President of the Company, Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, has spent the last sixteen months in Brazil in connection with the affairs of the Companies. He has recently returned, and his report on the operations of these enterprises, which has been adopted by the Board, is appended.

A valuable addition to the Board has been made by the election of Mr. R. C. Brown as a Director. Mr. Brown was Manager of The Sao Paulo Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited, during the first two years after its organization, and has had a wide experience in similar undertakings, and he has recently visited Brazil and made a thorough examination of the Company's properties.

The Board regret to have to announce the loss of one of their esteemed members by the death of Sir William Van Horne, in September, 1915. Sir William Van Horne was a director of the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited, from its inception, and was elected to the Board of the Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company, Limited, at the time of its formation. The Board of the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited, have also suffered a further loss, owing to the death in September, 1916, of their valued colleague, Monsieur Jean Javal, of Paris, France. The Board desire to express their appreciation of the services rendered by these directors.

The Board take great pleasure in recording their appreciation of the efficient services rendered by Mr. F. A. Huntress, the Vice-President of The Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited; the Sao Paulo Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited, and the Sao Paulo Electric Company, Limited, and the other officials of the Companies in Brazil.

By order of the Board.
Toronto, Canada, August 3rd, 1916.
J. M. SMITH, Secretary.

(INCORPORATED IN CANADA.)

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Meeting of the Holders of the General Consolidated First Mortgage 50-Year 5 per cent. Gold Bonds of the above-named Company, secured by Trust Deed dated 1st May, 1906, in favour of National Trust Company, Limited, of Toronto, Canada, as Trustee, will be held at WINCHESTER HOUSE, OLD BROAD STREET, LONDON, ENGLAND, on WEDNESDAY, the 4th day of OCTOBER, 1916, at 12 O'CLOCK noon, for the purpose of considering and, if thought fit, passing pursuant to Clauses 18, 19 and 20 of the said Trust Deed Resolutions for all or any of the following purposes:—

(1) Approving the policy heretofore adopted and the policy recommended for the future as explained by circular letter dated 27th June, 1916, issued by the Trustee and by the Bondholders' Committee constituted by Agreement dated 18th February, 1916.

(2) Appointing a Committee to represent and act for the holders of all the said Bonds and with such constitution and powers as to the Meeting may seem advisable.

(3) Authorising and directing the Trustee to waive defaults committed or to be committed by the Company in payment of interest and sinking fund on the Bonds and otherwise on such conditions and for such periods as the Meeting may think fit.

(4) Determining what steps shall be taken for the protection of the Bondholders' interests and to obtain for the Bondholders control of the future conduct of the affairs of the Company.

(5) Authorising, subject to such conditions and limitations as may be approved by the Meeting, the creation and issue of Prior Lien Bonds ranking in priority to the said Bonds upon all or any of the assets of the Company.

(6) Authorising the Trustee to vote or to permit the Company to vote at Meetings of the Bondholders of the Mexican Light and Power Company, Limited, any Bonds of that Company held as part of the mortgaged property in favour of resolution similar to those herein referred to.

(7) Precluding any Bondholder from taking any proceedings against the Company on his Bonds or the Coupons, or for the enforcement of the security therefor without the approval of the said Committee.

(8) Determining upon what conditions the management and control of the Company's assets shall be permitted to remain vested in the Board of Directors and authorising the Trustee to permit the Company to hold and manage, and to exercise voting and other rights in respect of, the mortgaged properties and to receive the income thereof.

(9) Authorising the Trustee to concur with the Company in executing and doing such Supplemental Trust Deeds, documents and things as it may consider necessary to give effect to any resolutions passed at the Meeting, and for the protection of the Trustee in carrying the said resolutions, Trust Deeds and documents into effect, and authorising the Trustee to act upon or in accordance with any direction or resolution of the Committee.

(10) Generally any other resolutions which the Meeting may consider desirable for the protection of the Bondholders or for giving effect to the recommendation of the Trustee or the Bondholders' Committee at such Meeting.

(11) Agreeing to the modification of the rights of the Bondholders against the Company and its property to the extent necessary to give effect to any such resolutions, Supplemental Trust Deeds and documents.

This Notice is given pursuant to the provisions of the said Trust Deed to the intent that any resolution passed at the said Meeting may, if passed by the requisite majority, be binding upon all holders of the said Bonds, whether present or not present at the said Meeting.

COTTON IRREGULAR AFTER 30-POINT RISE

Hedge Selling Less in Evidence Than in the Early Part of the Week.

WEEKLY REPORT FAVORABLE

Selling in Part Based on Rumor That 612,000 Bales Had Been Ginned to Date.

After making a further break of about 30 points yesterday, cotton turned irregular, with more steadiness imparted by bull support. The hedge selling which was so pronounced the first of the week was less in evidence, although the inevitable accompaniment of speculative liquidation supplied a liberal volume of offerings. There was also some expectation of a fairly favorable weekly weather report, and this led to a certain amount of anticipatory selling. The expectations concerning the character of the report were justified, but it was felt that the break of 80 points, or $4 per bale, from the high level of last Friday had discounted its showing. The close, however, was only a little above the low level of the day and presented a net loss of 21 to 22 points.

The weekly weather report was more favorable in the details on the different States than in the wording of the summary. As a matter of fact, the phraseology of the summary in the recent weekly weather reports has been so intemperate as to justify the impression that the author of these documents has had practical experience as a professional crop killer. Improvement was suggested in Oklahoma, Georgia, the Carolinas, Louisiana, Arkansas and portions of Alabama and Mississippi. It was stated that the good showers in Texas were too late to benefit cotton. Inasmuch as beneficial effects have been observed from moisture coming far later in the season, this official observation was regarded as somewhat superfluous. The surprising statement was made that the crop was generally early. This is opposed to the trade belief that the crop is a late one.

There was little feature to the daily weather news—only a few light scattered showers fell in the Eastern and Central belt.

Part of the selling yesterday was based on a rumor that returns of the National Ginners' Association indicated a ginning of 612,000 bales prior to Sept. 1. These figures would compare with 463,000 last year and 480,000 bales two years ago. This is a further refutation of the claim that the crop is a late one.

The editor of The Cotton & Cotton Oil News, in the last issue of that journal, says: "Our candid advice to our farmer friends is to sell what cotton they have as long as it is 15 cents and better. Cotton may go to 25 cents per pound; we hope it will. It can go to 10 cents per pound."

Galveston advices state that a freight rate of $3 per hundred on cotton to Liverpool is expected before the season is out. This is about as high as freights went last year.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was only moderately active and after an opening advance of 1¾ to 2⅛c prices eased off to below the previous close, but subsequently rallied and closed firm with net gains of 1¼ to 1⅝c. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at 1.76; No. 2 hard, 1.68; No. 1 Nor. Duluth, 1.79½; No. 1 Nor. Manitoba, 1.78, all free on board, New York.

CORN.

The corn market was only moderately active, and prices during the day were irregular, owing to a disposition to buy September and sell the late months. The late rally in wheat had a stimulating influence, however, and final quotations ranged from ¼c net higher to ⅛c net lower. The visible supply in the United States decreased 463,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 523,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market showed a very steady undertone throughout the day and closed ⅛c to ⅜c net higher. There appeared to be some good buying, and an increase of 6,835,000 bushels in the visible supply for the week had little or no influence on values. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 55@55½c; No. 3 white, 55c; No. 4 white, 54@54½c; fancy clipped white, 57@59c; ordinary clipped white, 55@57c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was inactive, with narrow fluctuations, but on the whole the undertone was steady, due to moderate receipts of live hogs and firm prices at the yards. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 11,000; estimated for Thursday, 17,000. Kansas City received 7,000 and Omaha 2,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was again feverish, with irregular price changes. At the close of the day the near months were 5@13 points higher, while the late positions showed losses of 3@11 points. Total sales for the day were 34,500 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

A change to warmer weather in Brazil, where frost had been reported on Tuesday, caused an active liquidating movement in the coffee market, and prices declined sharply. At one time the active positions showed losses of 19 to 28 points from the previous close, and, while part of the loss was recovered on covering, final quotations were 14 to 19 points net lower. Total sales were 83,000 bags. The local spot market was quiet but very steady, with Rio 7s at 10c and Santos 4s at 11⅞c. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

Trading in sugar futures was fairly active throughout the day, and, after opening unchanged to an advance of 7 points, Wall Street and local trade covering sent prices rapidly upward, at one time active positions showing net gains of 12 to 17 points. The exchange market closed steady, 2 to 13 points net higher, with sales for the day 15,250 tons. Range of prices:

The local market for refined sugar was easier and prices were about 75 points lower, all refiners now listing on the basis of 6.25c for fine granulated. Raw sugar was firmly established at the cost and freight price of 4c. Holders of Cuban sugar asked fractionally higher prices at the close of the market, with a buying interest shown at last prices.

Abandon Free Trade Policy and Demand Laws to Prevent 'Dumping' of Cheap Goods.

STAND AGAINST PACIFISM

Real Reason of Rejection of American Proposal of a World's Labor Council After War.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Sept. 6.—The Trades Union Congress, representing nearly 2,500,000 organized workers of Great Britain, took an important and unexpected step today by adopting, with a majority of more than 1,000,000 votes, a resolution virtually indorsing the principle of protection. The resolution asks for "the adoption of methods for restricting or preventing the importation of cheap manufactured goods produced at lower rates of wages and under worse labor conditions than prevail in this country."

Although these words themselves do not accept the principle of a protective tariff wall, the protectionists among the labor delegates and in other circles are inclined to regard the workmen as having been won over to a complete change from free trade. One of the labor members of the House of Commons said the meaning of the resolution was merely that measures should be taken to investigate the origin of goods and conditions under which they are produced, with a view to preventing the unloading of cheap goods in this country after the war, which is much feared.

The congress considered other resolutions regarded as of importance for labor after the war, including one dealing with restoration of trades union rights, which have been suspended in order to increase the output of munitions. Undue delays in granting pensions to those incapacitated in the war by wounds or disease were denounced. The congress went on record in favor of a State Department for adjustment of pension claims.

Nationalization of agriculture, shipping industries, and mines met with unanimous approval of the delegates, who yesterday called for nationalization of railroads. A fixed minimum wage and shorter hours of labor also were advocated.

SUSPICIOUS OF PACIFISM.

Why British Congress Rejected Proposal for World Labor Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A special correspondent at the Trades Union Congress at Birmingham writes that the broad significance of yesterday's rejection by the Congress of the American Federation of Labor's proposal for a world labor and peace congress at the end of the war is that the Trades Union Congress distrusts the pacifist, whom it sees in all sorts of guises.

The American proposal, in the absence of any common aim, may not seem a very profitable suggestion, and its promoters in America, who expressly stated in their invitation that they did not offer any program or any theory as to what the labor and peace congress should do, evidently had foreseen some of the difficulties; but, in recommending acceptance of the invitation by the British trade unionists the Parliamentary Committee probably had counted on a general assent. The committee was fully representative of the congress and a great majority of its members would resent any suggestion of being pacifist, as that term has come to be understood; but Will Thorne, M. P., reflected the idea that the proposed international congress would include not only delegates from the countries of the Allies and from neutral countries, but enemies of the Allies as well, and that the British representatives would be expected to sit at the same table with Germans, Austrians, Turks, and Bulgars, perhaps to address them as comrades. Mr. Thorne declared that no self-respecting British labor man could ever do that, at least not until the enemies had atoned for their crimes. He was clearly speaking the mind of a great majority of the delegates.

It's not very easy to project one's mind to the actual signing of the peace treaty and the conditions which may then obtain, hence the failure of the attempt to commit the congress to the issue. The American invitation expressly stated that the proposed congress would be held at the same time as the official gathering of the plenipotentiaries, a time which, it is held, will be fixed by the victorious Allies, but Mr. Thorne and some of the other speakers persisted in regarding it as an attempt to patch up peace before it was due, notwithstanding the supporters of the recommendation pleaded that they were equally anxious to see the enemy driven out of France and Belgium.

Support for the invitation came principally from those who amid the clash of arms have made some attempt to preserve at least a nominal advance in the spirit of internationalism. But the congress was in no mood to talk internationalism. It seemed to assume that the German Social Democrats could have stopped the war had they wished, and the suggestion, mildly put forward by several speakers, that the German workingman was an innocent and unwilling instrument of Kaiserdom, always provoked derision. George Roberts, M. P., the Labor whip, refused to draw any distinction between the German people and their rulers and made a complete repudiation of Junkerdom, of which he had no hopes whatever.

The conditions of resuming relations with the German Social Democrats formed the subject of an interesting communication made by Mr. Hill, a member of the Parliamentary Committee, who supported the American recommendation. It appeared that the German and Austrian Socialists themselves were rather skeptical about the value of the internatioanl conference, according to the federation. In their answer to the invitation they pointed out that they were under a government absolutism, which they hoped to alter in time at the end of the war, but they doubted the possibility of attending the proposed conference, because even after the war the restrictions on their liberties probably would be continued for some time.

WILL NOT HAVE DR. AKED

Former Congregation Fails to Reinstate the Ford Delegate.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, who resigned the pastorate of the First Congregational Church to accept an appointment as delegate with the Ford peace party, failed last night of reinstatement by his former congregation.

Before the vote was taken it was explained that Dr. Aked had offered to return at a salary lower than that he was receiving when he resigned. He failed to obtain the two-thirds vote necessary for his reinstatement. His successor has not yet been chosen.

NORWICH, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The members of the New York mounted policemen, under command of Acting Captain Michael F. Walsh, who are on their way to the State Fair at Syracuse, arrived here today. They camped here tonight and plan to arrive in Syracuse Friday evening. The squad left New York Aug. 27 and has averaged twenty miles a day.

LOSES FIGHT TO SEE CHILD.

Court Refuses Plea by Son-in-law of Charles F. Daly.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 6.—Willard Barnet, formerly Assistant General Passenger Agent of the New York Central Railroad, lost his court fight today, temporarily at least, to gain possession of his infant son, who is now under control of the mother, Mrs. Charline Daly Barnet, daughter of Charles F. Daly, First Vice President of the railroad.

The hearing was held before Supreme Court Justice William P. Platt, in his chambers here. It was brought out that Mr. Barnet, although he has had detectives and investigators trying to get a trace of his wife and child, has been unable to find them. Judge McCall, who appeared for Mrs. Barnet and Mr. Daly, insisted that it would be detrimental to the child's health because of the epidemic of infantile paralysis for him to be brought into court or to see his father. Mr. Barnet's lawyer, H. L. Roth, of Manhattan, said that his client's son was hidden away in the Adirondacks, and that Mr. Barnet should be permitted to see the child under an order of Justice Bijur. Judge McCall contended that because of infantile paralysis the Barnet baby had been taken from the Hotel Gramatan at Bronxville to a place outside the infantile paralysis zone.

Judge Platt finally called in Dr. Henry T. Kelly of White Plains to determine whether the father or any relative should see the child. "I would regard it as a menace," Dr. Kelly said. Judge Platt then dismissed the writ.

BOOK CALLED BLASPHEMOUS

But Summons for Author of "The Brook Kereth" Is Refused.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—George Moore's "The Brook Kereth" was the subject of an application made to a Bow Street Magistrate today for a summons against the author and publisher on the ground that the book was a blasphemous libel on the Holy Scriptures and the Christian religion. Lord Alfred Douglas was the instigator of the application. His solicitor contended that what the author portrayed in the book was a perversion of the Gospel narrative, which was intended to hold up the Christian religion to ridicule and contempt by suggesting that Jesus Christ was an ignorant, deceitful, violent-tempered and vainglorious impostor. On page 269, it was contended, there was a most irreverent and uncleanly reference to the Saviour's method of life.

The Magistrate said he had read the book and in his opinion it did not come within decided cases in reference to blasphemy. He said nothing as to the merits of the book and nothing of the taste of the book, but remarked that it was based on the assumption, which the author had a perfect right to make, that Jesus was merely a man. It had been held over and over again, he said, that to assert in a book that Jesus was a man and not divine was not necessarily blasphemy. He, therefore, declined to grant a process.

NORFOLK & WESTERN GAINS.

Annual Report Shows Net Income Nearly Doubled.

The annual report of the Norfolk & Western Railroad for the year ended June 30 shows gross earnings of $57,304,568, an increase of $14,317,542, or 33.31 per cent. over the previous year; net earnings of $23,054,786, an increase of $9,779,323, or 73.66 per cent., and net income of $20,624,059, an increase of $10,214,154, or 98.12 per cent. The company paid $1,386,642 more in dividends on the common stock, appropriated $7,519,183 more for investment in physical property, and carried forward a credit balance of $16,990,752, which is $2,606,618 more than in the previous year.

President L. E. Johnson says that there is no assurance that revenues for the year to end June 30, 1917, will show equally large gains over those of the preceding year, but notes that the sustained volume of earnings in the Spring of 1916, and the favorable outlook were such that the Directors at their April meeting decided to increase the regular rate of dividend on the common stock from 6 to 7 per cent. and to declare 1 per cent. extra.

Mr. Johnson also notes that considerable progress has been made in physical valuation of the company's properties in accordance with a notice from the Interstate Commerce Commission that these properties would be valued as of June 30, 1916. The company's preparatory work on the valuation, he says, began in 1913, so that by June 30, 1916, the field work on 53 per cent. of the road had been completed and good progress made on the compilation of all data called for by the commission.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts, 8,460 packages. Comparatively little fresh stock is arriving, and the lighter offerings tend to make a somewhat steadier feeling on most grades of creamery. Ladles and packing stock favor the buyer. Creamery, higher than extras, per lb., 34@34½c; extras, 92 score, 33¼@33½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 31½@33c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 29½@31c; thirds, 28@29c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 35@35½c; extras, 34@34½c; firsts, 32@33½c; seconds, 30@31½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 32@32½c; good to prime, 29½@31½c; common to fair, 26@29c; renovated, extras, 29@29½c; firsts, 27½@28½c; lower grades, 26@27c; imitation creamery, firsts, 28@28½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 27@27½c; seconds, 26@26½c; lower grades, 24½@25½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 26c; No. 2, 25@25½c; lower grades, 23@24½c.

EGGS.—Receipts, 8,057 cases. The light receipts posted today do not include all of the express stock that came in during the past two or three days, but the offerings are light, and the market is showing a stronger tone again with a recovery in prices. Demand for average qualities is quiet, but there is more call for strictly fine goods and for underpriced eggs than can readily be supplied, and the market for these is strong at the improvement quoted. Storage eggs are held with increasing firmness under the favorable warehouse reports, and prices tend slightly in sellers' favor. Nearby whites in light supply, and strictly fancy qualities scarce and firm; medium and high grades irregular. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 35@36c; extra firsts, 34c; firsts, 32@33c; seconds, 29@31c; thirds and poorer, 26@28c; dirties, No. 1, 25½@26c; No. 2 and poorer, 20@25c; checks, good to choice, dry, 23½@24c; undergrades, 18@23c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 30c; firsts, 29@29½c; seconds, 27@28½c; lower grades, 23@26½c; refrigerator, State whites, 31@32c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 45@48c; ordinary to good, 36@43c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 32@45c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 33@36c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 38@42c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 30@36c.

MISS JULE BREIHA WEDS.

The Bride of Walter O. Jaeger, Whose Father Performs Ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Jule Breiha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Breiha of this city, and Walter Otto Jaeger, son of the Rev. Julius Jaeger, pastor of the German Reformed Church in East Sixty-eighth Street for fourteen years, was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock last night in the church, followed by a reception at Terrace Garden. The Rev. Jaeger performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white net trimmed with satin, and a veil of net and real lace, caught up by a coronet of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Emily Breiha was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of orchid-colored net with silver lace, and carried American Beauty roses.

The Misses Anna Haller and Josephine Breiha, another sister, were the bridesmaids.

James E. Lathrop was best man. The ushers included William Hubert, Julius Hanitsch, Arthur Hack, and Henry Bunke.

After a stay at Lake George, the couple will live at 2,446 Creston Avenue, the Bronx.

JOHN D. STARVES THE GERMS

Tarrytown's Water from Oil Man's Springs Purest in the State.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 6.—John D. Rockefeller and his neighbors have the purest water in New York State, according to James R. Losee, Engineer to the Tarrytown Board of Health. Mr. Losee reported that in tests of forty-five samples of Tarrytown water he found bacteria in only two, and then only five per centimeter.

The water is from springs, and credit for its purity is given to Mr. Rockefeller, for he owns practically all of the watershed and keeps it clean.

The high service station is on his property, and he has surrounded it with cedar trees to protect it. Mr. Rockefeller is keen for pure water, and proof that Tarrytown has the purest in the State was pleasing to him.

STEEL COMMON, 101; FIRST TIME OVER PAR

Wall Street Backs Its Belief That Last of Water Has Been Squeezed Out of Corporation.

PREVIOUS TOP PRICE 94 7-8

Has Sold as Low as 38—C. J. Housman Makes First Purchase at 100 and Stock Exchange Cheers.

For the first times since the corporation was formed in 1901 United States Steel common stock sold yesterday at 100 cents on the dollar. It used to be said in the early days of the big combination that the $508,302,000 of common stock represented water poured in by the promoters. The stock market now expresses the belief that with the reinvestment of surplus earnings and appreciation the last drop of water has been evaporated.

Steel common at par has been the dream of traders ever since the bull market of six years ago, when the issue reached 94⅞. Since that point was touched the stock has sold as low as 38, the bottom price made last year. The recovery was gradual up to the middle eighties, where for a long time the price seemed pegged, but since the resumption of the upward movement it has moved forward easily.

Steel advanced two points in Tuesday's market, the first session following the decision to call off the railroad strike, and closed near the top price for the day at 98⅞. Before the opening of the Exchange yesterday morning such a volume of buying orders had accumulated that it was reasonably certain that the quotation would soon be pushed above par. The opening was at 99⅛ to 99¼, and soon afterward there was a great roar that told brokers in all parts of the room that the long expected had at last happened. Five thousand shares had changed hands at 100. C. J. Housman of A. A. Housman & Co. bought the first lot of Steel common that ever sold at par.

Many stockholders had apparently become convinced that par would be the top price on this movement, and the report of a sale at that figure brought selling orders which quickly forced the price back again, but it did not stay down for long. Brokers were called upon from all parts of the country to buy Steel at the market, and in the early afternoon another milestone was passed when the stock touched 101. Another outburst greeted the announcement of the first sale at 101, which was quieted a few seconds later by the printing of a correction. No Steel had sold at 101, said the tape. Soon afterward the quotation again appeared as 101 and a number of lots changed hands at that price. The high point for the day was 101⅛.

No fewer than 254,800 shares of Steel common sold in yesterday's market. There have been many sessions of the Exchange in late years when the total transactions for the entire list did not exceed that. Yesterday's market was the biggest since last October, when the war-order bull market reached its culmination. The million-share mark was passed at 1:15 P. M., and although the pace slackened after that the day's total amounted to about 1,370,000 shares. It was largely an industrial session, the two marine issues following Steel in point of activity, with Crucible, Inspiration Copper, Kennecott, Baldwin, American Can, Kelly-Springfield, Mexican Petroleum, and other industrials monopolizing attention.

The Steel Corporation has followed the policy of appropriating liberal sums out of the earnings in good years for acquisitions and new construction, and in this way has considerably lessened the amount of water in its capitalization. Up to the end of 1915 upward of $225,000,000 had been paid out of surplus for construction, new plants, and properties at Gary, and mining royalties against which ore has not been taken out. In the current year it is not unlikely that as much as $100,000,000 will be set aside from earnings. The corporation has already used half of this sum in buying Carnegie bonds, and in that way has reduced the capitalization against the property. With the appreciation in realty values it is held by friends of the corporation that there is at least a full dollar in assets now for every dollar represented by the capitalization of $1,485,000,000.

ARRESTED IN GAIMART CASE.

De Mar Brought from Newark as Witness Against Brondini.

An alleged attempt to remove a witness against Joseph Brondini, now under indictment with former Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner Michael A. Rofrano for the murder of Michael Gaimari, a political lieutenant of Thomas Foley, was circumvented yesterday by Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers, when Arthur De Mar was arrested in Newark and brought back to New York as a material witness.

De Mar was a witness at the trial of Joseph Montimagno, who now is in the death house at Sing Sing awaiting execution for his part in the crime. He testified that Montimagno was not the man who fired the fatal shot. It was on his story that Brondini was subsequently indicted.

De Mar was convicted of perjury in connection with the trial, but received a suspended sentence upon promising to aid the prosecution of the other defendants. He reported to Mr. Brothers each week until Aug. 21. He told Mr. Brothers he had received $1,000 to stay away from New York. In Newark he lived with a brother of the man under indictment.

ARREST ENVOY AS SPEEDER.

Spanish Ambassador Released When He Proves Identity.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 6.—Senor Don Juan Riano y Gayangos, Spanish Ambassador to the United States, was arrested today for exceeding the speed limit in his automobile at Oaklyn, a suburb of Camden, and was not permitted to continue his journey from Atlantic City to Washington until he had established his identity before Squire Jost.

Hank Bosseler, the police chief of Oaklyn, made the arrest. He stopped the Ambassador's automobile in a narrow stretch of the White Horse Pike, and, despite the Spaniard's protestations that he was an official of a foreign Government, arraigned him in the court. Squire Jost examined the Ambassador's credentials carefully before dismissing the diplomat from court.

No Transport Mails to China.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Denial was made tonight by officials of the War and Post Office Departments of published reports to the effect that the Government had decided to carry mails to China on Government transports. It was admitted that transports had for some time been carrying mail to Manila, but that they were not carrying mail to Chinese ports, and there was no present intention of arranging for them to call at Chinese ports with mail. Officials in response to the direct question, insisted that there was no likelihood that transports would be used for the purpose of carrying mail across the Atlantic.

Postal League Championship Series.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the first game of a three-game series will take place between nines representing the Times Square Post Office Station and the Grand Central Post Office Station at the old Bronx Oval. The teams ended with sixteen won and five lost, and the series carries with it the championship among the postal nines.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Portion of Former Loyal L. Smith Estate on Riverside Drive Figures in $350,000 Trade—Howard Bayne Increases His New Jersey Estate—Vincent Astor to Remodel Old Greenhut Store.

A $350,000 Manhattan-Bronx trade was the feature of what little activity there was in the realty market yesterday.

This transaction involved a plot of six and one-half lots, 112 by 160, at the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 162d Street, which was sold by Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum, operators, to the Melvin Construction Company, Henry Friedman, President.

In part payment the sellers took the Sound View, a recently completed five-story apartment house at the northeast corner of 167th Street and West Farms Road. The structure occupies a plot 94 by 118, and has twenty-three rooms to a floor, all of which are rented.

The Riverside Drive property, which is a portion of the Loyal L. Smith estate, purchased last year by the Mandelbaums, is to be improved at once by the buyers with two six-story elevator apartment houses, containing forty-five rooms on each floor. The J. Romaine Brown Company negotiated the trade.

West Side Dwelling Sold.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for Frederick P. Garrettson 251 West Seventy-sixth Street, a four-story, high-stoop dwelling, 19 by 55 by 102.2, to a client for occupancy.

Resales of Tenements.

Edward C. H. Vogler resold for Thomas Ward, Jr., Secretary of the Thomas Ward Coal Company, 166 West Eighty-third Street, a five-story flat, on lot 25 by 100.

Frederick Brown resold to John J. Falahee 109 to 115 West Ninety-fourth Street, four five-story flats, covering a plot 103.6 by 100.8, 150 feet west of Columbus Avenue. The houses were held at $135,000 and were acquired by Mr. Brown last month through Charles S. Kohler. Miss M. Monahan was the broker.

Bronx Sales.

The Clear Realty Corporation sold to M. Rosenfield a plot on Kingsbridge Road, bounded by Bussing Avenue, East 233d Street, Fourth Avenue and East 232d Street, 114 by 105 by 82 by 172. The buyers will improve the site with a stable as soon as plans are approved by the Building Department.

Clement H. Smith sold for Margaret O'Connell to a client 1,815 Crotona Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of 175th Street, a five-story flat, plot 37 by 100; also to a client the plot, 91 by 90, at the southwest corner of Third Avenue and 179th Street.

Brooklyn.

Jerome Property Corporation sold for the Schnell Realty Company to an investor the four-story brick flat 1,041 Bergen Street, between Rogers and Nostrand Avenues.

Samuel Galitzka & Co. sold for the J. W. Sands Realty Corporation a two-story two-family brick house, on a plot 26.3 by 100, on the south side of Eightieth Street, 250 feet east of Fifth Avenue, to Isidor Mayer for occupancy.

Judge Pendleton Buys Long Island Acreage.

Worthington Whitehouse, Inc. has sold a tract of five acres at Manhasset, L. I., to Judge Francis K. Pendleton. The property adjoins his large country estate on the south and has a frontage on the Old Westbury-Little Neck Road.

Westchester County.

At Larchmont Gardens George Howe sold to Mrs. Mary Fiero Wormser three lots on West Brookside Drive; to Mrs. Maude W. Franck five lots on East Brookside Drive; two lots to Mrs. Ethel L. Crockett on Garden Road, two lots to Arthur de La Hines on Briarcliff Road, three on Lansdown Drive to George E. Nell, and four on Brookside Drive to Lester Harrison.

$20,000 Deal at Montclair.

The new stucco and half-timbered residence on the west side of Clinton Avenue, near Llewellyn Road, owned by E. Merton McBrier, has been purchased by George E. Bush of Montclair, N. J., who expects to take possession Oct. 1. The property has been held at $20,000. F. M. Crawley & Bros. were the brokers in the transaction.

Howard Bayne Increases His New Jersey Estate.

Howard Bayne, Vice President Columbia Trust Company, has purchased the Nelson Closson property in New Vernon, N. J., consisting of ninety-three acres. It adjoins Mr. Bayne's property on the hill overlooking Morristown.

The property was originally part of Lord Sterling's estate and a stone house built in 1782 by Gideon Riggs is still standing and in a fair state of preservation.

This is one of the oldest and most interesting landmarks in that part of New Jersey. It was held by Nathaniel Armstrong and his descendants for several generations.

Other country estates in the neighborhood of New Vernon are those of John W. Stedman, Carl Fleischmann, Gordon Forbes and Mrs. Alexander H. Tiers.

Vincent Astor to Remodel Old Greenhut Store into Factory.

Vincent Astor filed plans yesterday through his architect, C. A. Platt, for remodeling the four-story building on the southwest corner of Nineteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, formerly occupied by Greenhut Company, into a factory. The cost is estimated at $30,000.

Commercial Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for the Horn & Hardart Company to George R. Genereux, a distributing agent for the Ford Motor Company, a large portion of the ground floor in the property 7-9 East Houston Street, southeast corner of Broadway.

Hubert & Hubert have leased the store and basement 2,000 Broadway, northeast corner Sixty-eighth Street, to the Hesseltine Motors Corporation.

Henry Hof has leased to the Corts Printing Company the store at premises 232 East Thirty-sixth Street.

Realty Notes.

A meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Association of the Twelfth and Nineteenth Wards has been called for Friday evening at Turn Hall, Lexington Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street.

Edward W. Browning transferred yesterday to the 11 West Seventeenth Street Company the thirteen-story apartment hotel which he completed last year at 126 West Seventy-third Street, 250 feet west of Columbus Avenue.

Mary H. Hays is the buyer of 926 Madison Avenue, sold last week. The buyer owns the abutting dwelling, 22 East Seventy-fourth Street.

HAIL BLUE DANUBE WALTZ.

Dancing Masters Give Approval, but Hesitate at Hoosier Fox Trot.

The American Society of Dancing Professors, which is holding its annual convention at the Hotel Majestic, allowed reporters yesterday to see the steps which the dancers of the country are expected to do this season. The professors were unanimous in their approval of the "Blue Danube Waltz," introduced by G. W. Del Brugge of Pittsburgh, and they gave sanction to the Jitney Special, which is said to have considerable dash and to be so simple that even the most impossible pupils can master it. Another newcomer weighed in the balance yesterday was the Corkscrew Glide. It is done to fox trot music, and the dancers weave back and forth bewilderingly.

Then, too, there was the T. H. fox trot. T. H. stands for Terra Haute, just off the Indiana literary belt. The villagers may like it, but New York hasn't seen it yet.

Louis H. Chalif presented a Greek interpretative dance which he rendered before the Czar of Russia several years ago. Mr. Chalif is working very hard to keep the "dignified" dances from being put aside, and is trying to awaken new interest in aesthetic dancing.

"Fads of Cornell," dances, originated by college boys, will be introduced by E. W. Prager of Ithaca at the session to-day.

Fine Brooklyn Homes
For One and Two Families at Big Savings
Prices $5,000-$15,000

100 handsome homes, substantially built, located in the most desirable sections of Brooklyn, and with abundant transit facilities, at extraordinarily moderate prices.

These are real houses—built to endure. Their construction is of the sturdy, trouble-proof kind which keeps repair bills at the minimum. They are well laid out—large rooms, spacious closets, no waste space. To build a house like them to-day would cost about 50% more than we are asking for these.

Remodeled to Suit You

We would remodel these houses to suit purchasers at net cost, and sell them for

$500 Cash, Balance as Rent, or Terms to Suit Purchasers

Three Houses Ready for Inspection

The three houses briefly described in this announcement have been thoroughly gone over. We suggest that you see them at once. One of them may suit you perfectly. They will certainly show you what ideal homes these substantial residences make when tastefully remodeled.

These houses will be open for inspection Saturday and Sunday, September 9th and 10th, from 2 to 6 in the afternoon.

Desolated!

A cultured gentleman and scholar with original ideas purchased 80 acres, embracing a magnificent building site, planted hundreds of fruit trees which now have several years' healthy growth, and last year began the erection of a remarkable but inexpensive and thoroughly practical solid concrete home designed for this wonderful site by an architect of repute. The sudden death of the owner (a bachelor) while this work was nearing completion has halted the project where it stood, and the property is vacant; it is within commuting distance and is an opportunity. Write me about it.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The storm reported Tuesday off the South Atlantic Coast was central Wednesday night over the lower Chesapeake Bay and moving northward. It has been attended by winds of moderate gale force off the North Carolina Coast and rains in the Atlantic States from the Carolinas northward to Maine. Another disturbance is central over the Missouri Valley and moving toward the Great Lakes.

It has been attended by local showers and thunder storms in the Ohio and extreme upper Mississippi Valleys, the plains States, and the Rocky Mountain region.

Temperatures continue above the seasonal average generally east of the Rocky Mountains, although cooler weather has overspread the north plains States and the north Rocky Mountain region.

New England weather will be unsettled and warmer, with local showers Thursday and Friday. In the Middle Atlantic States overcast weather without material change in temperature and probably light local showers will prevail Thursday and Friday. In the lake region and the Ohio Valley there will be local showers and thunder storms Thursday and Friday with lower temperature Friday. In the East Gulf and South Atlantic States the weather will be fair Thursday and Friday except that showers are probable in the Florida Peninsula.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate east, overcast weather and showers; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate variable, overcast and showers; South Atlantic Coast, moderate east to south, generally fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York—Probably local showers Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature.

New Jersey—Probably showers Thursday and Friday.

New England—Probably local showers Thursday and Friday; somewhat warmer.

Western New York—Probably local thunder showers Thursday and Friday; somewhat lower temperature Friday.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Thursday; probably showers. Friday, showers.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1915.	1916.		1915.	1916.
3 A. M.	66	66	4 P. M.	76	76

In Part 1 are placed positions which require some technical knowledge in addition to executive experience. Some of these positions pay up to $1,800 a year. All of them are in the Department of Charities, among them being ambulance driver, foreman of laborers, examining physician, nurse, the various trades, hospital helper, and clerk.

The Board of Examiners will in future test the qualifications of those in Part 2 for their positions or any higher positions to which they may be assigned. The board will also test the candidates for positions in Part 1, but must, in addition, send all the facts to the commission, who will investigate the character of the candidates and pass final judgment.

Postal business has been increasing so rapidly for more than a year and a half, according to Postmaster Morgan, that it is necessary to appoint many more clerks and carriers in the New York Post Office is Postmaster Burton of Brooklyn has put on twelve new sub-carriers, their appointment taking effect on Aug. 10. This is the second set of appointments Mr. Burton has made within a comparatively short time.

The commission announces an open examination for senior highway bridge engineer. From the eligibles resulting from this examination will be filled in the office of public roads and rural engineering, Department of Agriculture, at salaries ranging from $2,400 to $3,000 a year, and vacancies as they may occur in positions requiring similar qualifications. The duties of this position will involve the making of surveys of bridge sites, superintending the construction and inspection of highway bridges, and the design and preparation of plans for highway bridges. Only those who attain a rating of 85 per cent. or over will be eligible for appointment to positions paying $3,000 or more. Competitors will be rated on education and preliminary training in engineering and responsible experience in engineering. Applicants must have had not less than four years of preliminary engineering experience or four years' college work, and not less than four years' experience in civil engineering from a recognized college. They must also show that they have had not less than seven years of responsible engineering experience and must have reached their thirtieth birthday on the date of the examination. For further particulars address the commission at Washington, D. C.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The District Superintendents of Schools, in accordance with the desire of President Willcox and Associate Superintendent McAndrew, have made arrangements to meet at the office of District Superintendent O'Shea, 317 West Forty-seventh Street, this morning to work out plans for conducting teachers' institutes during the coming fortnight. It is proposed to hold them in each district, at which the Superintendents of other districts will speak on subjects to which they have given special attention.

The Acting City Superintendent of Schools is sending out a circular letter quoting a circular sent to District Superintendents by the City Superintendent of Schools during the school year of 1902-1903, in which the following appears: "While teachers should be aware of the importance of careful preparation for each day's work, the consumption of time and energy in writing elaborate plan and progress books has come to be an unnecessary burden upon teachers and an injury to their work. To this end the District Superintendents and Principals are requested to see that teachers' written notes are part of the basis of their judgment in rating, except in determining the item 'effort' when the results as determined by inspection and examination, are unsatisfactory."

EXPECTS EPIDEMIC TO END IN 2 WEEKS

Dr. Emerson Predicts "Return to the Normal" in the City About Sept. 21.

SCHOOL PRINCIPALS REPORT

Teachers to Assemble on Monday for Institutes Which Will Last Till Paralysis Is Over.

Record of the Disease in the City.

	Deaths.		New Cases.
Borough.	Tues-day.	Wednes-day.	Tues-day.	Wednes-day.
Manhattan	9	9	15	26
Brooklyn	7	8	12	10
Bronx	4	3	8	10
Queens	1	2	6	5
Totals	21	22	43	53

Total of deaths to date 2,047
Total of cases to date 8,828

"The epidemic is evidently fast burning itself out. There seems to be every prospect of conditions again reaching normal within the next two weeks."

Health Commissioner Emerson thus expressed his optimism yesterday after considering the day's report of new cases of infantile paralysis. The cases were ten more than on Tuesday, but they represented not only the cases discovered and listed on Tuesday afternoon and yesterday morning, but also the accumulation of cases missed on Saturday and two succeeding holidays.

A week ago yesterday there were eighty-nine new cases. Last week the daily average of new cases was sixty-six and the week before that 106. The daily average for the first four days of this week has been 47. Last week there were 152 deaths from infantile paralysis, as compared with 200 in the preceding week and 301 in the week ending on Aug. 12. Discussing the general health of the city, Dr. Emerson said:

The City's Health.

It is encouraging also to note that the mortality of the contagious and diarrhoeal diseases continues to remain lower than during last year. The mortality of the following diseases was lower during the past week than during the corresponding week of last year: Measles, whooping cough, typhoid fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis, diarrhoeal diseases, pulmonary tuberculosis, and diseases of the nervous system.

The total number of deaths reported during the week was 1,358, as compared with 1,515 reported during the previous week, the death rate for the past week being 12.96, as against 14.18 for the week ending Aug. 26. The death rate for the first thirty-six weeks of 1916 was 14.51, and the death rate for the corresponding period of last year 14.12.

There is every prospect of having a lower general death rate in New York City this year than ever before. In view of the outbreak of grip last January, and especially in view of the 2,000 deaths from infantile paralysis this Summer, this is a remarkable showing and indicates that after all New York is a pretty good town to live in.

At the Willard Parker Hospital in Manhattan and at the office of the Department of Health in Brooklyn, five persons who had poliomyelitis yesterday gave fifty-five ounces of blood.

Between Aug. 8 and Sept. 2, 148 persons contributed [illegible] ounces of immune blood for serum, which was used in the treatment of [illegible] patients.

[illegible] Norwood, a lawyer, yesterday filed in the County Clerk's office an application for a mandamus requiring the Department of Health to remove infantile paralysis placards from an apartment building at [illegible] Avenue [illegible] street, owned by him. The placards, which state that there is a case of poliomyelitis in the house, were put up [illegible] according to an affidavit filed by Mr. Norwood, "at the very height of the renting season."

"Immediately," continues the affidavit, "it became impossible to interest prospective tenants in apartments in the building. The business of a drug store and a grocery in the building has been practically ruined, and even the hallboys and the janitor threaten to leave."

Prepare for School Work.

The principals and clerks of the public schools reported for duty yesterday. All teachers will report next Monday for the first session of the Teachers' Institute, which will continue until the opening of the schools.

Entrance examinations for Princeton University will begin on Oct. 5, instead of Sept. 19, as originally planned. The opening of the university was recently postponed until Oct. 10.

Sixty-four cases of infantile paralysis were reported yesterday by the New Jersey State Department of Health at Trenton, as follows:

Newark, 21; Trenton, 4; Jersey City and Lebanon Township, three each; East Orange, Perth Amboy, Long Branch, West Long Branch, and Dover, two each; Atlantic City, Fort Lee, Lodi, Florence Township, Willingboro, [illegible] Bloomfield, Livingston, Greenwich Township, Bayonne, South River, Belmar, Middletown Township, Ocean Grove, Wall Township, Dutch Township, Mount Arlington, Mount Tabor, Paterson, [illegible], Elizabeth, Plainfield, New Providence Township, one each.

It was announced at Fort Totten yesterday that the quarantine against children which has been in force there for two months would be lifted.

To Modify Quarantines.

There were four new cases of infantile paralysis reported in Nassau County yesterday, two in Rockville Centre, and one each in Great Neck and Plainview. The State health authorities stationed at Roslyn gave out a report showing that, since June 23, there had been 403 cases in Nassau County and 301 in Suffolk County.

Following the action of the Town Board of Oyster Bay in lifting its strict quarantine, other towns on Long Island will modify the measures enforced by them all Summer, according to report.

Dr. Frank Overton of Patchogue, L. I., State Health Officer for Suffolk and Nassau Counties, said the report that six children of practicing physicians of Nassau County had poliomyelitis was erroneous. The fact, Dr. Overton said, was that six children of physicians, four in the town of Brookhaven and the other two elsewhere in Suffolk County, were or had been suffering from infantile paralysis; but these physicians, he added, were New York men spending the Summer on Long Island and not practicing there.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Today's reports of new up-State cases of infantile paralysis made State Health Department officials waver in their belief, expressed yesterday, that the disease was waning. For the twenty-four hours ending at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 97 cases and 15 deaths were recorded as against 100 cases and 11 deaths for the preceding twenty-four hours. Yesterday's figures, however, included a number of belated returns incident to the Monday holiday and Sunday, while today's contained only reports of more recent cases.

The total for the State, not including New York City, since the beginning of the epidemic, tonight stood as follows: cases, 2,401; deaths, 255.

Today's reports indicated, Department officials said, that the disease was "burning itself out," in the Long Island and lower Hudson River districts, but was increasing throughout the central part of the State, notably in Onondaga and Tompkins Counties.

Deaths were reported today from Syracuse, 6; Ithaca and Yonkers, 2 each; Rensselaerville, Richfield Springs, Fultonville, Fulton, and Manlius, one each. Reports of new cases were received from Syracuse, 17; Manlius, 5; Highland, 4; Ithaca, New Rochelle, Yonkers, and Cortland, 3 each; Highland Falls, Huntington, Rockville Centre, Fulton, Clyde, Gouverneur, Poughkeepsie, Fayetteville, Ossining, Clayton, and Lafayette, 2 each; Inwood, Wolcott, Pleasantville, Sampsonville, Hazel, Weedsport, Bronxville, Canastota, De Witt, Town of Ithaca, Queensbury, Marcellus, Mount Pleasant, Carthage, Riverhead, Great Neck, Plainview, Newark Valley, Colesville, Barton, Thompson, Thurston, Norwich, Thousand Island Park, Harrison, Oneida, Elba, Canajoharie, Saranac Lake, Newburg, Edwards, Saugerties, Binghamton, Glens Falls, Cato, Philmont, and Mamaroneck, 1 each.

NEWARK WELCOMES MAYORS

League of American Municipalities Opens Four-Day Convention.

Mayors and other municipal officers from all parts of the country gathered at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark yesterday to take part in a four-day convention of the League of American Municipalities. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, who was assisted by Jacob Haussling and William H. F. Fiedler, both former Mayors of Newark.

Conspicuous among the delegates from distant points were Mayor Martin Behrman of New Orleans, President of the league, and City Clerk C. J. Brown of Winnipeg, Canada. The oldest delegate in attendance is ex-Alderman George W. Taylor of Newark, who will be 81 years old on Sept. 28.

Mayor Raymond, in his welcoming address, dwelt upon the growth of city government, the scope of which, he said, had expanded to such an extent that now a municipality had to be both a good father and good mother to its citizens. Newark, for instance, he said, through the agency of district nurses and clinics, now looked after the welfare of its future citizens, not only throughout the periods of infancy and youth, but took the further precaution of instructing women how to live that their children might be well born.

President Behrman, in an address to the convention, asserted that no political or nonpolitical organization extant exerted a greater influence or was a more potent factor for the general weal than the league. Rapidly increasing needs of growing cities, he said, demanded more and more the exercise of new governmental powers, and he urged the unshackling of cities from time-honored fetters forged by the State that greater freedom of action might be had.

The delegates were entertained last night at the bicycle races at the Velodrome.

PLATTSBURG READY FOR SEPTEMBER CAMP

Only Two Battalions Are Expected —3,000 Rookies Complete Hike and Are Dismissed.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Practically all of the 3,000 men who made up the August training camp are on their way to their homes tonight, after having completed their seventy-mile hike early this morning.

The two regiments of infantry, the cavalry, artillery and machine gun detachments passed in review before General Wood on the post parade grounds and were dismissed. Special trains took most of the rookies away before night, but a few remained to take examinations for commissions in the officers' reserve corps.

No sooner were the August camp members on their way than preparations were begun for the September camp. Tentage and equipment for two battalions were held out, although the camp authorities admitted that they had no idea how many members the camp would have. About 1,600 men are enrolled, but a large percentage is expected not to come.

Major Harrison Hall of the Coast Artillery Corps, who is stationed at Fort Totten, will be the commander of the September camp, to take the place of Lieut. Col. Ketchem, who will be relieved. Major Halstead Dorey, General Wood's aid, who was the commander of last year's camp, will be the commander of the single regiment.

Majors Baltzell and Collins have been designated as commanders of the battalions. The following are company commanders, all men who have been detailed here all the Summer:

Company A, Captains Beacham and Woodruff; Company B, Captains Supplee and McLean; Company C, Captains Parker and MacLachlan; Company D, Captains Herron and Gunner; Company E, Captains Gowen and Ware; Company F, Captains Kelly and Hill; Company G, Captains Barnes and Kimball; Company H, Captains Nolan and Atkins.

The Cornell contingent, of which there are about seventy-five, will start tomorrow morning to hike to Ithaca. They expect to spend about ten days on the road. Captain Thompson, commander of the corps, will accompany them home.

WILSON 'PAYS HIS RENT.'

President's $2,500 Check Will Go to Monmouth County Hospitals.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 6.—Congressman Thomas J. Scully of the Third New Jersey District has received from President Wilson a check for $2,500. This sum will be divided between the hospitals in Monmouth County shortly. When Shadow Lawn was proffered to the President for the Summer as a residence he wanted to pay for its use, but when he found he could not do this he insisted that he be allowed to contribute to the hospitals an amount equal to what he would have paid elsewhere for a Summer home.

A committee of Monmouth County citizens, headed by Congressman Scully, arranged for the use of Shadow Lawn, Captain Greenhut, the owner, on learning for whom the place was wanted, declining to accept rent for the place, and also binding himself to see that it was kept up so far as the grounds were concerned.

Mr. Wilson has had practically no use of the place as yet.

HELD FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

Chicago Woman Admits Killing Man from Whom She Was Estranged.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Iva Barnes was ordered held for the Grand Jury without bail today by a Coroner's jury which investigated the death of her husband, James R. Barnes, local agent for a New York soap company, whom Mrs. Barnes confessed she shot in a park here last night.

Mr. Barnes's suit for divorce against his wife was to be tried today and the estranged couple met last night in an effort to settle their difficulties. Mrs. Barnes told the police she shot her husband because he attempted to choke her.

Mr. Barnes was about twenty years his wife's senior.

Until making the confession Mrs. Barnes maintained that her husband had ended his own life. She previously admitted purchasing the revolver, but asserted that she kept it in her apartment as a protection against burglars.

Barnes left his wife last July. Two days ago Mrs. Barnes went to the hotel at which he was staying and attempted to force herself into his rooms. Barnes fled down a fire-escape.
